I-J PROTEST

Hundreds Are Expected For Rally

Hundreds of demonstrators were expected to gather today in San Anselmo to march to San Rafael for a protest rally against the Independent-Journal.

The Bay Area AFL-CIO labor rally, led by farm organizer Cesar Chavez, was to be the fifth major protest since San Francisco Typographical Union 21 struck the I-J Jan. 7.

On the first day of the strike, which was to be marked by vandalism, threats and death, about 100 pickets attempted to prevent the departure of delivery vans from the I-J parking lot.

Employees entering the building were shoved and verbally assaulted, and an invasion of newspaper property by pickets resulted in a brief scuffle. One employee's clothing was ripped as the tried to enter the building, and employees' cars had tires punctured and tacks strewn under them.

Two employees were struck with picket signs as they left the building.

Not all violence and vandalism accompanying the confrontation on Jan. 7 occurred at the demonstration. Linecasting machines and six I-J delivery trucks were sabotaged before the strike officially began, and bottle of paint thinner were thrown at one employee's home but did not ignite.

In a second confrontation Jan. 17, approximately 500 strike sympathizers joined printers' union pickets in forming a human chain that ringed two blocks in San Rafael.

All tires were punctured on the cars of three I-J employees, a side window was smashed on a delivery truck and police where called out to clear Julia Street, blocked by demonstrators in an attempt to prevent movement of I-J delivery trucks.

One demonstrator was arrested on suspicion of disorderly conduct when, according to police, he charged a line of policemen trying to clear the street, attempted to grab a police sergant's night stick and spat on patrol car windows as he was taken to jail.

The third confrontation, on Feb. 14, was organized by a committee of Bay Area AFL-CIO union leaders similar to the committee of 25 Bay Area AFL-CIO union officials which organized today's rally.

Charles B. Weers, secretary of the Marin County Labor Council and co-chairman of the committee which organized today's rally, was also a member of that committee.

Approximately 700 union members and sympathizers attended the rally, which turned into a riot resulting in 17 injuries — eight to law enforcement officers — and 12 arrests, which resulted in charges ranging from misdemeanor vandalism

Reagan Decides Not To Cut Welfare Spending

Foes Of Governor Cheering

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— Gov. Ronald Reagan, abandoning a controversial plan to slash welfare spending by $25 million, today sought an alternative "which cannot be sabotaged by arrogant social workers."

Meantime, Democratic legislators and representatives of two welfare worker organizations cheered the repeal of "emergency" regulations Reagan ordered to cut back attendant care for the blind, aged and disabled.

He has beeon caught in his incompetence," said Coleman Blease, spokesman for the 5,000-member Social Workers Union, AFL-CIO.

Faced with the threat of a court suit by a federally financed legal aid group for the poor, Reagan Friday ordered the cancellation of the rules. He bitterly assailed social workers who he accused of sabotaging and subverting his campaign to reduce welfare costs.

At a hastily called extraordinary news conference, the Republican governor charged social workers with "terrorizing' 'the most needy recipients by ordering their aid stopped.

He insisted the rules, scheduled to take effect Aug. 1, were not intended to force any truly deserving recipient out of his home and into a county hospital or other nursing institution.

"Apparently, the regulation was worded in such a way they (social workers) could claim they were adhering to the letter while they violated the spirit," he angrily told newsmen.

"This is a clear subversion of our intent and can only be interpreted as an attempt to sabotage our efforts toward responsible administration of the program," he said.

Reagan two weeks ago ordered currently budgeted state funds of $24 million for attendant care reduced to $14 million. The reduction triggered a loss of another $15 million in federal and local matching funds.

The governor, seeking re-election, said cancellation of the regulations would restore the $10 million in state funds, at least temporarily.

Some county supervisors and welfare directors charged the state administration with mere-

B52 Armada Called Out To Halt Red Drive On Gun Base

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Command sent an armada of B52 bombers today against what was described as the beginning of a North Vietnamese attempt to drive American troops out of another gun base near the Laotian border.

Paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division abandoned Fire Support Base Ripcord in South Vietnam's far northwest corner Thursday after losing 61 men killed and 345 wounded since July 1. The base was deemed too costly to maintain.

Now, military sources said, the North Vietnamese have turned their attention to another 101st gun base, code named Veghel, 16 miles southeast of Ripcord. Like Ripcord, it commands a view of Communist infiltration routes into the A Shau Valley from Laos.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Command said B52 bombers came in this morning and dropped up to 150 tons of 500- and 750-pound bombs into a target area four miles west of Veghel, where the guerrillas were believed massing.

Veghel and a third gun base along the valley, Katherine, were spared serious attack during the 23-day North Vietnamese drive against Ripcord.

Hanoi Radio said the abandonment of Ripcord was a "heavy defeat" for the American paratroopers.

The bombing near Veghel marked a continuation of a steady strean of aerial attacks against the Communist supply lines in Laos and in the A Shau Valley as the Allies strive to prevent an expected guerrilla offensive in the northern war zone.

Tactical fighter-bombers flew strike after strike Thursday and Friday against North Vietnamese positions around the abandoned Ripcord base and then the B52s came in and dumped heavier bombloads on the camp to render it useless to the guerrillas.

Ground fighting in South Vietnam and Cambodia was reported light this morning, with spokesmen listing two battles from Friday in which U.S. infantrymen killed 59 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese. One American died and six were wounded in the fighting.

One of the battles, 270 files north-northeast of Saigon, saw 400 troops of the 4th Infantry Division swarm into a guerrilla base camp aboard 30 helicopters after ground fire from the camp shot down the American helicopter. The crewmen were not hurt.

Spokesmen said the bodies of 39 Comfunist soldiers were found after the five-hour battle 19 miles northwest of the Central Highlands town of An Khe. U.S. casualties were listed as six wounded with no fatalities.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, who fought the second clash Friday, reported killing 20 Communist soldiers in a one-hour firefight near Rang Rang 48 miles northeast of Saigon.

The cavalry division infantrymen were backed by helicopter gunships, artillery and fighter-bomber strikes. Spokesmen said U.S. casualties were one killed.

One American was killed and one wounded Friday afternoon when Communist ground fire shot down and destroyed a second observation helicopter in the Mekong Delta 46 miles southwest of Saigon.

Successor To Finch Moaning, Too

WASHINGTON (UPI) —HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson says he complained "loudly and clearly" to the White House because he wasn't consulted before President Nixon vetoed a $2.76 billion hospital construction bill.

Richardson, who took over the post last month, said in a UPI interview that he had experienced "failures of communication" with the White House, a complaint voiced frequently by his predecessor, Robert H. Finch. Finch is now a White House counselor.

Richardson said he called presidential assistant John Ehrlichman "mainly to record, as forcibly as possible, the assumption that I would in the future have full opportunity to be heard.

"I just felt that if I did not record this loudly and clearly at this time, there might be some similar inadvertent failure in the future."

Richardson, former undersecretary of State, also said he believes there is a "better than even" chance the Senate Finance Committee will approve the administration's welfare reform proposals despite this past week of hostile hearings.

The administration welfare plan, which would provide a

Pinheiro Site Urged For Shopping Center

By JEFF GREER

Novato must create a major, regional shopping center and its associated facilities — or risk losing its future to Petaluma in the north and San Rafael in the south.

The warning, and potential ways to reach the goal, are sketched in an 118-page report on the downtown Novato program, prepared by consultants Sedway and Cooke of San Francisco.

The study, financed by a $30,000-plus federal "701" planning grant, suggests drastic steps may be necessary:

1. The city government, or perhaps a combine of city government and specially created private corporation, should acquire more than 100 acres of downtown Novato, to control its development.

2. One major regional shopping center similar to Northgate should be created, preferably on the Pinheiro ranch. If the property owned by the Frank Pinheiro family cannot be obtained, less favored choices would be the San Marin East property north of the Pinheiro ranch, and the Downtown Novato shopping center, now a growing neighborhood center at Seventh Street and Grant Avenue.

Much-discussed plans for a shopping center at the intersection of Highway 37, South Novato Boulevard and Highway 101 are written off by the consultants.

The report will be presented by Sedway and Cooke to a joint meeting of the Novato City Council, planning commission and downtown study committee at 8 p.m. Aug. 3 in the multipurpose room of Hill Junior High School.

The report advises Novato's city government to take extensive — and sometimes drastic — steps including urban renewal proceedings, condemnation of land if necessary, creation of assessment districts and parking districts for improvement of the downtown area, and extensive guidance of any private development in the area.

The downtown figuring in the survey lies west of the future 101 bypass, generally south of the future Atherton-101 interchange (unless the San Marin East area must be used as the regional shopping center site) and northeast of Novato Boulevard, except for the Diablo

Nader Attacks Mine Safety Indifference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said today the Nixon administration was indifferent toward the safety and health of the nation's coal miners.

A report compiled by a group of law students, backed by Nader and partially financed by the Interior Department, also charged that the United Mine Workers Union and the miners themselves had failed to take an active role in forcing action on their problems.

The report, released by Nader at a press conference, concluded that Nixon has disregarded Congress' intentions in the 1969 Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act.

"If the President's posture toward black Americans has been termed 'benign neglect,' the attitude toward our coal miners can well be termed calculated indifference," the report said.

The report, written by J.

ISRAEL UNDECIDED

Jordan Near Nod On Peace Proposal

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Jordan was reported on the verge of accepting the U.S. plan for indirect Middle East peace talks today, leaving only Israel's response in doubt. One Tel Aviv cabinet minister said the proposal "must be rejected."

Political sources in Beirut predicted the Jordanian government would announce its acceptance within 24 hours. It met this morning with Dr. Hassan Sabry El-Kholy, and Egyptian envoy who was counseling Jordan to follow Cairo's lead in accepting.

Egyptian officials announced that Syria, a front-line Arab nation that was not invited to take part in the talks, had approved Cairo's decision to join the negotiations anyway, indicating tacit approval.

The talks, through U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring, would begin after a three-month cease-fire takes effect. Israel has voiced opposition to the standdown, contending Egypt would use it to build up its Suez Canal line.

Israel's development minister, Haim Landau, said the American proposal "must be rejected since it really is a plan to liquidate Israel by stages," forcing it to withdraw from territories captured in the 1967 Middle East war.

Premier Golda Meir of Israel met for 90 minutes Friday with the American ambassador to Jerusalem, H. Walworth Barbour, who was reported to have given her Egypt's acceptance statement and urged Israel to go along with the plan despite its doubts.

Fighting flared during the night on the Israeli-Jordan frontier, where Tel Aviv said its troops killed two Arab guerrilla infiltators. The guerrilla command in Egypt has assailed the U.S. plan and vowed to ignore it and keep fighting.

Jordan and Egypt were the only two front-line Arab nations to receive the plan. Cairo accepted it but President Gamal Abdel Nasser assered Friday he has "absolutely no hope" for a political settlement.

Tel Aviv's reply was expected next week.

"If Israel rejects the plan and the United States resumes aid (to Israel), American interests in the Arab world will Friday in Cairo, alluding to be in danger," Nasser said American oil interests.

kIf the U.S. and Britain continue sending arms to Israel, he said, "There should be a major confrontation between the whole of the Arab world and America and Britain."

He added, "If Israel makes reservations in her answer, if she says she must keep part of Arab territory, Jerusalem for instance, this would mean the initiative has failed."

U.S. officials were reported pressuring Tel Aviv to accept the plan despite its contention that Egypt would use the truce to build up its Suez Canal defenses.

Novato Votes Again Tuesday On Hiking School District Tax Limit

The Novato Unified School District, without funds to grant raises to employees, will again ask voters Tuesday to increase the district taxing limit by 85 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Polls in the special election — second this year — will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in 14 locations.

Voter approval would increase the tax limit from $3.481 to $4.341 for general purposes and the total tax rate from $5.345 to $6.195.

A similar proposal was narrowly defeated by voters in April, with 3,072 in favor of the increase and 3,461 against. Fifty-one per cent of the district's 12,848 registered voters cast ballots. A simple majority vote is required for passage.

If the increase is approved, the board has said it will restore cuts made in district programs as a result of a fiscal 1970-71 squeeze and also consider employee raises.

"There is no doubt additional income would be used to make cost-of-living increases," board member Carolyn M. Crabtree told the Independent-Journal.

The board has not indicated how much of the increase it would use in 1970-71 if approved by voters.

The board, in deliberating a $9.9 million budget for 1970-71, cut home-to-school transportation, transferring $80,000 from that spending program to undistributed reserves, and also eliminated B-Basketball, varsity wrestling, water pool, cross country and soccer at the two high schools. It also cut seventh and eighth grade basketball, track and girls' athletic association activities at the three junior high schools.

The board also reduced staff at junior and senior high schools, including counselors at the junior high schools. Other cuts were in supplies, library services, books, capital outlay for equipment and school maintenance.

In the ballot argument supporting the tax hike, the school board said that inflation has in-

Car Bomb Kills Phone Executive

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Philip J. Lucier, president of the Continental Telephone Corp., was killed Friday when he turned the ignition of his car and set off a pipe bomb planted beneath the seat.

Two vice presidents of the firm, who were returning from lunch with Lucier, were uninjured although they had just opened the doors of the black Fleetwood Cadillac to enter.

Lucier, 49, had jumped in ahead of the vice presidents to "cool it off," apparently meaning he would start the air conditioning in the car.

The vice presidents were James L. Robb and James V. Napier, both of the St. Louis area.

Major Herbert Johnston, assistant chief of the Clayton police department, said the victim "was damn near cut in two. It looked like he sat on a stick of dynamite."

The explosion ripped a hole in the floorboard under the driver's seat, sent the back portion of the seat through the rear window and shattered the windshield and side front windows. Two holes were punctured in the roof.

Johnston said the device was wired to the ignition and apparently went off when Lucier turned the ignition switch. He said the bomb was what is usually called a "pipe bomb," galvanized pipe filled with black powder.

It was placed under the front seat on the driver's side, Johnston said.

"It probably took no longer than five minutes to install," he said. "It was apparently a professional job."

The car was parked in a lot at the Pierre Laclede building, a few blocks from the Continental Telephone Building in the suburban Clayton business district. The three had been eating at the St. Louis Club in the building.

Police said they did not know who would want to kill Lucier, who was the founder and first president of the company.

Police checked other cars in the area and executives at Continental requested a check of all company cars but no other bombs were found.

State Paints Manson As A Racist Leader

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state Friday opened its murder case against Charles Manson and three female members of his "family" by describing him as a "megalomaniac" who wanted to start a race war.

Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi said in opening remarks "the evidence will show that one of Manson's principal motives" for murdering actress Sharon Tate and six other persons "was to ignite . . . the black-white revolution by making it look like the black people had murdered the victims . . . thereby causing the white community to turn against the black man and ultimately lead to civil war, a war Manson foresaw the black man winning."

WORD 'PIG'

He noted the words "pig," "heker skelter," and "rise" had been written in blood on the doors and walls of the home of Sharon Tate and Leno LaBianca, where the murders took place.

Bugliosi said Manson believed the blacks would wipe out all whites, except him and his chosen followers, who would be hiding in the desert in a place called the Bottomless Pit, which "Manson derived from Revelation 9, the last book of the New Testament."

He said Manson believed the blacks would be unable to handle the reins of power because of inexperience and would have to turn to those whites who escaped the slaughter."

Manson, who had carved an "X" in his forehead, glowered at Bugliosi as he spoke. His three co-defendants, Leslie Van Houten, Patricia Krenwinkel and Susan Atkins, whispered and occasionally giggled during the opening statement by Bugliosi.

After completing his opening remarks, Bugliosi called Paul Tate, father of the 8slapn actress, as the prosecutions first witness.

COMPOSED, TRIM

Tate, a retired Army colonel, was composed, trim and specific in his answers about the last time he had seen his daughter alive and his acquaintance with other victims, coffee heiress Abigail Folger, hair stylist Jay Sebring and polish writer Voityck Frokowski.

After testifying, Tate took a seat in the crowded courtroom and watched the defendants without displaying a sign of emotion.

The state then called Wilfred E. Parent, whose son, Steven, 18, was killed at the Tate home; Winifred Chapman, the maid who found the bodies on the morning of Aug. 9, and William Garretson, 18, the caretaker who lived in the guest house on the Tate estate and who at one time was questioned as a suspect in the slayings.

Garretson said he spent the night of the murders in his room, listening to a stereo and writing letters after the younger Parent had left after stopping for a visit.

When the trial resumes Monday, Manson family member Linda Kasabian is expected to be one of the first witnesses called.

Bugliosi said Mrs. Kasabian, who was a member of the family for a month, witnessed three slayings at the Tate residence. He said she has been promised immunity for her testimony about driving members of the cult to the murder scene and that the principal killer was Charles Watson, 24, who is currently fighting extradition from Texas.

Heath Selects New Exchequer Chancellor

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has chosen European Affairs Minister Anthony Barber as chancellor of the exchequer to mastermind his sweeping economic recovery program for Britain, political sources said today.

The exchequer vacancy occurred when Iain MacLeod, 56, died Monday of a heart attack after less than a month in office.

It was not known who would succeeded Barber in the job of chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. His specific assignment as European Affairs minister has been heading the British delegation to the Common Market membership talks. One possibility mentioned was Minister of Technology Geoffrey Rippon.

ANTHONY BARBER
New cabinet post

Barber, 50, has been a close friend and working associate of Heath for years and was widely credited with organizing the Conservative party victory in the June 18 general election.

Political speculation earlier this week had centered on Harber, Home Secretary Reginald Maulding and Sir Keith Joseph, minister for health and social security, as possible candidates for the job, comparable to the secretary of the treasury in the United States.

Sources said Maudling, who was chancellor of the exchequer in an earlier administration, told Heath he was not anxious to take on the economic hot seat again. They said Joseph was rejected as not having sufficient economic and financial experience.

The sources said Barber was picked largely because of his closeness to Heath for many years. He had four years experience as financial secretary to the treasury in former Prime Minister Harold MacMillan's administration.

In picking Barber, Heath may have indicated he plans to keep a close personal eye on running the nation's economy. They said he could do so more easily with Barber than he could have with a man of MacLeod's strong personality.

The government is faced with carrying out programs to slash direct taxation and government spending at a time when the economy is suffering from unemployment, stagnant business, sagging exports and the threat of adverse effects from the present dock strike.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

European Visit

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—The U.S. Air Force C5 Galaxy, the world's largest aircraft, made its first visit to Europe today on a shakedown trip from Dover, Del., to prepare it for regular cargo flights beginning next month.

After a stop at Rein-Main Air Base the huge transport is to continue on to air bases in England and Spain before returning to the United States Tuesday, an Air Force spokesman said.

The C5, one of 17 in the U.S. Air Force, can carry up to 285,000 pounds, has a range of 7,320 and a maximum speed of 540 miles per hour.

The spokesman said the C5 service initially will involve only about one run per week between Rhein-Main and the United States.

Hopper Hearing

TAOS, N.M. (UPI)—Movie actor-director-producer Dennis Hopper, who played a motorcycle pilgrim in "Easy Rider," faces a preliminary hearing here next month on charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

Hopper and three others were arrested last month and released on $2,000 bond each. They were accused of brandishing guns during an incident near Taos June 16.

Keeps Promise

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The man who thought up the Vice President Spiro T. Agnew wristwatch has kept his promise to donate part of the profits to charity.

Mrs. Hale Dougherty, wife of the Anaheim, Calif., physician who designed the timepiece and whose family marketed it as the "Dirty Time Co.," presented a $2,500 check to the City of Hope Medical Center Friday.

The Swiss firm which manufactures the watch also donated 20,000 Swiss francs (about $4,800) to Mrs. Stephen Hanson of El Toro, Calif., who represents the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

Slaying Hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The President's Commission on Campus Unrest will hold three days of public hearings in August in Jackson, Miss., where state troopers killed two Jackson State College students during campus disturbances in May.

Soviet Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission said Friday seismic signals indicate the Soviet Union set off an underground nuclear explosion of between 20 and 200 kilotons at about midnight EDT Thursday.

Wrong 'Word'

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—A Seattle police officer who ran unsuccessfully for mayor last year is on three-day suspension for using the word nigger over the police radio.

Acting police chief Charles R. Gain of Oakland, Calif., said Ross "Tex" Roddam used the word twice Thursday to describe four men he stopped. Gain said the penalty would have been more severe except that the derogatory words forbidden by police regulations to be broadcast are never explicitly spelled out.

Roddam lost in the primary in his mayoralty bid last year.

Rehearsal Party

HOUSTON (UPI)—Julie Nixon Eisenhower and her husband, David, attended the rehearsal dinner Friday of her former college schoolmate, Susan Harvin of Houston.

The President's daughter and Miss Harvin became close friends during their college days at Smith. Susan asked Julie to be her bridesmaid at her wedding today. David will be an usher.

Maddox Shaken Up

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UPI)—Gov. Lester Maddox was shaken up and bruised Friday when the state patrol car he was riding in skidded on wet pavement and struck a concrete abutment.

Yale Professor Hits Gun-Carrying Police

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Yale psychology professor says police should not be allowed to carry guns during campus disturbances unless there is evidence that students also are armed.

He termed the shooting deaths of six students this spring at Jackson State University in Mississippi and Kent State University in Ohio "murder by civil authorities."

Kenneth Keniston, author of two books on radical youth, told the President's Commission on Campus Unrest Friday that campus activists "are in many ways the most able, independent, morally concerned and politically aware of students on American campuses," rather than "The stereotype widely held in America of the activist as a 'rotten apple' or 'bum' acting out his neurotic problems."

The way "to stop the killing on campus," he said, is to "take the murderous weapons out of the hands of civil authorities who have so far done the killing."

In response to a question from Cleveland Public Safety Director Benjamin O. Davis, Keniston said he would permit police to enter a campus with guns only if they had evidence that students were armed.

Activism, he said, is "the effort of the best educated generation in world history to push our society toward practicing what it has always preached. Activism is a product of the success, not the failure, of our society's efforts with the young.

"In the years to come, an ever larger group of students will be disposed by their backgrounds and convictions to become activists." He said the public and police "must become reconciled" to campus unrest.

He compared it to "similar public feelings of outrage" when workers were forming unions and demanding new rights in the 1930s.

Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee made a similar analogy. And he said student strikers should be required to take a strike vote before walking out, just as union members do.

He said, too, that just as union members lose wages for the time they are on strike, students should be denied academic credit while striking.

David A. Keene, chairman of the Young Americans for Freedom, blamed "appeasement" by college administrators for campus turmoil.

Family Fuss Leaves Five Persons Dead

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A family argument apparently triggered a knifing and shooting spree that ended with five persons dead and two children wounded Friday.

Sheriff's deputies said the incident began when Cleve Van Metcalf, 34, fatally stabbed his wife, Jonnie, 28, during a family quarrel. Their daughter, Mary Ann, 13, was wounded when she tried to intervene.

Deputies said the argument began when Mrs. Metcalf ordered him out of the home. They said the argument apparently stemmed from Metcalf's arrest July 16 on suspicion of molesting his children. Mrs. Metcalf refused to prosecute.

Then, authorities speculated, Metcalf grabbed a revolver and ran to a nearby home where he shot and killed Mattie Wilson, 22, and Linda Walker, 14.

A security guard, Cleveland Verdine, 34, told officers he saw Metcalf run into the second home and then heard a series of shots.

When Metcalf ran out carrying a revolver and headed toward a third home behind the one in which Miss Walker and Miss Wilson were shot, Verdine said he pulled his gun and ordered Metcalf to drop his weapon.

Instead, Verdine said, Metcalf whirled and opened fire. Verdine said he fired three times at Metcalf, but the man escaped into the third house, where Perline Wilson, 22, was shot to death and 10-month-old Vallisa Harby was wounded in the hip.

Authorities said Metcalf returned to the second house and apparently killed himself. A revolver was found beneath his body.

Authorities said all of the victims were related to Metcalf by marriage.

The Wilson girls were sisters of Mrs. Metcalf and the Hardy infant was the daughter of another Wilson sister, Mrs. Bobbie Wilson, who was not at home at the time.

CRASH NEAR SPAN CLAIMS 10TH VICTIM

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The toll is San Francisco's worst automobile crash rose to 10 Friday with the death of John Simer.

Simer 19, was one of nine young people riding in a mustang bound to Marin County when the car was struck by a speeding southbound sports car on the San Francisco approach to the Golden Gate Bridge July 11.

Six persons riding in the Mustang and three in the sports car were killed immediately.

Investigators from the Federal Highway Safety Division in Washington, D.C., blamed gross driver error on a substandard stretch of state highway for the crash. The dive of the sports car, said witnesses, accelorated to more than 100 miles an hour prior to he crash.

Two other passengers, Laurence Lucas, 17, and Carl Campbell, 21, remain hospitalized with injuries suffered in the accident.

31 Nabbed In Violation Of Curfew

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) —Sporadic vandalism and window smashing shattered a night as police sealed off this central New Jersey city under a state of emergency declared after three previous nights of violence.

Thirty-one persons, including eight juveniles, were arrested on charges of violating the curfew which Mayor Patricia Sheehan termed "effective."

One of those arrested, William Belk, 20, also was charged with resisting arrest and assaulting a policeman following a scuffle during which Belk and three policemen crashed through a barbershop window.

Police from seven communities, sent in to beef up the 81-man New Brunswick force to 110, were dismissed by 1:30 a.m. EDT today when quiet returned this community of 42,000 including 12,000 blacks and Puerto Ricans.

City spokesman John McDonald said the latest disorders were centered in the Hale Street and Commercial Avenue area off the main business section near the scene of Thursday night's violence which culminated with police firing five volleys of buckshot over the heads of 15 youths to disperse the group.

Roadblocks manned by helmeted, rifle-carrying police straddled major arteries to prevent entrance to the city by outsiders. The sale of liquor and gasoline in containers was banned after the curfew was imposed.

$200 A Party Drug Catering Ring Is Cracked

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—A narcotic ring which catered to drug parties for a flat fee of $200 was cracked with the arrest of four men, the Allegheny County Sheriff's office said. Thousands of dollars of drugs were confiscated.

Three of the suspects, arrested Friday at a city gasoline station, were charged with possession of drugs and dealing in narcotics and other dangerour drugs. A fourth man identified by sheriff's deputies as the "supplier" was arrested later in the day.

Confiscated were quantities of morphine, heroin, hashish, marijuana, amphetamines and drug paraphernalia, a deputy said.

The rng sold enough drugs for a party of 15 persons at a fee of $200, he said. The gas station was the headquarters.

Alioto To Seek Job Again, Paper Claims

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mayor Joseph L. Alioto will seek a second four-year term next year, the San Francisco Chronicle said in its Saturday editions.

The newspaper credited "reliable sources close to the mayor" as eliminating all doubts about the one-term mayor's immediate political future.

Burger Denies Appeal By Union On Pickets

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger denied yesterday an appeal by San Francisco Typographical Union 21 from a lower court order that held it in contemp in connection with picketing against Independent-Journal advertisers.

The appeal was from a contempt ruling handed down June 24 by Judge William T. Sweigert of U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

At the request of the National Labor Relations Board, Sweigert held that the union had violated his April 28 temporary injunction restricting picketing at seven Marin businesses and one in San Francisco which advertised in the Independent-Journal.

The NLRB said the union was using illegal signs to picket the advertisers.

In finding the union and four of its officers in contempt, Sweigert ordered the union to stop picketing I-J advertisers for 14 days. The union has complied with this part of the order, according to Nathan R. Berke, a San Francisco attorney representing the I-J.

If and when the union resumes picketing advertisers, Sweigert ruled, signs must clearly state it is the newspaper being struck and not the stores who advertise.

In addition to ordering the 14-day halt to picketing, Sweigert also directed the union to notify its members by mail that the union, its officials — Leon Olson, union president; John J. DeMartini, vice president; G. M. Bachich, secretary-treasurer, and Donald H. Abrams — had been found in contempt, post notices for 60 days at union halls admitting contempt and to pass such notices to advertisers for display to customers and to order union members not to engage in further illegal picketing.

These conditions were appealed to Burger after the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld them July 6.

Hundreds Expected For I-J Protest Rally

to felony assault on police officers.

The I-J was besieged by a mob which smashed almost every window in the building, spattered paint on wall, threw rocks, threw a stink bomb into the building and mounted a club attack on police who arrived to restore order.

San Francisco Typographical Union 21 has denied repeatedly any connection with this or any other acts of violence and vandalism which have occurred during almost every week of the strike — now in its 29th week.

The official directory in the May 1970 Typographical Bulletin, official publication of San Francisco Typographical Union 21, lists among its general officers John J. DeMartini, first vice president, and Donald H. Abrams, representative.

DeMartini was charged with felony assault on a police officer during the Feb. 14 riot, and Abrams was charged with assault and battery stemming from an incident which occurred when he was picketing on Feb. 4.

James R. Brocato, delegate to the Sonoma County Labor Council from the local, was arrested on June 3 and has been charged with conspiracy to break windows of I-J advertisers in San Rafael and Novato.

Dennis J. Crowley, arrested with Brocato and placed under the same charges, was listed as secretary - treasurer of the local's executive committee. Crowley had been arrested in November, 1966, for similar activities related to a strike against the Concord Transcript.

A planned major confrontation March 7 was different from the previous three confrontations in two respects — it was organized by a nonlabor group, Students for a Democratic Society, and it was without violence or vandalism.

Organizers held rallies at two San Francisco colleges and and passed out leaflets at at least four schools. SDS officials predicted a turnout of 1,000-1,200 students, and preparations for the rally were being made on the basis of their estimates.

As television cameramen, merchants standing by their shops and police — 100 on duty and 400 more from Marin and Southern Sonoma county jurisdictions on mutual aid standby — waited expectantly, about 50 young people gathered over an hour after the rally was to have begun, politely applauded rally speakers and quietly dispersed.

Today's rally had been advertised in leaflets as nonviolent, and San Rafael police have said they do not expect, but are ready for, violence.

Six motorized patrols were set to control traffic on the parade route along the Miracle Mile, and six to eight officers were to accompany the parade on foot. Fifteen to 20 officers have been stationed at intersections along the route for traffic control.

The only special precaution taken, according to Capt. Thomas L. Stephenson, deputy San Rafael police chief, was to request mutual aid units in Marin and Southern Sonoma to be available on standby in case riot conditions do occur.

Some merchants with businesses near the I-J building have made plans to be standing by their businesses — some of which are normally closed on Saturdays — to observe the rally and to do what they can to prevent damage should the expected crowd not be as peaceful as leaflets advertising the rally have predicted.

Whether the march and rally scheduled today will remain peaceful the people of Marin, the Independent-Journal and local law enforcement agencies were waiting to find out.

Jury Finds Pair Guilty Of Drug Charges In '68 Raid

A jury of seven women and five men in Marin Superior Court deliberated about three hours yesterday before finding two young men guilty of drug charges stemming from a raid on a plush San Anselmo house in November 1968.

Andrew Samuel Perri, 21, was convicted of arranging a sale of LSD to a narcotics agent, and Hamilton Bassett Henry, 23, of possessing LSD and marijuana for sale.

Perri, Henry and four other persons were arrested in a raid on an expensive home at 156 Crescent Road which officers said held a chemistry laboratory capable of producing LSD.

LSD and marijuana valued at $35,000 were seized by agents, who said that the San Anselmo house was linked to heavy drug traffic in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district.

Perri, a Haight-Ashbury resident, met an undercover San Francisco officer, Garrett McDonald, who lived for months in the drug culture under the name of "Moses," through an informant, identified only as "Dick."

According to McDonald, Perri agreed to arrange for the sale of $4,000 in LSD pills at $2 each by the San Anselmans. Perri testified in court that he had only agreed to lead McDonald to a fan who could sell him a large amount of marijuana.

He called this man "Chemist Tom" and said he was not present when he, McDonald and the informant arrived in San Anselmo.

Perri claimed he did not know the residents, but that they allowed him to use the bathroom, where he was arrested along with the occupants of the house.

Henry, who gave the Crescent Road address when booked into jail, denied in court yesterday that he had ever lived there. He did admit, however, that two letters found in a bedroom were written to him.

The cases of two other persons arrested in the raid have already been disposed of. Henry's sister, Christine Jane, who was 18 at the time of the arrest, was tried in juvenile court.

Peter Russell Robbins, who was 21, pleaded guilty in 1969 to being in a place where narcotics were used.

After telling Judge Hadden W. Roth of municipal court that he "had learned his lesson about drugs," the judge allowed Robbins to return to his Texas home to enter college.

Still awaiting trial are David Charles Hoye, 22, and Mary Theresa Rosenbaum, 21, who are charged with possessing LSD.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered Perri and Henry held in jail under $20,000 bail each until sentencing Aug. 14.

Thurber's Bail Set: $250,000

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bail for Frank J. Thurber, accused of the murder of Independent-Journal employee Allan W. Daly, was set at $250,000 during a municipal court hearing yesterday.

Thurber, who has been in city prison since July 16, was reported still in jail today.

The 45-year-old San Bruno resident, who belongs to an affiliate of the typographical union striking the I-J, was implicated by two juveniles also charged in the slaying.

Larry G. Rutherford, 16, and Richard A. Wamsley, 17, also of San Bruno, were identified by Mrs. Daly as the two who forced their way into the Daly's San Francisco home on July 4 and shot her husband in the abdomen after clubbing him with a pipe.

The youths are being held in juvenile hall pending a Wednesday hearing. A motion to transfer the case to superior court is expected to be made at that time by juvenile authorities.

Police allege Thurber gave the two boys Daly's name. The pair said they had been promised money for robbing Daly, but had not been paid, police said.

Thurber pleaded innocent July 17 to the slaying and additional charges of conspiracy, robbery, and burglary.

Homicide Inspector John McKenna indicated July 6 that San Francisco police would investigate whether "there was someone behind Thurber," but refused to comment on that investigation yesterday.

He said his office is preparing for a grand jury hearing, possibly Aug. 3.

Thurber, a member of Newspaper Mailers Union 18, is employed by San Francisco Newspaper Printing Co., which prints the San Francisco Chronicle and Examiner. The mailers' union is affiliated with San Francisco Typographical Union 21.

Municipal Court Judge George Maloney yesterday continued Thurber's preliminary hearing to next Friday.

minimum income of $1,600 plus food stamps and other aids for a family of four, has been severely criticized during committee hearings.

Committee chairman Russell Long, D-La., called the proposal a "massive and costly experiment" that would increase welfare costs by more than $4 billion a year and add 14 million Americans to the welfare rolls.

Others have charged the bill actually would destroy the incentive to work in some cases rather than stimulate it.

Richardson said, however, he would rate the chances of committee approval "better than even because the committee is really working" on the problems.

WELFARE

ly shifting an extra welfare burden on local property taxpayers to finance welfare. Other critics said recipients would be forced to give up their attendants because the maximum $300 monthly cash grant was cut in half to $150.

Attendant care is purchased by recipients of aid to the elderly, disabled and blind to hire persons to perform routine chores they are unable to do themselves. It involves no nursing.

Reagan said the cuts were aimed at "eliminating fraud and extravagance" in a program where he said costs "skyrocketed" with no corresponding year-to-year increase in the number of recipients. The cuts would have returned the program to last year's spending level, he added.

Davitt McAteer, a third-year law student at West Virginia University, was especially critical of Nixon's ouster in March of Bureau of Mines Director John F. O'Leary. The vacancy has not yet been filled.

"It seems clear that President Nixon is treating the miners of America with conscious disregard by allowing his administration to refuse to enforce the (health and safety) law by vascillating in the appointment of an independent, strong director for the Bureau of Mines," the report said.

Pinheiro Site Urged For Shopping Center

triangle and Nave Shopping Center neighborhoods.

With the Pinheiro property as a regional shopping center covering 68.1 acres, total downtown retail acreage would be 117.9, Sedway and Cooke visualize. About 41.3 acres would be devoted to office building use and 60 acres to other nonresidential activities, including pedestrian malls, offstreet parking, linear parks and the like, as well as to a civic center.

Novato's East Grant Avenue shopping area would be treated so as to preserve its historic small-town character with use as a specialty retail and entertainment area.

Grant Avenue from Seventh Street to Redwood Boulevard (now Highway 101), would become even more of a thoroughfare of office buildings. Redwood Boulevard between Olive and Grant Avenues would be similar. The existing, privately-developed Novato Downtown Shopping Center would continue to serve primarily as a community retail and service center.

A major transit terminal is proposed on Olive Avenue, and civic center expansion is seen to take in lands both east and west of the present center's block.

If the San Marin East property must be the focus of regional shopping center development, the general impression of the future city would remain much the same. The Pinheiro property then is seen as logical medium-density residential, apartment and motel sites. West Grant's office growth would be de-emphasized and Redwood Boulevard stressed for office buildings.

If Novato must give up on having any regional shopping center, the consultants think, the major concentration of subregional shopping center growth should be the Seventh Street-Grant Avenue area.

Now a cow pasture rising into oak-covered hills and merging into the residential and commercial strip along Highway 101, the Pinheiro ranch is recommended to be developed to provide an eventual 800,000 square feet of retail space, exclusive of supermarkets which the consultants think undesirable in a regional center.

Two or three major department stores would take up about half the leasable space; the rest would be divided among such uses as banks, smaller stores, restaurants, a theater and service shops.

Construction of an overpass across Redwood Boulevard to link commercial development eastward to the railroad is suggested.

Many pages of the report go into detailed proposals for the rest of the downtown area but changes needed if the regional center is shifted to San Marin East or elsewhere are not so detailed.

Where should Novato start, to realize its downtown?

Sedway and Cooke recommend four steps: Annexation and regulation of the Pinheiro ranch and neighboring lands, land assemblage — by condemnation if necessary — under a single ownership of the ranch and of 65 more acres to the east now under five ownerships; marketing the holdings, and development.

"The cooperation of (Frank Pinheiro) should be secured at the earliest possible time," the consultants urge. "Most desirably, all of the six parcels should be acquired in a single, concurrent purchase by a developer."

The merger of interests by the involved owners into a private corporation or syndicate" for negotiating such a sale is recommended, and the city is advised to call together the landowners to urge such action, the report says.

"Where the owners will not voluntarily sell or participate in the project, urban renewal eminent domain powers could be used."

"The proposed regional center is unique in many respects," the report notes. "Probably the most important . . . is the significance of the proposal to the city's future and . . . implications for the city's role . . .

The advantage of city or development corporation involvement is the clear availability of land to a developer. The disadvantage is the possible necessity for full disclosure of offers, proposals, etc. — a factor that could hurt the project."

creased costs 6 per cent and that enrollment was expected to rise 3 per cent while the district income would increase only 1 per cent. However, the board has learned since the argument was filed with election officials that the district would receive $312,924 more than expected because of a larger ending balance from 1969-70 and additional state aid.

Also in its official argument, the board said the district has the lowest income, tax rate and expenditure per pupil among Marin districts with at least 1,000 students.

Donald M. Van Dyke, chairman of Novato Citizens for Reasonable Taxation, wrote the argument against the increase. He claimed that while the district says assessed valuation will increase only 3 per cent in 1970-71, it actually will rise 8.3 per cent.

The district should revise operating and accounting policies to insure more effective use of income, Van Dyke argued. He felt a tax rate might be considered at a later date but not at present.

Polling places will be at these locations: Olive, Marion, San Ramon, Pleasant Valley, West Novato, Lu Sutton, Lynwood, Rancho, Pacheco and Loma Verde schools; Hill Junior High School; Novato and San Marin high schools, and the Chiosi residence at 4 Summers Avenue.

Notary Public

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The office of the Secretary of State today announced issuance of a notary public commission to Timothy J. Egan of 39 Vistawood Way, San Rafael, and to Clauda L. Perry of 247 D Street, Apt. 206, San Rafael.

Mobile Home Show Is Set Tomorrow

Three model mobile homes varying from 12 to 36 feet in width and up to 63 feet in length will be on public display all day tomorrow at the Marin Valley Mobile Country Club in Novato.

Mobile units feature many of the comforts and conveniences of conventional homes, including two and three baths, master bedroom, sunken tubs, separate dining room, sunken living rooms, garbage disposals, dishwashers, air conditioning and outdoor decks.

Marin Valley Mobile Country Club, a multi-million dollar, 160-acre development, is celebrating its grand opening after three years of construction. Eventually there will be 600 spaces, of which 165 are now ready for occupancy. The center offers a heated swimming pool, sauna baths, gymnasium and exercise room and other recreation facilities.

Man's Body Is Found In Bay

The body of a 23-year-old man was found floating near the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday by the crew of a fishing boat.

The San Francisco coroner's office tentatively identified him as Ronald A. Sorensen of Des Moines, Iowa. There was no indication that he had jumped from the bridge, the office said, adding that it was unable to immediately determine how long the body had been in the water.

Near the body when it was found shortly after 3 p.m. was a cardboard sign reading: "I need a place to crash."

Mill Valley Planners To Discuss Rezoning

The Mill Valley Planning Commission will meet Monday at 8 p.m. to consider a request by Trans-Marin Properties to rezone a parcel of land east of Miller Avenue and La Goma Street to permit construction of an apartment development.

Also on the agemda is a request by William E. Cullen for approval of a master plan for a 64-unit cluster development on Warner Ridge.

DRAMA REVIEW

Festival's 'Shrew' Is Delightful Romp

By KAY KSANDA

"I am as premonitory as she is proud minded, and when two such fires meet there is explosion." You know them. It is the romance of Katherina and Petruchio, the "Liz and Dick" of the 16th Century, with their two falls out of three courtship that has delighted theatergoers for almost 400 years.

The "Taming of the Shrew" has always been one of the best known and popular of Shakespearean comedies concerning the eternal battle of the sexes. In this Elizabethan farce — the second production of the current Marin Shakespeare Festival season — the playwright becomes the psychologist suggesting to the men of his time that they put their wives in their rightful place as vassals to their lords by a razor's edge of bullying, starving, shouting, and rewarding technique much like the training of a hunting hound; and it works! Success probably hinged then, as it might now, on the wisdom of the "trainer." However, the play has much of its persuasion in the portrayal of Petruchio as more male than mad, and the promise of his being a dashing shiek with her the captive. There is tempest within this comedy with two heroes, two heroins and multiple mixups.

However, this Petruchio, Robert Ferro, is more of a buffoon than a romantic figure. Katherina, played by Hope Alex Willis, could have probably won the match if she had wanted to show her hand, but she abided by the play. A more cavalier Petruchio, and a less awkward Gremio (either being more of a fool or a rogue) would have strengthened the "Shrew."

The action is fast, funny and full of wit. Many of the supporting actors showed timing and skilled technique in their cameos . . . The tailor who sobs his creative little heart out while knee deep in the very wet moat. . .The widow who pursues her intended with fierce galloping gusto. . .The delicious scene where the father of the two brides, Baptista, becomes suddenly acute like a professional in the supermarket check-out stand in the detailing of the dowery and estates exchanged.

Costumes are lush and colorful. The set revolves around a very large lump that sems to conceal a goodly group, and can become either a house or a countryside.

This festival is presenting "Taming of The Shrew," "The Tempest," and "Henry V" on alternate weekends through the summer. When else is there a theater more lovely than Forest Meadows? Even the stroll from the street into the trees past the 20th Century tennis players up to the bannered entrance, where the Madrigal Singers, are positioned is perfect. There is no bustle. The audience is relaxed and friendly as it files past the pages with coffee, donuts and oranges.

The "Shrew" will be presented again at 8 p.m.

Free Concert Of Chamber Music Slated

A free concert of chamber music, under the direction of violist Lucien Mitchell of Mill Valley, will be presented tomorrow at 2 p.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael.

This is the second of three concerts being arranged by the Marin Mental Health Association in cooperation with the American Federation of Musicians, Local 6.

The first concert, featuring the Dick Clark jazz musicians, and dancers from the Buchanan Street Workshop, was performed at the Marin Community Mental Health Center for patients and their families.

Sunday's program will include the Haydn Cello Concerto in D, featuring Jean Mitchell; Beethoven's Trio for Strings in E Flat, Opus 3, No. 1 and an oboe concerto with Raymond Duste as soloist. Other musicians in the group, who perform with the San Francisco Symphony and Opera and Marin Symphony, are Irvin Mautner and Michael Gerling, violins; Eugene Winkler, cello; Eleanor Biondi, oboe and Max Mazenko, French horn.

The James Dukey 16-piece jazz band will perform at the final concert on Aug. 9 at 2 p.m. at the Mill Valley Public Library.

Ex-Frogman Is Arrested For Nixon Threat

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI)— Secret Service agents have arrested a former Navy frogman with a history of mental disorders on charges of threatening to assassinate President Nixon.

State highway patrol headquarters in Sacramento Thursday issued an all-points bulletin for John M. Woolf at the request of the Secret Service. They said he was a weapons expert with a history of threatening other well-known persons.

He was seen at a service station parking lot north of town and kept under surveillance until federal agents arrived to make the arrest Thursday night.

He was held without bail.

Agents revealed no details about why Woolf was suspected or how he was picked up. They carried a search warrant for the mini-bus he was driving but would not reveal if they found anything.

Applicants Face Quiz By Parents

A general meeting to allow parents in the Sausalito School District to question candidates for two principal vacancies will be held Monday at 7 p.m. at Bayside School, Interim Supt. Robert E. Spain announced.

At least six candidates for the openings at Martin Luther King and central schools will be present, Spain said.

The regular meeting of the board of trustees scheduled for Monday has been canceled. The next board meeting will be held next Saturday at 9 a.m. at Bayside school, when the board will adopt the 1970-71 budget.

Mills Group To Play At Inverness Festival

The Mills College Performing Group will give a recital of contemporary chamber music at the Inverness Music Festival, Aug. 14-16 and 23 at St. Columba's Church and Amphitheater.

The group will be heard in the amphitheater at 3 p.m. on Aug. 15. Musicians performing will be pianist Naomi Sparrow, Oakland Symphony Concertmaster Nathan Rubin and clarinetist Donald O'Brien.

The program will consist of Ravel's Sonata for Violin and Piano, "Ile de Feu" by Oliver Messiaen, Four Pieces for Clarinet and Piano by Berg, Milhaud's Suite for Three Instruments and Bartok's Contrasts For Piano, Violin and Clarinet.

The group was established in 1963 by composers Lucian Berio, Morton Subotnick and Darius Milhaud to assure the performance of contemporary music and older music updated by changing contemporary perspectives.

Harpsichordist-pianist Nancy Bennett and Fae McNally, festival founder and music director, will kick off the festival at 8 p.m. Aug. 14 at the church with a recital of four-handed piano music by composers from the classic and romantic eras.

Their program will include Haydn's Symphony in C Minor, Fugues by Schubert and Mozart, "Jeux d'Enfants" by Bizet, Sloavnic Dances by Dvorak and "Allegro Brillante" by Mendelssohn.

The festival's two major events will be the two operas, Bartok's "Bluebeard's Castle" to be presented on Aug. 15 at 8 p.m. in the church and Smetana's "The Bartered Bride," to be performed on Aug. 16 and 23 at 2 p.m. in the amphitheater. On Aug. 16 at 8 p.m. in the church the Marin Arts Quartet will perform the Brahms Quintet for Clarinet and Strings and the Schumann Piano Quintet.

Reservations and further information are available by writing the Inverness Music Festival, Box 2, Inverness.

Poetry Experts To Be Given Tomorrow

Mill Valley actor Tom Leith will read excerpts from poety of E. F. Cummings, Francis Warner, William Blake and Shakespeare tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the Community Congregational Church, 145 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon.

The program is the final in a series celebrating "The Artists in Our Midst."

Courreges' Midi-Maxis Draw "Bravo!"

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — Andre Courreges, who invented the short skirt in 1963, joined the rest of the Paris designers today and abandoned it.

But the Courreges long winter collection proved he can design maxi-midi outfits that are just as fun and happy looking as his short dresses.

Courreges, who also started only show in Paris so far where the fashion journalists leaped to their feet to give him an ovation and cheers of "Bravo!"

Courrege, who also started the trouser suit fad in 1963, still showed some long trouser outfits but concentrated more on his clinging knitted all-in-one jump suits, or "cat suits", which he told the audience "are the solution to replace the pants suit in the future."

Courreges played it safe and sensible by showing outfits at various lengths. Many of his wool dresses edged with leather ended just below the knee a the tops of boots.

There were narrow maxi dresse, such as one winner in pale blue wool with narow white edging. Maxi skirts were open to the waist and worn over jump suits. There were midi suits with little short jackets in fake quilted leather with colored linings and wide a-line skirts.

"The clothes can either be worn long or short. I wanted the woman able to wear the clothes at her best length," Courreges told the audience.

The mannequins in short perky wigs danced to rock music while they showed Courreges' inexpensive ready-to-wear called "Hyperbole," expensive ready-to-wear called "Couture Future" and his custom clothes. He was the only designer to put ready made clothers into his collection during the fashion week.

The audience applauded the low-slung look of low loose belts. The familiar Courreges touches were there - welter seams, round buttoned tabs at hemlines and at high necklines, lots of white, oval pockets.

There were maxi raincoats in artificial leather of blazing yellow or purple with big floppy hats and boots in the same color.

And for more fun Courreges threw in see-through black chiffon blouses embroidered with modernistic flowers and a see-through dress which the mannequin braved in just a pair of panties. All the Courreges girls wore colored felt dog collars.

Since many older women would not feel comfortable in zippy Courreges clothes, there still is a large place in the fashion world for Alix Gres, one of the elegant designers.

Madame Gres never was happy with the short look and her salon with obvious relief today presented again her traditional dresses of shirred, tucked and draped jersey.

The rest of the fashion collections were divided on whether the long look should be "elegant" or "swinging."

INITIATOR of the trouser suit fad in 1963, Andre Courreges concentrated on this all-in-one jump-suit or "cat suit" in his winter collection yesterday. HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Three-Way Yak Sessions Create A Party Line Phoning Problem

DEAR HELEN:

My folks are on a telephone party line with two other families. Two of these women are best friends and they get on the horn and gossip for hours. They even have three-way conversations with another lady.

Sometimes my family has important calls, but if we ask these yakkers to hang up, they act insulted. What burns me, though, is that the few times I get the phone, one of them cuts in and makes remarks about teen-age talkers.

They also listen in and then, when they see me, they lecture me about boys.

My folks think a private line is too expensive. What can I do? — HORNED IN ON

DEAR HIO:

A private line costs only a few dollars more per month. Couldn't you get a new babysitting job to pay the additional cost? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This girl and I stopped dating because we felt we were too good friends to go steady. We talk together a lot and help each other with various problems.

Suddenly I realized what I should have known all along: When you're so comfortable and happy with a girl you consider her your best friend, you're in love with her, dope that I am.

How can I persuade her out of this "brother-fixation"? — TY

DEAR TY:

Stop acting like a brother. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

On the day school let out, our class sang The Star Spangled Banner. I put my hand over my heart, and the boys made fun of me.

It's getting so you're ashamed to say you're proud of being an American. If you don't call policemen "fuzz" or "pigs," you're a big nothing. If you say you're against rioting and flag-burning, you might as well slit your wrists.

I'm just a seventh grader and maybe too young to think about world affairs, but I'm worried. If we can't respect the flag, and have faith in the people who are voted in as leaders, and love — really love — our country, what chance have we got to survive? — STEVE

DEAR STEVE:

The majority of your generation is on your side — but they're the silent ones. Thanks for speaking out. Don't ever be shouted down. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Blind Dates For Sailors

CHATHAM, England—A Navy publicity stunt called "Rent-a-Jack" in which girls were encouraged to make blind dates with sailors has caused such an angry reaction from sailors' wives that an official complaint has been lodged with the defense ministry.

Mrs. Peggy Fenner, the new Tory member of Parliament for Chatham, where there is a big naval base, has written to Peter Kirk, the Navy minister and forwarded a petition signed by more than 80 enraged wives there. She assures Kirk that the wives are extremely concerned and urges him to ban the scheme in future.

The "Rent-a-Jack" scheme was launched while the Frigate HMS Ajax was berthed in Liverpool two months ago. Naval recruiting authorities publicized the ship's telephone number before it arrived and suggested that people shouldering up and ask sailors out to entertain them. They hoped that this would bring the navy some publicity and help to boost recruiting.

It was expected that a few families would respond by asking groups of sailors to their homes for tea. Instead hundreds of girls rang up to ask sailors out individually offering entertainment.

Demand was so heavy that HMS Ajax, which carries 260 sailors, ran out of available men within a few hours. So the scheme was extended to the Commando Carrier Albion, which arrived in Liverpool soon afterwards. The 1,000 men aboard were soon in great demand.

Designers On Dress Lengths

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

We read about the New York and European designers, but we treasure every word you give us. Please tell us once and for all, what we should do about lengths.

MRS. M.M.J.

DEAR MRS. M.M.J.

Thanks Mary, you are an ego builder, and I don't feel deserving of the compliment. However, please let me quote some of the most prominent designers that I personally spoke to at the New York press showings of top American designers.

Victor Costa: The best thing in the world for the average woman, he feels, is to get her mind off the hemline and picture herself as a glamorous somebody-else!

George Halley says "Elegance doesn't mean length, it means beautiful fabric and workmanship." George likes his women with skirts 1 inch above their knees. He says, "Women like them — men love them!"

Adele Simpson believes there is a new clothes language in which words like "inches, knees, lengths," are obsolete. Instead, "body, mind and eye, plus composition, fabric, color, place, person and purpose, this is the language fashion used to express the modern identity."

Pat Sandler says, "No blue knees this winter!"

Jerry Silverman says "1969 was the year of instant youth, the short dress! In 1970 the woman radiates seduction and provocation. It's the 'kneezy game,' play with it and see where it's right for you! Leg watchers will have to move a little faster, not east and west, but now with the slits in the skirts, it's north and south. This is the great age of femininity, the return of the real woman!"

I could go on and on, but the answer would still be the same. I am from the Midwest and would still rather middle-of-the-road it! If you never wore the real honest to goodness mini, then you will never wear the honest to goodness midi! Let's once and for all examine our own figure and wear the length that looks best for us, individually.

Let's face it, everyone naturally resists change of any kind. It is natural that we would resist and resent a change in fashion that we learned to love. But does anyone remember the outcry of rage when the mini was first introduced?

In closing, I for one can remember one of the first cars I owned. It was a 1941 Chevrolet. It was a beautiful, wonderful, grand car, but would I want to buy this same car now in 1970 — the answer is of course not! And so it is with anything in this world — nothing is constant, but change makes the world go round!

ZELMA CUNDIFF, Louisville, Ky., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her 'sewing tip.'

"When making a dress with those long darts that are shaped in the middle, I find it easier to start stitching in the middle and work to the small end or point of the dart. Then, turn the fabric in the other direction and overlap the stitching in the middle of the dart and stitch to the opposite end."

DEAR EUNICE,

Do you honestly think that dresses look as well after they have been laundered as they do if they have been dry cleaned? Every summer I eagerly fall for the line that this particular fabric is washable. I can truthfully say that I have never had perfect results.

MRS. M.K.

DEAR MRS. M.K.

I think you must analyze the purpose of the fabric you are buying and purchase accordingly. If you are considering sports clothes, in most instances you would want fabrics that are washable.

For your better clothes, I personally wouldn't think of washing them. Dry cleaning seems to preserve the original fabric finish and of course, the pressing is always more professional.

Some cottons, such as the hand screened ones, are much lovlier when washed. Once again I must repeat, if you are intending to wash any garment, be sure to shrink the lining fabric and any trimming first.

If you would like a free button gauge, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Mrs. Burke Heads Mental Auxiliary

Mrs. Robert W. Burke is the new president of the Marin Association for Mental Health Auxiliary.

Born in Tracy, Barbara Burke was graduated from San Jose State College and has been a Marin resident for 11 years. Her husband is a child psychiatrist. Canoeing, swimming and classic Asian art are her hobbies.

The auxiliary supports the association in its programs of community mental health such as its Creative Living Center, a new suicide prevention center, establishing a halfway house for persons who have recovered from mental illness, and its Children's Services Committee, which offers parent-teacher groups education on methods of treating emotionally disturbed children. This committee has also been studying the need for day care centers for children in Marin.

The auxiliary, which welcomes new members, is planning a fall luncheon at Maple Lawn in San Rafael.

Other officers are Mrs. Juhan Liikane, treasurer; and Mrs. Donald Fratus, luncheon chairman.

MRS. ROBERT BURKE

Joan Sevenair Is Engaged To M. P. Lillenvand

The announcement of the engagement of Joan Ellen Sevenair to Michael Peter Lillenvand, both of San Francisco, has been made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Berlenbach Jr. of Fairfax.

A graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, Joan attended the College of Marin and San Francisco State College. She is employed by Cushing, Cullinan, Hancock and Rothert in San Francisco. Paul E. Berlenbach of Fairfax is her brother.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David N. Lillevand of Alameda and brother of David N. Lillevand Jr. of Oakland. He is a graduate of the University of Santa Clara and the University of San Francisco Law School. He is employed by Orrick, Herrington, Rowley and Sutcliffe in San Francisco.

They are planning a Sept. 18 wedding.

Use Jewelry

NEW YORK (UPI) —Fashion designer Pauline Trigere says that every item of jewelry a woman owns should be put to good use. Accordingly, "rings for her fingers" double as clasp for scarves at the neck. Bracelets move on up to become armlets, worn on left or right arm in matching or graduated sizes.

Everything we learned in 17 years of building fine homes went into American Housing Guild at Lucas Valley.

We believe these magnificent new homes are, by far, the most significant values in Marin today—in space, livability, craftsmanship, location & features, like the unique conversation pit above. 1-level & 2-story homes with 3, 4, 5 & 6 bedrooms. To see furnished models, go north on Hwy. 101 to San Rafael, ½ mile beyond Terra Linda Turn-off; left on Lucas Valley Rd. Follow signs. 479-1761. American Housing Guild

As a home owner at Lucas Valley, you enjoy automatic membership in the beautiful Lucas Valley Community Center.

Located nearby, the center is regarded as one of the finest of its kind. It provides many recreation facilities for you and your family. There is an over-sized swimming pool with surrounding grass areas for sunning, a children's wading pool, play yard, jungle gym, swings, sand box, slides, and much, much more. And the lovely tree-studded Lucas Valley Creek along the perimeter of American Housing Guild's Lucas Valley homes is there to be enjoyed in all seasons.

Expansion Of Resort Area Is Due Restudy

Proposed expansion of trailer and campsites at Lawson's Landing near Dillon Beach will get closer scrutiny from the Marin County Planning Commission Monday at the Civic Center.

The planning commission meeting will start at 9 a.m. in the commission chambers on the third floor.

Merle and Walter Lawson want to add 55 campsites, 140 more trailer sites, and install a marina for 200 to 250 boats on their 140-acre waterfront property.

Last week, the Marin County Board of Supervisors declared that existing camp and tax trailer sites should be improved to county standards before any more facilities are added.

Planning commissioners will also decide whether developer Harley Ussery should be allowed to put in 18 apartments on Pelican Hill just south of Circle Drive in Tiburon.

Grosvenor Fearon wants to divide his 16,000-square-foot lot at the corner of Murray Avenue and Fern Road in Larkspur into two buildings sites.

R. J. Tikker, who owns a lot in Santa Venetia on North San Pedro Road west of Meriam Drive, wants rezoning from residential to administrative-professional so that the California Teachers Association may build an office building.

A controversial boys school in Kentfield, sought by Katharine Branson School, will get another hearing at 2:30 p.m. Katharine Branson wants to add a boys' campus on 10.5 acres at 217 Laurel Grove Avenue in Kentfield. The site is now used as a novitiate by the Dominican Fathers.

Residents of the area lodged a mass protest against the proposal at the July 13 hearing before the planning commission.

Guilty Plea To Reduced Count In Holdup Case

Paul Robert Reynolds, 21, of no known address, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced charge of assault with a deadly weapon against a Mill Valley man on July 11.

He had earlier been accused of three counts of armed robbery and illegal entry stemming from the holdup of Kenneth M. Stevens, 21, of 85 Tamalpais Avenue, and his two guests.

Reynolds and two other men reportedly forced Stevens and his guests into a bedroom, bound and tied them and took $1,235.

A co-defendant, Roy Morgan Jr., 22, of Marin City is due to have a preliminary hearing on the charges Aug. 3. The third man is still being sought by authorities.

Reynolds is to appear in superior court Wednesday for setting of a sentencing date on the felony conviction.

Plea Date Set In Drug Case

Daryl James Moran, 20, of Santa Venetia, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing marijuana and being under the influence of heroin when arrested Monday at his home.

His case was continued to Tuesday for entry of plea.

Drug agents who went to his home with a search warrant said they found two bags of suspected pot as well as three cigarettes. They also said they found empty balloons and other paraphernalia with suspected heroin residue. Moran told them he had a $50-a-day heroin habit, agents said.

AND SUDDENLY YOU'RE IN BUSINESS MAKING GOOD MONEY
(Recession Proof)

We're proud to talk about our business. It's fascinating. Dynamic. Appeals to the small investor. No experience necessary. With very little money he or she can achieve financial satisfaction — quickly or moderately. It's yours to decide.

Ours is a vending machine program. The best. We establish route locations. Provide finest line of snack items. We train, counsel, guide, hold your hand until you're firmly entrenched. No experience necessary. Just honesty, integrity, willingness to listen, work and give good service.

You need a car and at least $600 for minimum investment strictly for equipment and inventory. No fee or extra of any kind required. Be ambitious and willing to expand.

Vigorous 4-billion plus recession proof business. Cash sales. No credit risks. Works for you day and night — even while you sleep. Quick turnover. Original investment can be returned in short time.

Requires only 6 to 8 hours per week of serious attention. Like getting retirement pay, annuity or pension — only better!

If you're serious, sincere, let's talk. Letter preferred, giving name, address, phone, and sufficient references to verify. Write to:

Ussery Industries, Inc.

CITY OF BELVEDERE
NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN of a public hearing before the City Council of the City of Belvedere on August 3, 1970, upon the recommendation of the Belvedere Planning Commission that Ordinance No. 88 (New Series), the Zoning Ordinance, be amended to reclassify a portion of the R-2 Zone to a C-1 Zone.

The Planning Commission submitted its recommendation in accordance with Chapter 24, Section 24-21 of the Code of the City of Belvedere, to amend Section 2 (d)(IV) of Ordinance No. 88 (New Series), the Zoning Ordinance, to reclassify the following property from an R-2 Zone to a C-1 Zone: Assessors Parcel No. 60-082-33 located between Cove Place and Beach Road and contiguous to the Belvedere-Tiburon city limits boundary.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the Hearing on said recommendation will be held at 8:00 p.m. on Monday, August 3, 1970, in the Council Chambers of the City Hall, 450 San Rafael Avenue, Belvedere, and that all interested persons may appear and be heard thereon.

Discrimination?

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Alcoholism can be grounds for divorce in Kentucky, but drug addiction cannot.

Proposed Dinner Leads To Felony Assault Charge

A 63-year-old Chinese butler has been arrested on a felony assualt charge after an altercation with his Sausalito employer over a proposed dinner party.

Way Lim Li, of San Francisco, was released from Marin County Jail without bail Thursday and is to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday.

Sausalito police said that Li and his boss, Ronald C. MacDonald of 41 San Carlos Avenue, got into an argument over a dinner party MacDonald was planning and, according to MacDonald, the butler threatened him with a bread knife and two eight-inch Chinese cleavers.

MacDonald had a small cut on his finger, according to police, but Li said that his employer had cut himself.

Record Dutch Brew

AMSTERDAM (UPI) —Beer drinking in the Netherlands reached a record in 1969. Government statistics report the average Dutchman drank about 53 quarts of beer last year, compared with about 47 quarts in 1968, the highest in a hundred years of beer drinking statistics.

The Population Center Of Marin

Although a few undeveloped areas of trees and parched grass are visible in this aerial photo, this is the most populated area of Marin. Each weekday morning, thousands of commuters from communities flanking H i g h w a y 101 flood onto the highway southbound for San Francisco. The commuters who shun the highway, which runs the length of the photo, may take the less crowded Richmond-San Rafael Bridge out of the picture to the right. Terra Linda and Santa Venetia are visible at the top of the photo. San Rafael lies just west of the bridge access. Nestled in the foothills west of San Rafael are San Anselmo, Fairfax, Ross and Kentfield. The College of Marin in Kentfield stands out above the left wing of the large cloud. Hidden by the cloud are parts of L a r k s p u r and Corte Madera and San Quentin State Prison. A spine of hills running from the foot of Mount Tamalpais (left center) to Highway 101 separates Corte Madera and Mill Valley. The hills run through the large barren area just west of the P a r a d i s e Cay development on the bay shoreline (left). Parts of Tiburon Peninsula and Strawberry Point, separated by a section of Richardson Bay, are visible at the bottom of the photo. All the communities shown feed the stretch of h i g h w a y running down the middle of Marin's population core.

Golden Gate Span Needs Repair, N.Y. Engineer's Figure $355,000

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A New York engineering firm that traditionally captures contracts with the Golden Gate Bridge District yesterday proposed a $355,000 contract to engineer repairs and improvements to the span.

Ammann and Whitney made the proposal at the invitation of the district after the firm recommended $10.5 million in work on the bridge over the next decade. The estimate included $7,090,000 for new suspender ropes.

The firm made its recommendations after a two-year inspection at a cost of $490,000.

District directors referred the proposal to the building and operating committee for its review.

Other needed work includes development of methods to stop corrosion of the bond between the roadway slab and the supporting steel members, and repair of the lateral bracing in the San Francisco approach.

The Golden Gate Bridge District board also:

FARES — Set the basic one-way fare on the Sausalito ferryboat at 50 cents, and 25 cents more for the feeder bus service from Mill Valley.

FEEDER — Set a meeting of the joint transportation and finance-auditing committee for 9:30 a.m. Thursday in toll plaza offices to decide how to provide feeder bus service to the ferry.

TERMINAL — Leased the former heliport next to the Ferry Building in San Francisco as a ferryboat terminal for $450 a month.

SIDEWALK — Referred to committee a proposal by director Stephan C. Leonoudakis that a moving sidewalk be planned between the San Francisco ferryboat landing and the rapid transit station to be built at the Embarcadero.

BART — Referred to committee a suggestion by former director William C. Blake of San Francisco that the district form a committee to work with the Bay Area Rapid Transit District on future transit planning.

GRANT — Authorized Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring and "any directors who may wish" to go to Washington to push for federal approval of the district's application for a grant to buy buses.

BIDS — Received nine bids to furnish catering service aboard the district's ferryboat, with the percentage of gross revenue to be paid to the district ranging from 6 to 21.7 per cent, the latter bid from John Cosmos of San Francisco.

REPORT — Set a special board meeting for 10 a.m. Aug. 5 in toll plaza offices to receive a report from the district's naval architect, Philip F Spaulding, on a long-range water transportation system. The $55,000 report originally was due in May.

SUICIDES — Set a meeting of the special committee on suicide prevention at 2 p.m. Aug 5 to review steps being taken to reduce suicides from the bridge.

$1,500 PROMOTION

Hoopla To Herald Revival Of Ferryboat Across Bay

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A funny little German band, an antique car parade and free commemorative coins will herald the revival of ferryboat service by the Golden Gate Bridge District — but not the "official ferryboat captains hats" dreamed up by one imaginative director.

Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco envisioned a special page in local newspapers that could be torn out and folded into the hats — with the wearers entitled to half fare on the first day of service next month from Sausalito to San Francisco.

Director Lowell Edington of Napa County, observing the board meeting was far from San Francisco, told Leonoudakis, "You don't think as well up in this country air."

Leonoudakis could not even get a second to his proposal, and instead settled on a $1,500 appropriation to promote the big day.

5,000 commemorative coins are to be stamped at no cost to the district by "some banks," Leonoudakis said. Director Carl Daubeneck of Mendocino County, a banker, said he would "hand out signature cards to open accounts at the same time."

Director Joseph E. Sheeks of Belvedere suggested the parade include "some antique buses. I think I know where we can find some," he said. Several directors murmured, "Yeah, from Greyhound."

'Colonel' Can Lick All Five Fingers Again

Colonel Sanders has his fingers back, according to one of the youths who allegedly kidnaped him from his San Rafael fried chicken establishment Monday.

Daniel L. Bufano, 18, of 25 Edgehill Drive, said he and four others caught by police Monday on suspicion of taking the $500 statue from 555 Second Street had repaired the three broken fingers the colonel suffered when taken Monday.

He said the chicken chain had agreed not to press charges.

Caught with Bufano were Rex B. Powell, 16, of 15 Malone Lane; James D. Hill, 16, of 120 Edward Avenue, Vernon D. Kleimo, 17, of 9 Linda Avenue, and Gary Garvin, 18, of 125 North San Pedro Road.

Colonel Sanders was recovered in North San Rafael less than an hour after he was taken when the five led police to a hiding place in a junk yard.

Pot Case Is Dismissed On Binocular Use

A charge of cultivating marijuana against George Francis Curtis, 22, of Fairfax, was dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court. The judge ruled that an officer's use of binoculars to identify a pot plant in a window was an invasion of privacy.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. ruled that a search warrant issued after an officer viewed the plant in an upstairs window was invalid on another ground, also.

He said that the residence in which Curtis lives is divided into two apartments, with Curtis and his sister occupying the upstairs one, and additional marijuana plants found in the back yard were not linked directly to the Curtises.

The case of the sister, Mary Kathryn, 19, arrested along with her brother on April 20, was tried in juvenile court, where proceedings are not made public.

Employee Pay Hikes Again Before Council

The Tiburon City Council once again will consider a five per cent boost in city employees' salaries when it meets Monday at 8 p.m. at city hall. The council reviewed the matter, proposed by its finance and administration committee, at its meeting Monday, but took no action.

Also on the agenda is consideration of rezoning the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way to a park zone to permit a pedestrian and bicycle pathway.

Marijuana Case To Juvenile Court

The case of Janie Alice Gallagher, 18-year-old visitor from Pennsylvania charged with marijuana possession, yesterday was transferred to Marin Juvenile Court.

Miss Gallagher was arrested May 28 in a Mill Valley residence where marijuana plants had been seen growing outside. Drug agents said she had half a lid of suspected grass on a bedside table.

Drainage Master Plan Due Discussion

The Bel Aire Flood Control Zone Advisory board will continue discussion of a drainage master plan at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Bel Aire School.

The area was plagued with floods last winter.

Rug, Carpet Ads Deceptive, Says Business Bureau

Some rug and carpet advertising in the Bay Area is deceptive, according to a study made by the San Francisco Better Business Bureau.

The study did not record how widespread the problem was, but a bureau spokesman said it was "enough for us to be concerned."

He said advertising misrepresented the quality of carpet; used the term "FHA Approved," although the Federal Housing Administration does not allow use of its name to endorse products; advertised sale items without dealers having ample stock of the products, and claimed "lowest prices" and similar claims, although they are "practicaly impossible to substantiate," according to the BBB.

The bureau has issued a set of guidelines for future rug and carpet advertising copy.

Chavez's Words In Lettuce Fuss

SALINAS (UPI) — Cesar Chavez wants the Salinas Valley lettuce growers to negotiate future labor contracts with his United Farm Workers Organizing Committee.

Friday he fired off telegrams to six grower associations requesting a meeting "at an earliest possible time."

"Our union members feel strongly that it is time that they cease to be discriminated against in labor-management relations because most of them happen to be Chicano, Filipino or black," he wrote.

"Making a demand on the growers while the Teamsters strike was on would have been taking unfair advantage of the employers."

He said he hoped to hear from the growers by Monday.

"WHERE SERVICE IS A MATTER OF PRIDE"

All-Star Game Saved, But Grid Strike Continues

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The College All Star Game in Chicago on July 31 has been saved, but the 26 National Football League owners and the Players Association still have to agree on a contract within the next week to preserve the pre-season schedule.

The Players Association relented Friday night and agreed to allow the Kansas City Chiefs to begin practicing for the charity game in Chicago against the collegians, but John Mackey, president of the association, said the Chiefs will disband after the game if a contract agreement is not reached with the owners.

"At no time has the NFL Players Association intended to jeopardize the scheduled football game between the Chiefs and the All Stars," Mackey, an end for the Baltimore Colts, said. "Earlier this week, in the interest of playing the All Star game, the NFL owners asked the NFL Players Association whether or not we would allow Kansas City to go into training camp if they were to agree to lift the lockout imposed on the Chiefs.

"At that time," he added, "we did not respond affirmatively to the inquiry for two reasons: 1. Coach Stram (of the Chiefs) stated publicly that the Chiefs could play the game if his team began organized practice by Saturday; 2. The players felt strongly that this dispute would be settled by Saturday and now Saturday is upon us."

The remaining 25 teams in the NFL will continue their strike, however, and the other owners will continue to lock out the veteran players. The two sides met in Philadelphia on Friday for their first discussions with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service after two changes in the site. It was the first time in 10 days that the two sides had sat down together to discuss their differences, which amount to $11.4-million in pension benefits.

With the first exhibition games scheduled a week after the College All Star Game, the owners have said they have considered cancelling the entire season if a satisfactory agreement is not reached.

"It would be unfeasible to play the All Star Game without the veterans," said Lamar Hunt, owner of the Chiefs and American Conference president, "but it wouldn't be impossible to play the rest of the season without them. After all, it wasn't so long ago that we started from scratch and we could do it again. We also have considered the possibility of cancelling the entire season."

The Players Association polled its 1,259 members before deciding to allow the Chiefs to practice for the All Star Game. The poll came after the owners offered to lift the lockout for Kansas City.

Tex Schram, president of the Dallas Cowboys and head of the owners' negotiating committee, said, "Obviously the Kansas City players wanted to play the game and they prevailed." Jim Tyrer, player representative for the Chiefs, denied the team brought pressure to force the All Star Game although each of the team's players will get one-fourteenth of his annual salary from the game. However, he said the team requested permission to play in it.

Mackey explained that the Players Association agreed to let the Chiefs practice because they had earned the honor by winning the Super Bowl under the old contract. He also added that the game is considered a good cause for charity.

"We would like to clearly state our position and give you the reasons why this decision was reached," Mackey said. "We all agree that the All Star Game is for a worthy charity and that the tradition of the game should continue simply because it is really a package situation that goes with the world championship each year. Since this came about with Kansas City because of the Super Bowl it does not fall under the new negotiation now being held and should not affect in any way the NFL owners and the NFL Players Association negotiations."

Mackey added, "We haven't gone far enough in the negotiations to be optimistic or pessimistic. We hope to get it resolved so that everyone can play. It's not that I don't want to talk about it, but I'm not going to say anything that would hurt us. I'm playing it hour by hour."

All Lloyd Ruby Needs Is A Little Luck

Lots of guys haven't won the U.S. Open. Lots of guys haven't won Indianapolis. Lots of guys have never played in a world series.

But, when the golfer is Sam Snead, who has won a hundred other tournaments, including all the major ones, it becomes a crime against history. Particularly, when you know Snead was second in the U.S. Open four times, including one playoff.

And when the ballplayer is Ernie Banks, who has hit more than 500 homers in 17 seasons, won the league MVP award twice in a row, has made more than 2,500 hits, and has 1,500 runs batted in, and was the league's best fielder at two positions in his career, someone should be prosecuted.

And, for Lloyd Ruby not to win Indianapolis is an historic outrage on the order of Man O' War never winning the Kentucky Derby, William Jennings Bryan never sitting in the White House — and, did you know that Babe Ruth never won the MVP award?

Don't Have To Be Great To Win

Lots of worse drivers than Lloyd Ruby have won the Indianapolis 500 — just as lots of bogey-shooters have won the U.S. Open, and lots of Triple A ballplayers have starred in World Series. And lots of political hacks have sat in the White House.

Defeat is easier to take for the under-confident, the under-skilled, the over-anxious or the over-rated. But no one ever hit or caught a baseball with more elan than Ernie Banks, no one ever swung at a golf ball with the pure, flowing grace of a Sam Snead — and no one ever tooled an open-wheeled racing car with more nerve and reflexes than Richard Lloyd Ruby of Wichita Falls, Texas.

Ruby led the 1966 Indy race for 217½ miles. An eight-minute pit stop to fix an oil leak took that race from him when he was blackflagged (told to park it) at the end of the 152nd lap. That was the year 13 cars piled up at the start, and Graham Hill, to his considerable surprise, was adjudged the winner. "I never passed a car all day!" he marveled to Ruby, who had passed dozens. Ruby had a lap lead with 48 to go. He was hardly surprised when he took a plane to Milwaukee after the race that night and it crashed.

Fastest Lap In Competition

In 1968, Ruby led Indy from the 57th lap till the 89th lap, regained the lead on the 166th lap. He had a 23-second lead on the ultimate winner, Bobby Unser, when he had to pit at the 175th lap. His clocking for one lap was 168.666 m.p.h., the fastest ever in competition up to that time.

But it was in '69 that Ruby really must have felt God was picking on him. He was leading the race, and the second car, Mario Andretti's, had made a 40-second pit stop. In auto racing, this is like topping a drive or taking a called third strike. So Ruby made a routine pit stop on his 106th lap. He had been gaining a second every three laps on Andretti and knew that Mario had to slow down periodically to keep his car from overheating.

"I could have won the race reading a book," Ruby recalls ruefully. But, at Indy lately, cars have two gas tanks. When Lloyd saw the hose jerk out of the forward tank in the pit, he lurched back toward the track. Alas, the rear hose was still connected. It ripped his tank fittings, tore a hole in his car, flooded the pit with gasoline, and Lloyd had lost again.

Exploded Six Engines At Indy

This year, he exploded six engines in practice and qualifying but finally put his red, white and blue Silent Majority Special in the 25th spot in the 33-car grid. By the 22nd lap, Ruby's Old Glory colors were already in seventh place. He had roared up to third by the 50th lap. But the car was glowing like an open hearth ingot by now, and, at the 54th lap, it was burning like an oil well fire. "Shel," Ruby said to owner Carrol Shelby, "I'm beginning to think I couldn't win this thing if I was the only one in it." "Another minute, and they could have lit cigarets off you," Shelby told him.

You don't have to know cam shafts to know Lloyd Ruby is a great driver, just the alphabet. In 10 years in Indy, he's been eighth, eighth, third, 11th and 11th and has led the race five times and, if you discount the five pit stops in 1968 (for a total of nine minutes and 30 seconds), and allow reasonable pittings, Ruby's running time was 21.93 seconds faster than the winner.

Ruby will be attempting to qualify for the California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway on Sept. 6. He'll be the one being followed around by a black cloud — the "Joe Bsfllk Special."

Junior Tennis Champs Crowned

Bob Klyce and Claudia Wood won the top division championships yesterday in the finals of the annual Marin County Junior Tennis Tournament at Albert Park, San Rafael.

Klyce defeated Gary Walters 6-2, 6-0 while Miss Wood downed Meredith Mills 6-1, 6-1 in the age 18 and under division finals.

Klyce also teamed with Norm O'Neill to whip Eugene Kilgore and Mike Gomez 6-2, 6-2 for the doubles crown.

Although he missed his shot at the 18 age crown, Gary Walters collected the 16 title with a 6-2, 6-2 win over John Beritzhoff.

In other boys' singles finals, Henry Jacobson defeated Marcus Robinson, 9-7, 7-5 in age 14, Gary Stansbury beat Jim Altamirano 6-3, 6-2 in age 12 and Noel Dockstader topped George Salladin 6-1, 6-2 in age 10.

In the only other boys' doubles match, age 14 and under, Stansbury and Robinson outgunned Eric Raney and Grant Grinnell, 6-4, 6-4.

In other girls' singles play, Missy Kaufman edged Laura Lee 8-6, 6-3 in age 16, Pat Gomez downed Carmelita deUrioste 6-4, 7-5 in age 14, Diane DeMartini edged Lisa Beritzhoff 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 in age 12 and Alexandria Beritzhoff defeated Debra Hill 6-2, 6-3 in age 10.

Doubles finals saw Debbie O'Neill and Stella Perone rally to beat Laura Lee and Seve Dix 1-6, 6-2, 6-4 in age 16 and Diane DeMartini and Lisa Beritzhoff down Ellen Sharkov and Nita Gariaeff 6-0, 6-0 in age 14.

The tournament was sponsored by the Independent-Journal which presented trophies to the finalists.

San Rafael Battles Marinwood In Final

San Rafael National League's Bank of Marin was to meet Marinwood's White Sox this afternoon at Castro Field, Santa Venetia for the championship of the Marin County Little League Team Champions Tournament.

Those teams advanced through semifinals last night, San Rafael nipping Hamilton-Loma Verde Pirates 2-1 in a 10-inning thriller at Novato Rancho while Marinwood was breezing past the Strawberry Ravens 10-1 at Castro Field.

Bank of Marin relief pitcher Dave Menary, who held Hamilton-Loma Verde scoreless in the top of the 10th inning, won his own game in the bottom of the 10th with a single that scored starting pitcher Steve Colombo with the winning run. Colombo had doubled.

The two teams battled scorelessly through seven innings, each scoring a run in the eighth.

In the other semifinal, Gordon Hodgson pitched a one-hitter and aided his own cause with a two-run home run in Marinwood's easy victory. Paul DeMattei and Paul Herefeld were other batting stars for the winners.

Big Three Enter Napa Tourney

NAPA (UPI) — Professional golf's three top all-time money winners have signed to compete in the $150,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament in Napa. Tourney chairman Vern Peak said Friday that Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and defending Kaiser champion Jack Nicklaus will be on hand for the competition Oct. 22-25 at Silverado.

Mill Valley Warner Football Signups

Signups are now open for the 1970 Mill Valley Pop Warner football program. Boys between the ages of 10 and 14 who weigh less than 125 pounds and live in the Tamalpais High School district are eligible for the Tamalpais Junior Indians which begin practice Aug. 8.

Signups can be made by contacting head coach Casey Silewicz at 11 Somerset Lane in Mill Valley.

Haves Versus Have-Nots In Pro Golf Team Tourney

LIGONIER, Pa. (UPI) — A battle between the haves and the have-nots developed today in the third round of the $200,000 national four-ball golf championship.

On one side were the haves, the veterans, big winners whose successes are legendary, tied for the 36-hole lead at 128, 14-under-par: The teams of Arnold Palmer-Jack Nicklaus and Sam Snead-Gardner Dickinson.

On the other side, one stroke behind were two teams of have-nots, the rabbits, players still searching for fame: The teams of Jim Colbert-Dean Refram and Dave Eichelberger-J.C. Goosie. The tournament, only team event on the PGA tour, became a dogfight Friday when Palmer and Nicklaus were bothered by inaccurate driving and inconsistent putting and came back to the field with a 67 after their opening-round 61.

Dickinson and Snead, meanwhile with Dickinson, consistently around the pin with his approach shots, sinking seven birdie putts—produced a 61 of their own.

Colbert-Refram and Eichelberger-Goosie both had 65's Friday to go with first-round 64's that left them one stroke ahead of two other teams—Miller Barber-Don January and Bruce Crampton-Orville Moody.

OLD FOLKS

Snead, 58, and Dickinson, 42, whose combined age of 100 makes them the oldest team in the Tournament, have teamed together all three previous times the four-ball event was held and never finished lower than eighth. Friday, Snead explained why.

"We get along very well together," he said. "We know each other's game. We never get hot at each other."

Dickinson called it "beautiful playing with old Sam for a partner.

"It doesn't matter what club he hits, he's liable to knock it cold stone right by the hole. You never know when it's going to happen, so you just keep patting him on the shoulders and telling him to go," Dickinson said.

The Snead-Dickinson combination produced six straight birdies from the sixth through 11th holes that made up their six-stroke deficit after the first round.

TO THE POINT

Palmer and Nicklaus analyzed their difficulty in one sentence.

"Neither one of us was very good," Jack said.

Of Palmer and Nicklaus' first 10 tee shots, only three found the fairway. Nicklaus missed short putts at the first two holes, Palmer missed one at No. 6 and later Palmer three-putted at No. 17.

"I don't think we played nearly as well as we did yesterday, that's obvious," Nicklaus said. "But had we putted like we putted yesterday, with the number of short putts we missed today I don't think our score would have been much different — even though we didn't both play as well."

BRILLIANT CAREER

Snead has won 132 tournaments in his brilliant career, and he and Dickinson have combined career earnings of more than $875,000. Palmer, the top money winner of all time, and Nicklaus have combined earnings of more than a million.

George Archer and Bobby Nichols, who won in 1968—last time this tournament was held—were at 131, along with Bob Charles and Brucke Devlin.

At 132 were Lee Trevino-Jess Whittenton, Jim Grant-Hugh Royer and Chris Blocker-Howie Johnson.

FISH AND GAME

Interesting Things Gathered At Meets

By AL GIDDINGS

This past week I attended several meetings and heard some interesting things. One meeting at Point Reyes was held with ranchers, and personnel from Bay Area Regional Water Pollution Control Board, Department of Fish and Game, Water Quality, Health Department, and Dept. of Agriculture. The topic in general was: Keeping wastes out of streams.

Dan Murphy of the Regional Water Pollution Control Board gave a good background of Marin County dairies. There are approximately 145 dairies in Marin County, 200 in Sonoma County. At present from these dairies there are about 700 tons of waste per day. Persons now discharging any waste other than in a public sewer are required to file for a waste permit. The Regional Water Pollution Control Board may specify conditions and set standards.

They may also issue a cease and desist order to any waste discharger or pollutor. Violations of the cease and desist orders are subject to the Porter-Cologne Act, a new water pollution control act that became effective Jan. 1, 1970. A pollution in violation of this act may result in fines up to $6,000 per day if the pollution continues.

SLIDES were shown and a talk given on new cleanup and anti-pollution methods being used on many dairies. One important item discussed was the new methods of disposing of the 12 pounds of waste solid per cow. Formerly 1,000 pounds of water was used making a total waste product of 1,012 pounds. New methods of dry cleaning with the use of less water may be an important new procedure with much less waste products to contend with for the rancher.

At another meeting in Sonoma County, the Department of Agriculture had representatives give the new facts in the use of chemicals and insecticides. Some of the facts were: Licenses are now needed to sell pesticides. Salesmen of pesticides must be registered. DDT in Sonoma County is being eliminated except for homeowners; they have until Jan. 1, 1971, to use what's on hand, then the ban is complete. The product 245T is being banned in areas where it can get into waterways. Some phosphates stronger than DDT are now being used, but the residual effect is very short, where as in DDT it lasted for years.

I ALSO ATTENDED a meeting at which the Peripheral Canal was discussed. The gist of this meeting was that most of the people who are against the Peripheral Canal are so because they believe the canal is the California Water Plan. Not so! The California Water Plan is a plan voted by the people 10 years ago. It is a plan whereby water is to be sent to Southern California areas. Since 1967, and at present, approximately 4,000 cubic feet per second is going southward. Recently, the Tracy pumps were activated to send 7,000 cubic feet per second south.

This caused a flow reversal in the River; in other words, the streams flowed backwards or uphill from the suction effects of the pumps. Small fish, salmon and bass, etc. were sucked into the pumps with this rate of flow. Eventually 18,000 cubic feet per second is slated to go through the pumps. In a study over the past nine years, the state and federal governments have come up with the Peripheral Canal as the one method of permitting the California Water Plan to go into effect without hurting the environment and ecology of the Delta.

THE PERIPHERAL Canal will be 43 miles long, 400 feet wide and 30 feet deep. It will be built to take water directly to the pumps, but it will take water, 22,000 cubic feet per second, from the Hood area of the Sacramento River, far enough up the river so there will be no flow reversals. It will carry the water on a separate route to the Tracy pumping plants so that the operation of the plant will not effect the flows in the delta area. Also along the 43-mile route of the Canal water releases will be made at eleven points along the way in waterways flowing downward and into the Sacramento River.

These waterways will eventually be improved by continual new added flows. The Fish and Game Department in its studies feels that the Peripheral Canal meets all the criteria essential for a positive flow to the sea, and an enhancement of fish and wildlife. If the water plan is fully implemented without the canal to insure proper intake procedures, proper releases at important points and proper seaward flows then the striped bass, salmon, sturgeon and other anadromous fish runs will be seriously impaired.

The Department of Water Resources had recently made a 20-minute film for public use by clubs, etc. Interested persons can write or call Frank Hubbard, Dept. of Fish and Game, Ferry Building, San Francisco.

PACKING HIS BAGS

Lanky righthanded Boston Red Sox pitcher Jim Lonborg cleaned out his locker in the Red Sox dressing room after holding an informal press conference yesterday where he told reporters that stories saying he would retire or refuse to report to the Red Sox minor league team in Louisville, where he was ordered, were in error. The 1967 Cy Young Award winner said he would join Louisville at the earliest opportunity. (UPI Telephoto)

Giants All Willies In Split

MONTREAL (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants have got the Willies, and they couldn't do without them.

McCovey and Mays provided the stumbling Giants with an 8-7 win Friday night over Montreal before the Expos came back to drop the Giants in the nightcap, 7-5.

McCovey knocked in four runs and Mays drove in three in the opener to help San Francisco come from behind. McCovey, recovering from a pulled hamstring muscle and ailing with arthritic knees, added his 24th homer of the season in the process.

But he and the aging Mays were unable to hold the Giants together in the nightcap. Jim Ray Hart drove in four runs for the losing cause with a single and a pair of homers, but San Francisco's front-liners failed to follow suit and Skip Pitlock picked up his third loss in four decisions.

Mike Davison won the opener for the Giants to improve his record to 2-3.

A's Mystery Man Puzzles Yankees

By STEVE TOOMAJIAN

OAKLAND (UPI)—The pitching record of Chuck Dobson always has been a mystery.

A strong man with a world of potential upon his entry into the majors five years ago, Dobson's only claim to consistency has been his yearly string of Jekyll-and-Hyde performances.

You could always depend on him to fire a brilliant complete game one night and make an early trip to the showers the next.

"It's been like that all through my career. I either throw a good game or get ripped early," Dobson said Friday night after displaying one of his good ones against the New York Yankees for an 11-0 victory.

His teammates ganged up to score seven runs in the opening inning and Dobson responded by limiting the Yankees to four hits, firing his third shutout and ninth complete game of the year and evening his record at 10-10.

THIRD STRAIGHT

The win was the Dobber's third in succession and fourth in a row for the A's, who trail division leading Minnesota by 10½ games.

Though Dobson, now 26, has been Oakland's most effective starter the past couple of weeks, he still leads the club in losses and has the worst earned run average (3.92) among the club's starters.

Opposing players will tell you he's one of the league's best pitchers— when he wins. But when he loses, the ball shoots out of the batter's box like a chain of Fourth of July rockets.

"I've always been streaky, and I've never understood why," Dobson said. "This year I think I've had bad luck. I haven't pitched as bad as my record. But I'm not making excuses.

A PUZZLE

"Take spring training, for example. I feel like I've got the best stuff I've ever had, but I ent up losing my first three games. I can't figure it out."

If Dobson ever learns to win consistently, he may finally take his place among baseball's top hurlers. He is 6-4, 200 pounds, with tremendous strength and endurance, and his fastball and breaking pitches tail sharply.

Dobson had it all working Friday night. In each of his last three victories, the A's have staked him to sizable early leads.

Twelve batters came to the plate in the first inning when New York rookie Steve Kline (1-2) could not find his rhythm. The result was seven runs on five hits and four walks. Don Mincher crashed a two-run double, Frank Fernandez and Dobson belted two-run singles and Rick Monday concluded the assault with a run producing base hit.

SINGLE RUNS

The A's added single runs in the second and third on run scoring hits by Dick Green and Sal Bando. Reggie Jackson and Green came back with RBI doubles in the sixth for the final tallies.

Dobson's next appearance is Tuesday night against Boston, at which time he hopes to "figure out," as he says, what it takes to put together a string of victories.

Mill Valley Junior Tennis Starts Monday

More than 250 junior tennis players from throughout Northern California will gather Monday at the Mill Valley Tennis Club for the start of the 12th annual Marin County Junior Hardcourt Tournament.

Ten Marin players are seeded in the event, which is sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association and the Northern California Tennis Association.

Andy Moffat of the host Mill Valley club, playing in the boys 18 and under class, is the county's only top seed. Seeded second are Dan Tierney of Tiburon in boys 14s, Diane DeMartini of Greenbrae in girls 12s, and Lissy Manheim of Tiburon in both girls 16s and 18s.

Third seeds from Marin are Jerry Suyderhoud in boys 18s and Jennifer Gobershock in girls 14s. Mark Rodnick in boys 16s and Cary Stansbury in boys 12s are seeded fourth and Bill Kinser of Tiburon is the seventh seed in boys 16s.

The tournament will last five days, with finals next Friday.

FIGHT AGAINST DRUGS

Gambino Is Champ Out Of The Ring

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Vincent (Jimmy) Gambino has to rank right up there with the greatest fighters I've ever seen.

Pound for pound or any other way you know to measure a man.

Jimmy Gambino is 38 now. An old 38. He once was a Golden Gloves champ and after that a rather promising professional heavyweight. As a pro he won 13 out of 14, but then turned into a drug addict and lost both his legs due to Buerger's disease which the doctors told him resulted from all the drugs he took. He was hooked on drugs 13 years, but has been clean the past six.

Jimmy Gambino isn't much for ceremony.

He parked his artificial legs alongside his wheelchair Thursday, put his special steel cane up against the wall of what once had been an abandoned apartment but now serves as headquarters for Project Return, and then told it like it is to 35 other ex-drug addicts.

"There's only one word I'd say to somebody who is gonna use drugs," Jimmy Gambino said. "Don't. When you use drugs, you gotta lie, you gotta cheat, you gotta rob, you gotta hurt people. You can always tell a junkie. Your face gets yellow; your teeth rot and fall out; your sex life is finished; you can't even talk with people because anytime you do, you're always scheming to get a fix."

Most of those in the group Gambino was talking to were between the ages of 15 and 22 and one youth wanted to know what the ex-fighter thought about marijuana.

"Look, I'm not a doctor," said Gambino, addressing an audience for the first time in his life as part of a program sponsored by the MOD (March on Drug Corps,) "but I don't know of anyone who first started by putting a needle in his arm. I know this: marijuana leads to harder drugs. A kid says 'Wow, I got this way on marijuana, I wonder how high I can get on the other junk.'

"Heroin and the other drugs are destroyers of the body and the mind. Look at me! No legs anymore. This is an ugly picture. I know it's ugly. But I like to speak to kids in the 6 to 12 age group before they get involved. They see me and I figure maybe they'll listen because they say, my God, this guy blew his legs because of drugs. They cost me more than that. I have a wife and two children no longer with me because of drugs. They mean more to me than my legs."

Jimmy Gambino was born in Greenwich Village and still lives there. He fought a preliminary on the Joe Louis-Rocky Marciano card in the old Madison Square Garden on Oct. 26, 1951 and was arrested in his dressing room after the bout for the sale of narcotics.

A judge sentenced him to two years.

"I came home from jail in 1953 and there must have been 80 of us in my neighborhood who were on dope. Only six are left now. The others all died of overdose or wound up in insane asylums," Gambino said.

"I wanted to be one of the guys. Three of 'em would go their way but I'd have to go the other way because I wasn't taking dope. So one day after I'd been smoking marijuana I rolled up my sleeve and stuck a needle in my arm. I wanted to find out what it was all about. I found out all right. If I ever do put a needle in my arm again I'll make sure there's enough in the spoon so I never wake up," he said.

"I can only say this to you: when I got out of the hospital after losing my legs, a friend of mind said he'd rather see me this way than being a junkie. At first I was mad but now I honestly feel the same way he does. If you see somebody out on the street and he's strung out on drugs, he's the square. And if you see someone out on the street and he's clean, then he's the hippest person you'll ever see."

On Aug. 14 the MOD Corps is going to stage its first National Drug-Out Day and National Chairman Norman King says a parade is planned that will end in Central Park. More than 500 former drug addicts plan to march.

"Don't forget to come to the parade," Jimmy Gambino urged all those listening at Project Return which really is something to see at 141 East 34th Street in this city. "We'll all walk together."

I asked Jimmy Gambino what kind of a fighter he considered himself and after thinking it over a little he said:

"Average. Not much."

He was never so wrong in his life.

Russians Rip U.S. In Track And Field

LENINGRAD (UPI) — The American track and field team wondered today what might have happened if some of its missing veterans had made the trip.

Russia's seasoned and powerful squad in a two-day battle Thursday and Friday gave the young and starless Americans one of the worst trouncings in the 10-year history of the dual meets. Competing before 25,000 appreciative fans in Lenin Stadium the Soviets won overall by 200-173, and they carried both the male and female divisions by 122-114 and 78-59, respectively.

Not since Kiev, 1965, have the Americans done so poorly.

The U.S. men now have lost twice in the 10 meets and the Soviets chalked up their fourth overall win. The pattern in the past was for the Soviet Union's women to win by a landslide while powerful American men counterbalanced to give the Yank teams the overall victories. This year, however, too many U.S. record holders and Olympic veterans stayed home.

And the U.S. team likes to think it would have come out on top had absent stars like Randy Matson in the shot put, Bob Seagren in pole vault, miler Jim Ryun or triple jumper Bob Beamon been present and in form.

But U.S. head coach Leroy Walker did not lament. He predicted his losers will turn to stars.

"I think it was a real good match and I'm sure our policy of bringing over such a young team will pay dividends in the next Olympic Games in Munich in 1972," he said.

"I'm glad we can give such a nice young crew, averaging only 22 years old, a chance to see what it is all about before the Pan American Games in July next year and the Olympics."

Walker was disappointed by the U.S. performance in the 1,500 meter, 5,000 meter and pole vault Friday. But he recalled with pride the stunning 10,000 meter race run Thursday by Frank Shorter of the University of Florida and team captain Ken Moore of the University of Oregon.

Shorter, 23, was Thursday's hero with a blazing 28:22.8 victory in the 10,000 meters. He was followed over the chase by Moore for the first American double triumph in the event against the Russians.

A major disappointment Thursday was the 100-meter loss by Vaughan and Ivory Crockett of the University of Southern Illinois, who lost in driving rain to Russia's European champion, Victor Borzov.

More also had been expected in tht 800 meters by Ken Swenson of Kansas State, but the 22-year-old student surrendered tamely to Russia's Evgeny Zhdanov only a week after setting an American record against West Germany with 1:44.8.

Teenagers Jim Moore, 19, of the University of Oregon and Raynaldo Brown, also 19, of Cal Tech, scored upset wins in the long jump and the high jump respectively. Moore's 7.96 (26 feet, 1½ inches) and Brown's 7 feet, ¼ inch won against vastly more experienced Russian opposition.

Field Captain Bill Skinner exploded in his last javelin throw to score 272 feet, 8 4-10 inch win over Russia's Olympic champion and world record holder, Janis Lusis.

Today is Saturday, July 25, the 206th day of 1970 with 159 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, eVnus Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1866, Ulysses S. Grant became the first American officer to reach the rank of general of the U.S. Army.

In 1934, Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss of Australia was assassinated by troops of the Nazi Black Guards as Adolf Hitler tried unsuccessfully to take over the country.

In 1943, King Emmanuel of Italy replaced Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini.

In 1952, Puerto Rico became a self-governing U.S. Commonwealth.

A thought for the day: Daniel Webster said, "let our object be our country, our whole country, and nothing but our country."

Health Shortage

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A shortage of trained health experts is hindering effective care in mental disease, according to a panel of psychiatrists. Dr. Irving Phillips of the University of California's Langley Porter Institute says there are about 1.4 million children who need psychiatric care but less than 50,000 are getting it.

Outlive Men 4 Years

SEOUL (UPI)—South Korean women can expect to live longer than men by at least 4.4 years. A survey shows the average life span of Korean women is 64.1 years, compared with 59.7 years for men.

Old Kibitzers May Not Have All The Answers To Bridge Technique

"It is well known that the younger generation cannot read," the Old Kibitzer fumed, "but it is also true that they cannot count. What's more, the idiots don't know how to draw trumps. What is the world coming to?" The old gentleman left the club in a perfect fury, all because of the way South had begun to play today's hand.

POOR COUNTING

East won the first trick with the king of spades when declarer, a member of the younger generation, played a low spade from the dummy. For lack of anything better, East returned a spade to dummy's ace.

South led the queen of hearts from dummy, led a heart to the ace and then brightly remarked, "Well, that's that," as he led a club to dummy's ace.

The Old Kibitzer was so furious at South's apparent failure to see that a trump was still out that he stormed out of the club without waiting to see what happened next.

CONTINUES CLUBS

Declarer continued with another club, and East was obliged to win the trick. East had only spades and diamonds, and couldn't lead a diamond without giving dummy a free finesse. In an attempt to get out, East returned a spade.

SUCCESSFUL RISK

Since there was still a trump in dummy, South could discard a diamond from his hand while he ruffed in dummy. Then he gave up another club and claimed his contract. If South had drawn three rounds of trumps, East could have returned his spade quite safely, and declarer would have lost a diamond trick to lose his contract.

What the Old Kibitzer didn't know was that South was an excellent counter but didn't trust kibitzers over 30 years of age.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold:

♠- K 9 5 4 2
♡- 8 4
◇- K 8 6 4
♣- K J.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades.

If partner has three or more spades, you want to play the hand at four spades. If partner has only two spades, you will content to let him play at 3 no-trump.

Car Tires Last Longer If She's Behind Wheel

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Women drivers get about 10,000 miles more wear out of a set of tires than men, according to a tire company study.

Goodyear says its study showed that women drivers average about 30,000 miles before needing replacements, while men average 20,000 miles, with some getting as little as 12,000 miles.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

28 EDITORIAL PAGE San Rafael, Calif. Saturday, July 25, 1970

The Editor's Notebook

Two Fearless Men Made Marin 'Clean County'

FOR MORE THAN a generation, Marin has been known as a "clean county." That is, laws were enforced rather rigidly. Offenders could expect swift and sure justice.

It was not always so.

In J.P. Munro-Fraser's "History of Marin County," published in 1880, the author wrote, "No county of its size has such a bloody record as this; some of the murders committed in it are almost beyond description."

IF YOU TALK WITH old-timers whose memory extends back to prohibition days and earlier, you know that Marin was a pretty rowdy, bawdy place.

Rumrunners, speakeasies, gambling dens and houses of prostitution flourished.

A rather brash but handsome young man appeared on the public scene in Marin nearly 40 years ago. He had the temerity to run for the office of district attorney in opposition to the "establishment" incumbent.

Somehow, that young man won election and a new era was born. The county's only superior court was presided over by a "tough" judge. Marin began to throw off its image as an "open" community and became, instead a "clean" place.

The brash young district attorney was Albert E. Bagshaw, now the head of a private law firm in San Rafael. The judge was Edward I. Butler, now dead.

At the end of their tenure in office, neither was very popular with Marin members of the law profession.

Unfortunately, their key parts in cleaning up the county and keeping it clean went largely unappreciated during the latter days of their public service.

Each of Bagshaw's several successors as district attorney has endeavored to carry on the "fearless, rough prosecutor" tradition which he established.

As our superior courts have become more numerous and their judges more varied in background and viewpoint, the "tough" judge image has almost completely disappeared.

NEARLY 100 YEARS AGO, a San Francisco businessman named Paul Rieger came to Marin for a week end of fishing on Lagunitas Creek at Tocoloma. He was last seen as he left the train station at Tocoloma on Saturday, April 19, 1879, to head for his favorite fishing spots.

Nearly a week later, his body was found on the bank of the creek, riddled with bullets and robbed of all valuables as well as some of his clothing.

It was nearly a month before the suspected murderer, an Indian known as "Salvador the Brave," was taken into custody at a rancheria near Sebastopol.

On May 26 he was taken before the justice of the peace in San Rafael and held to answer. He was indicted by the grand jury on June 2. He was arraigned July 23, pleaded not guilty the following day, and went on trial starting July 28. Seating of a jury took until 5 p.m. July 30. Salvador was found guilty and sentencing took place Aug. 4.

While awaiting execution, he confessed to a string of murders beginning 19 years earlier when he killed his brother during a quarrel at Nicasio.

A witness recorded Salvador's last words as he stood on the gallows in the county courthouse:

"I am thankful to you all and especially to Sheriff Tunstead for the kind treatment I have received. I know I have committed a terrible crime and am willing to give up my life for it."

As a contemporary account described it, ". . .precisely at 20 minutes past one in the afternoon of Oct. 2, 1879, the heavy trap shot down, leaving the murderer of Paul Rieger suspended in mid-air."

TODAY A MURDERER is not likely to face trial at all in the year in which the offense is committed. In the case of a death sentence, it is unlikely ever to be executed.

Drug crimes and crimes of violence have grown at a frightening rate. We still have a Marin prosecutor of the fearless, tough image. Our law enforcement officers go about their business in a much more professional manner than they did a generation ago (or even a decade ago).

But high court decisions and their interpretation and application at the local level seemingly have stacked the cards in favor of the offender. Too many who are obviously guilty escape punishment on one technicality or another.

One of these days the pendulum will swing again. It will be a welcome change.

And whatever happened to the old idea that it was admirable and manly to admit your offenses and "take your medicine."?

Fuchsia Weather

The typically cool midsummer Marin weather which we enjoyed (or suffered through, depending on how one feels about it) during most of July is really great for fuchsias. So much so, the lady of our house calls it fuchsia weather.

These lovely bell-like flowers don't care much for really hot weather. They are at their best when the temperatures are in the 60s and there is lots of moisture in the air. They prefer life in the semi-shade.

Fuchsias seem to be especially well adapted to Pacific Coast summer. Color our summer climate fuchsia.

Bouquets — And No Brickbat

BOUQUETS to San Anselmo's Mayor James F. Reed and City Councilmen Kenneth L. Anderson, Warren R. Perry, Woodrow V. Capurro and Lewis W. Stewart for giving up their city council salaries for one month to make possible a tot lot in their city.

BOUQUET to the Marin County Board of Education for abandoning the committee system under which much of the deliberation leading to its decisions had not been held during its regular meetings — with an added flower in the bouquet for board member Marilyn Crowell, who proposed the change.

Why Carry It Around?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Kappas Houseboats Not New Project

July 21, the I-J published a correction of a story which had appeared the day before concerning County Planning Commission action on Mr. (George) Kappas' Gate 6½ houseboat community in Richardson Bay. That correction was much appreciated, but still left some confusion as to the facts. (By the way, the photograph was of Gate 6, not Gate 6½).

The planning commission did not vote to permit establishment of a new houseboat community. It was stuck with a pre-existing, legal, nonconforming use. We could and did impose numerous conditions requiring public access, 50 per cent open water, adequate parking, sewer connections, and so on.The fact that this particular development sits smack in the middle of the "public marina" proposed in the Richardson Bay plan is a hell of a note, but we saw no recourse to the county except to condemn and purchase it, and have so notified our board of supervisors.

The supervisors are not trying to get rid of houseboats in Richardson Bay, as implied in the I-J story. On the contrary, they have recognized them as a legitimate style of living, so long as they conform to minimum standards of sanitation, safety, and amenity.

Some of us, including me, even like them, and feel sad that the cost of these essential improvements will probably force out some of the present, perhaps some of the most interesting, houseboats and houseboat dwellers. I'd be willing to subsidize them as low-cost housing (if in fact they are), but then you'd be into even more stringent regulation, a condition I don't think is compatible with the style of living in question.

Turn On Lights To Cut Accidents

If you would like to help reduce the accident rate on Sears Point Road, State Highway 37, it is suggested that you turn on your vehicle's low beam headlights when traveling this highway during the daylight

A sign requesting this action, posted at both ends of this roadway, might be in order at this time.

LINES ON LIVING

To Have Real Friend, Show Him The Real You

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

"Let me live in my house by the side of the road and be a friend to man," said Sam Walter Foss. Wise counsel. But not at all cost, for we know from stinging personal experience how often friends can be disappointing and friendships mocked and betrayed.

To have real friends one must be a real person — honest in friendship. This is to say that if one is obliged to hide his true self through the self-effacement of character so as to please a friend, appease a friendship, he is better off without such a cumbersome relationship and entanglement.

Friendship, a real and rewarding kinship of human interaction and association, must be exercised free and freely.

PERICLES, who was once asked to compromise his conscience by doing the unjust thing, insisted upon his freedom not to surrender, saying, "I am a friend only as far as the altar."

People who ask us to sacrifice our self-integrity upon the altar of friendship do not want friends, they want chattels, slaves. Any friendship which demands untruth — one's untruth to himself, in self-denial — is a monopoly, not a trust. "A friend," says Emerson, "is a person with whom I may be sincere."

I can be sincere with myself only when I am myself. I can be sincere with my friend only when I am friend to myself. Friendship in its ultimate realization means human self-extension without chains, human self-expression without fear. Reduce it to anything else and it becomes a dirty business, subjugating humans to shrinkage as mere wards. As you cannot buy yourself friendship, you must not attempt to sell yourself in friendship; as you cannot have religion without God, you cannot have friendship without truth, without the human decency of being honest with your friends as you're honest with yourself.

AN UNKNOWN author once asked: "What is a friend?" And he was quick to reply, stating the obvious and yet the most sublime truth of friendship: "It is a person with whom you dare to be yourself. Your soul can go naked with him. He seems to ask you to put on nothing, only to be what you really are."

Then he goes on to say that with a friend "you don't have to be on your guard."

With a real friend you vent off frustrations, anxieties and sincere anger — uncorking little vanities, idiosyncrasies and absurdities. And as you open yourself up — your genuine you — to your friend, you find your human frailties "dissolved on the whole ocean" of friendly loyalty and human compassion. He not only forgives and forgets, he also overlooks and ever-loves.

To have a real friend you have to be a friend by gaining understanding and human comprehension. "You can weep with him, laugh with him, pray with him. . ." You have to understand him and his varied moods, avoid nagging him in time of weakness, and dare not neglect him in time of trouble. You weep with him and laugh with him — not at him, not because of him. And when you're real in yourself and friend to yourself, you can be friend to others, real and true.

COUNTRY PARSON

"Great men are ordinary men who have done great things."

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

If the public is willing to give up their present services to maintain a "state of nature," then so be it. But I, personally, don't see very many of them giving up anything. What I do see is that the ones who shout the loudest are the ones who have the most — and intend to keep it. — William R. Gianelli, director of California Department of Water Resources.

German Politics Damage Chance To Reduce U.S. Troop Strength

WASHINGTON — After 1945 the United States put at least $4 billion into German recovery and helped to evolve a union of western forces in which German arms would be incorporated as one element.

Twenty-five years later 250,000 American troops are still stationed in Germany With the demand, which has grown rapidly in the past 18 months, that this number be drastically reduced, the Germans react with a case of the jitters. But at the same time, while they shelter under the American umbrella, powerful forces in Germany seem determined to frustrate the hope of easing tensions between East and West and thereby reduce the military pressures.

CHANCELLOR Willy Brandt emerged upon taking office last October as perhaps the most dynamic leader in the West. He proposed a series of negotiations with the Soviet Union and the East European nations — an opening to the East — that would lessen the threat of conflict and begin to end the uncertainties along borders still unresolved 25 years after the fighting stopped. It was one more chance — some observers saw it as perhaps a last chance — for a sensible approach to the problem of a divided world.

Brandt, with his skillful negotiators, had begun to make progress. An agreement with Poland on the long-disputed border is in the works. Foreign Minister Walter Scheel is going to Moscow on Monday to negotiate a nonaggression pact with the Soviet Union. In Washington last week Schell's overture to Moscow was approved with the reservation that, whatever the outcome, it should not interfere with the four-power trusteeship over Berlin.

But now, whether out of neurotic fears, an upsurge of chauvinism, a crude political maneuver to bring Brandt down, or a combination of all three of these motives, the Christian Democrats are out to defeat the opening to the East. Under the leadership of the former chancellor, Kurt Georg Kiesinger, who was content to preside over a Germany resting on American strength, the Christian Democrats have severed bipartisanship, refusing to send an observer to the Moscow talks. They are savagely attacking Brandt with the intimation of treason to Germany's national interest.

THIS IS THE OLD Germany, the Germany of the Junkers. At least an echo can be heard of the Nazi past and the resort to fear and distrust as a political weapon.

One thing is quite clear. If the Brandt policy fails and his government is brought down, as may well happen, the drive in the United States to scale down the troop commitment in Germany will grow by leaps and bounds. If the Europeans cannot begin to set their own house in order, it will be past time for America to stop playing policeman.

SEN. CHARLES Percy of Illinois has done a detailed study of the cost of the American troop commitment in Europe. It costs the American taxpayer $14 billion to support our troops in NATO. This means a $1.5 billion balance-of-payments deficit tied to the military commitment, and of this $1 billion is Germany alone. To help tide the United States over, Germany made loans over a two-year period but those loans must be repaid and repaid with interest.

At a recent meeting of the economic committee of the NATO Assembly, a parliamentary group, Percy proposed a series of reforms.

Percy called it scandalous that the American government continues to pay millions of dollars to its NATO partners in taxes at every level. Certainly, if this country can Vietnamize the war in Southeast Asia, he said recently, it should not be impossible to Europeanize the defense of Europe.

Kiesinger and the Christain Democrats will, of course, try to transpose their suspicion of the Brandt policy into anti-communism for American public opinion. It is doubtful that this ploy will stem the drive to cut back the burden America has carried for 23 years. If this is isolationism, it is a match for the Kiesinger brand of withdrawal.

ART BUCHWALD

Helpful Hints For Executives Caught In Economy Squeeze

WASHINGTON — As the earnings statements of large companies get gloomier, there is more and more pressure on corporation executives to make economies in their firms.

Most companies do this by first firing the office boy, then retrenching in the mail room department, and finally by cutting the budget on the softball team.

But as time goes on and stockholders get unhappier and unhappier, management may have to start making cuts in the upper levels of the company and even executives are in danger of losing their jobs.

HOW DOES SOMEONE in a large company save his job when all about him are losing theirs? Perhaps I can be of help.

The first bit of advice is DO NOT TAKE A VACATION this year. No matter how badly you need one, hang in there or else this is what could happen.

"Maxwell, what are you doing sitting at my desk?"

"Oh, Herndon, how was the Cape?"

"Fine. Now what are you doing in my office?"

"WELL, FINANCE decided to merge sales with packaging and they asked me to take over. I naturally fought the move but they were adamant. We tried to reach you on the Cape but they said you were racing in the Hyannis-Nantucket sailboat trials. How did you do?"

"I came in third. Now where have I been moved to?"

"Thats what they were trying to reach you about. They've had to cut across the board. I spoke up for you but. . ."

THE SECOND BIT of advice is to institute an economy committee, before one is constituted without you. Go into the president and say: "B.J., I'd like to organize a cost-cutting program so we don't get caught like Penn Central with our pants down. What I suggest we do is form a team and go into every department and see how we can eliminate waste. We could report to you within a month, so you'll have something to show the board."

If your idea is accepted, you must use great tact in suggesting the elimination of somebody else's job, on the off chance that he might survive and do you in.

You could say, "Gentlemen, I think we'd make a mistake if we let Fowler go. It's true his advertising campaign for 'Fluff' was a complete disaster, but we must remember there has been great consumer resistance in toiletries for dogs this year. Fowler is a genius when it comes to advertising even though he has a tendency to antagonize everyone in the company."

If Fowler loses his job you have the minutes of the meeting to prove that you've defended him.

To show that you have the company's interest at heart before your own, announce some economies you're making in your own department. "I'm happy to announce, gentlemen, that I've furloughed two telephone operators and laid off four watchmen in our Wichita warehouse, thus saving the company $33,000. This cuts my department to the bone, but I believe we can manage with what we've got."

THE BIGGEST danger during an economy drive is that the company may hire an outside consulting firm to make a private report on which people should be let go.

If one comes in the plant, stop all the work you are doing and spend every waking moment with him. Most consultants know little or nothing about the businesses they are investigating, and if you can make them look good they may believe you are necessary to the firm.

You can also get even with some old enemies.

"Tell me, Herndon, where is Mr. Maxwell?"

"Maxwell? I believe he's playing golf. He always plays golf on Wednesday afternoon with his doctor."

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

Near the end of World War II, food conservationists plastered placards all through army installations reminding wasteful GI's, "Food Will Win the War." Underneath one of the placards a mischievous private penciled, "Agreed — but how can we get the Japs over here to eat it?"

The Village pest met Joe Klingenstein returning from Rankeley Lake with a fine mess of fish, and observed admiringly, "That's a good day's catch! What'd ye use fer bait?" "Chewing tobacco," joshed Joe. "Never heard of nothin like that bein' used for bait,;; wondered the pest. "How'd ye use it?"

"Simple," explained Joe.

"You just put it on the hook. The fish snaps it and retreats. Then when he comes to the surface to spit, you conk him over the head with your pole."

Baptists In San Rafael Call Pastor

Rev. Barrett M. Lampp has been called by the First Baptist Church of San Rafael as its new pastor.

A former official with the U.S. Forest Service, Lampp has just completed his resident requirements for a master of theology degree from Golden Gate Baptist Seminary at Strawberry. He received his bachelor of arts degree from California Baptist College at Riverside.

From 1961 to 1963 he served as assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church at Lemoore. Since then he has served churches in Chester, Plumas County; Half Moon Bay and in Pacheco, Contra Costa County.

Lampp delivered his first sermon at the church, located at 1411 Lincoln, last Sunday.

He is married and the father of two children.

World Relief Headquarters Are Shifted

ST. LOUIS (LC) — After 17 years of operating out of Royal Oak, Mich., the world relief office of the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod is transferring here to synodical headquarters.

Coinciding with the move is the retirement of Dr. Werner H. Kunt, full-time director of the program since its inception. A successor to Dr. Kuntz is presently being called.

"This is a time of unparalleled challenge and opportunity for us Lutherans and our church body to demonstrate the love which is the earmark of the Christian faith," Dr. Kuntz stated in his parting comments.

"We need, like the Christians of old, to demonstrate what sort of people we are," he added.

"It may well be that the compassion of Christian people for the forgotten, the exiled and the downtrodden will, in the economy of God, prove mightier than the flexing muscle and the arrogance of those who would topple Him from His throne and foolishly think they can inherit the earth," Dr. Kuntz concluded.

Although accurate figures on how many people were ministered to during 17 years of operation cannot be determined, world relief contributions last year reached $714,000, almost seven times more than its first year income.

Until a new director is secured, relief operations will be carried out by the Board of Social Ministry and World Relief of the LC-MS under the leadership of Dr. Leslie F. Weber, executive secretary.

Dr. Weber indicated that the move to the church's headquarters will provide an opportunity for the various departments of the church to become more involved in world relief concerns.

Week's Vacation Bible School Set

With the "Wordless Book" as its theme, the Valley Baptist Church, 3 North San Pedro Road in San Rafael, will launch a week's vacation Bible school on Monday.

An innovation this year will be the use of homes of members for various programs during the week.

On Aug. 3, a special service will be held at the church to display various projects of the session.

The Anatomy Of Grief And How It Can Be Withstood

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Sooner or later, you'll come to grief.

That's not a Cassandra prophecy. It's a simple statement of the human condition. Life eventually brings to each of us some kind of shattering loss—the death of a loved one, the defection of a friend, the estrangement of a child, the collapse of a career—to which we respond in grief.

It therefore behooves all of us to learn something about the anatomy of grief, so that when it comes we will be able to understand our own reactions and cope with them in a healthy way.

The Rev. Granger E. Westberg, a sensitive and empathetic man who teaches pastoral counseling at the Hamma School of Theology in Springfield, Ohio, has identified several different stages through which a grief-stricken person must work his way.

First, Westberg says, comes a "state of shock" in which the victim "just can't believe it's true." This is a protective reaction of great value, because it gives a person time to muster his inner resources to face "the full significance of his loss."

This may be followed by a period of acute depression and loneliness, in which he feels that "no one else has ever gone through what he is experiencing." Comforting words from others fall on deaf ears at this stage. He just wishes everyone would leave him alone."

Physical illness is a common accompaniment of these early stages of grief reaction. The sufferer won't eat, can't sleep, has headaches, and feels as though his stomach were tied in knots.

Next comes the phase of feeling guilty. "He feels he is somehow responsible for the loss, so he wrestles with his conscience about what he did that was right and what was wrong." Sympathetic counselors should not be too hasty about trying to banish these guilt feelings. For there may be "real guilt" as well as imagined guilt, and the former needs to be faced and repented, not repressed.

After guilt comes anger and resentment. He feels that his misfortune is unfair, and demands to know, "Why did this happen to ME?" There is a strong disposition in this stage to idealize the past and day dream about the "good old days" before the loss occurred.

Eventually, the victim of loss begins to struggle with new patterns of living. He discovers that "the clouds that seemed stationary actually are moving." With the passage of time, "there is a growing confidence that life can be good again even though it has changed so much."

The final phase of recovery comes when the victim of a great loss is able to see that in some ways his grief experiences have been good, because he has emerged from them "a stronger person, a deeper person, a person better able to help others go through their valleys."

Talking to a group of physicians at a recent meeting of the American Medical Association, Westberg said that a doctor, minister or friend who seeks to help a grieving person should bear three cardinal points in mind:

1. The grief-stricken person desperately needs to talk to someone he respects, and to know that the one he's talking to really is listening and really cares about his troubles.

2. He must be induced to face his situation and work through his problem realistically, not flee into some kind of escapism.

3. He should be told, not that he shouldn't grieve, but that "grief; is normal, it is healthy, it has healing qualities, it can actually be 'good grief.'"

COASTAL HOUSE OF WORSHIP

A recent addition near the entrance to the Point Reyes Seashore is the Sacred Heart Catholic Church of Olema. Finished last year, it offers residents of West Marin and visitors to the area a modern house of worship. Its simple lines blend into the natural beauty of the area.

NEW CIRCUIT SUPERVISOR

James Waddington (left) has been assigned as circuit supervisor of the Jehovah's Witnesses in San Rafael. He will replace William Green (right), who is being transferred to the South Alameda County area, effective Sept. 1. Announcement of the shift came during the group's annual assembly meeting in Oakland last weekend.

Vatican Newspaper Denies Holy See's Immense Wealth

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano denied this week the Holy See possesses the immense wealth attributed to it in a recent book and in various newspaper articles.

L'Osservatore said the Vatican controls no banks, had nothing to do with revaluation of the Deutschmark, has no majority holdings in any Italian company and does not have even one one-hundredth of the $11.2 to $12.8 billion a Swiss newspaper said it possessed as productive capital.

The denial came in a lengthy reply to an article in the Swiss newspaper Tribune de Lausanne, which was based on Nino Lo Bello's book "The Gold of the Vatican," L'Osservatore said.

L'Osservatore said various newspapers in Italy and abroad "speak of Lo Bello's book as a reliable source" and attribute it to "a credibility worthy of a better cause."

The nearly two-column article in the Vatican newspaper was an item by item answer to statements it said appeared in the March 13 edition of Tribune de Lausanne. It said the answers were made specifically to that article because of questions about it which the Vatican had received from Switzerland.

L'Osservatore said the Vatican never sold 30 per cent of the stock in the Lancia auto firm to Fiat because the Vatican never owned one share of Lancia stock. It quoted the Tribune as saying the Holy See easily could have played with the revaluation of the Deutschmark, and replied: "The Holy See never possessed German marks."

Referring to majority holdings it was supposed to have in various Italian firms, particularly in the chemical and textile line, it said Vatican holdings in each case were less than one per cent. It said the Holy See never had majority holdings.

L'Osservatore said the Vatican has only normal deposits in foreign banks to finance its worldwide work and "it is untrue that the Holy See has control of seven of the most important Italian banks."

Pastor Finds Way To Visit Large Flock

VINELAND, N.J. UPI — With a 2,400-square-mile parish, Rev. William F. Collins needed a way to get around and solved it with a church on wheels — a house trailer.

Collins, 37 and a native of Atlantic City, ministers especially to the thousands of migrant farm workers of vegetable-growing southern New Jersey, many of them Spanish-speaking laborers from Puerto Rico or Cuba.

"Father Bill," as he is known, is spiritual leader, legal and medical adviser, slide projectionist and social director for his flock. He see himself as something of a catalyst "to make these workers aware of things."

The priest, who says mass daily in different parts of his far-flung parish, feels one of his most important contributions is "educating the workers on the world around them. . .housing laws, politics, medical facilities." With help, he thinks, the largely uneducated workers "can move a long way in preparing the future for their kids."

Collins has been on this job since the spring of 1969, ever since he talked the Camden Chancery into investing $10,000 in a motor home with special fittings.

Instead of the normal kitchen fittings it has book shelves. The bedroom was made into an office with desk, filing cabinet and a television set. A table next to the driver's seat — Collins does his own driving — holds a motion picture projector linked to a public address system.

Father Bill thinks it's a great way to bring church to the people.

Congo Missionary To Be Speaker

Rev. Elmer Pearson, pastor of the San Francisco Covenant Church, will be guest speaker at the 9:30 a.m. service tomorrow at the Marin Covenant Church. His topic will be "Who Is Jesus?"

A former missionary in the Congo where he was an associate of the late Dr. Paul Carlson, who was slain in 1964, he has been pastor of the San Francisco church for the past 18 months.

The Marin congregation holds its weekly meetings in the Marinwood Community Center, Lucas Valley and Mill Creek roads in San Rafael.

KENYA-STYLE

Missionaries Establish Boys' Town

GARISSA, Kenya (UPI)—An Italian Roman Catholic Priest and a former Hollywood bartender - turned - lay brother, have set up a Boys' Town in the northeast Kenya desert to offer Somali orphans a new life, hope —and plenty of water.

The Rev. John Bonzanino and Brother Mario Petrino, originally from Denver, Colo., arrived in this Moslem area less than two years ago.

They arrived after a fierce four-year border war in which Somali guerrillas tried to secede from Kenya to join the northern Somali Republic. In 1968, Kenyan president Jomo Kenyatta finally negotiated a settlement, but the battles had left an estimated 4,000 children fatherless.

The government granted some land for rehabilitation of the children and the two missionaries, after lengthy consultation with Moslem chiefs and misgivings on all sides, went to work.

They received moral —and some financial —support from the Vatican and encouragement from Pope Paul VI.

The murky Tana River flows by about two miles from what the missionaries christened the Garissa Boys' Town. For seven weeks, with the help of hired labor, they dug trenches to bring water closer. Then they recruited 150 homeless boys and began farming in the intense heat, growing watermelons that are now in demand all over Kenya and also are being exported.

"This is scrubville for real, man," Brother Mario, 47, said. "We're surrounded by wild animals, elephant, lion, rhino and hyena. One night we were invaded by 500 howling hyenas. You get so you want to pack your night bag and get the hell out of here forever.

"But we'll stick it out like good sports."

The missionaries get along well with the wiry nomadic tribesmen of the district who battle the parched desert. They wander unconcernedly past Moslems kneeling on mats pointed in homage toward Mecca.

"We're not here to convert. This is a humane exercise," they say.

Brother Mario added: "The other day they offered me a Somali bride. They said I must have a lady to look after me. But I told them I wouldn't be able to concentrate on my work and besides I had taken vows of chastity. They said she would be young and beautiful but I had to say no, thanks."

The orphans who are the beneficiaries of the missionary work lead a rigorous schedule — awake at 5:30 a.m., wash, something to eat, school, homework, lunch, exercise, work on the farm. The Brother Mario "runs" the boys. He believes he has potential Olympic material, as Somalis, like many of Kenya's famous athletes, have the long femur bone which makes for an effortless, loping stride.

"They're really happy, you know," the bearded lay brother said. But although he said he has "found my rainbow in this frontier region," he is not altogether satisfied. It isn't that he regrets the girl-friends, cars, air-conditioned apartments and swimming pools he enjoyed in his Hollywood days. Before he left on a recent fund-raising trip to the United States he said:

"There are still a few thousand orphans out there and it looks like we could do with some more cash."

Church Votes To Remain In Novato

The Presbytery of Northern California of the Orthodox Presbyterian Church has voted to continue its present work in Novato which was started in May.

The mission is under direction of Rev. Robert H. Graham, former minister of the Bayside Orthodox Presbyterian Church in Chula Vista.

Guest Speaker

John Davis, lay member of the United Methodist Church of Novato will preach at both the 8:30 and 10:55 a.m. services tomorrow in the absence of Rev. Steven L. Darling who is on vacation. Mrs. Lee Davis will be the soloist at the second service.

Former Minister Bypasses Sundays

HIGH POINT, N.C. (UPI) — Dr. Tom Haggai, popular public speaker, makes about 750 speeches a year around the nation. A former Baptist minister, he never speaks on Sunday.

"I don't want to compete with the church," Dr. Haggai says.

A Documentary Award-Winner Spotlights The Hearst Castle

The fabulous Hearst Castle, a combination palace and museum located at San Simeon, is the subject of "The Enchanted Hill — The Story of San Simeon," to be telecast Wednesday at 8 p.m. on Channel 5.

The program is the fifth of 10 re-broadcasts of the "San Francisco Pageant," a series of Peabody Award-winning historical documentaries which examine the people, events and landmarks of Northern California. The series is hosted by Rolfe Peterson.

The film of the building of San Simeon is narrated by Steve Allen with personal reminiscences by silent screen star Francis X. Bushman, William Randolph Hearst Jr. and others.

RARE MOTION picture footage, unusual still photographs and KPIX film combine to provide an insight into San Simeon's builder William Randolph Hearst, and his spectacular home on the California coast.

Building of the Hearst Castle commenced in 1919 at an estimated cost of 30 million dollars. The art treasures within San Simeon's 146 rooms total more untold millions. For a quarter of a century Hearst enriched San Simeon with examples of ancient, medieval and Renaissance art objects that in number and quality are to be found nowhere else in this country. To house his constantly growing art collection, he continued to build on an even more grandiose scale, spending many more millions.

Built on a California hilltop, Hearst called San Simeon — "La Cuesta Encantada". . .his Enchanted Hill.

IN 1958 THE Hearst family donated San Simeon to the State of California and it is now a state monument, visited by hundreds of thousands of persons yearly.

The Hearst San Simeon properties, extending at one time to well over 200,000 acres along 30 miles of Pacific Ocean waterfront (equal to nearly half the size of the state of Rhode Island) is located in the magnificent setting of the Santa Lucia Mountains, approximately five hours drive south from the Bay Area.

San Simeon once played host to the elite of world society. Once a home of great mystery, talked about and wondered about throughout the world, the real story of San Simeon, why and how it was created was never before told on film.

FRANCIS X. Bushman, silent film great, tells of the many glorious parties he attended at San Simeon. Bushman was one of the first great screen lovers. He made over 400 films before the age of 35, starring in such great epics as the original "Ben Hur" in 1926.

William Randolph Hearst Jr., son of the builder of San Simeon and editor-in-chief of the Hearst newspapers, recalls the history of San Simeon and the beginning of its construction.

Morgan North, nephew of San Simeon's architect, Julia Morgan, talks about the actual construction of San Simeon. Original sketches and drawings for San Simeon, made in 1920, by Miss Morgan and Hearst are seen from North's collection of his aunt's paper.

NORMAN ROTANZI, employed at San Simeon for over 30 years, recalls the million dollar landscaping project at San Simeon. He tells how he and his fellow gardeners, under the direction of Nigel Keep, planted over 125,000 trees on the grounds at San Simeon.

Mrs. Ann Rotanzi, his wife and head housekeeper, recalls the dinners at San Simeon with such guests as George Bernard Shaw, Calvin Coolidge, General Douglas MacArthur, Winston Churchill and many others.

Carey Baldwin reminisces about his days as director of the Hearst Zoo at San Simeon — the largest private animal collection in the United States and perhaps the world.

"The Enchanted Hill — The Story of San Simeon," was originally telecast in 1962. The program was produced and written by Lee Mendelson and photographed by Dick Williams. Executive producer is Ray Hubbard.

At Home, Daniel's Son Is Man-Of-The-House

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Darby Hinton, the little scamp of "Daniel Boone," has every reason to grow up and become a zoologist, but prefers an acting career or establishing a private school.

Master Hinton, now 12 years old, is the former owner of six Yorkshire terriers, two snakes, a gibbon, two wild boars, an African pygmy goat, three falcons, two racoons, two foxes and a mynah bird.

All, except the boars, ran and-or flew wild through the Hinton home.

It sounds ridiculous, but not once you've visited the Hintons. They live in what might be the most unusual house in Southern California.

THE LIVING room consists principally of a large swimming pool surrounded by lush tropical growth and palm trees that push right through the roof.

The home is perched high on a crag in Bel Air with an indoor-outdoor feeling that is enchanting, different and altogether delightful.

A recent fire destroyed part of the house and yard, reducing Darby's pet collection to the six dogs.

BUT REPAIRS have been made and the household almost returned to normal. Mrs. Hinton, widowed when her actor husband was killed in an airplane crash 11 years ago, has resisted Darby's desire to restock his wildlife preserve.

Darby is surrounded by females. In addition to his mother he shares the beautiful four-bedroom home with sisters Daryn, 15, and Darcy, 18, all the while insisting he is the man of the house.

Young Hinton began acting at age 6 months in television's old "Playhouse 90." Between that time and starting in "Daniel Boone" for NBC six years ago he appeared in 100 television shows and 17 movies.

DARBY THRIVES on work. He arises at 5 a.m. to arrive at 20th Century-Fox studios by 6. His early call is necessary for an hour-long ride to the studio ranch where most of the frontier shots are filmed.

Each day on the set three hours are devoted to tutoring in lieu of attending school.

Now that the show is under cancellation, Darby is going to a public school near his home. The transition came as something of a shock. He had spent all his school years studying alone.

"PUBLIC SCHOOL work is easier," young Hinton says. "I've made a lot of friends and the time passes much faster."

Darby is an unspoiled youngster filled with energy, wisecracks and the joy of teasing his elder sisters.

He loves hamburgers but will order escargot when dining out with his mother and siblings just to watch the girls squirm and giggle.

WHEN THE Hintons first moved into their unusual mansion, Darby could not contain the urge to push his sisters into the living room swimming pool. But everyone in the family — not to mention an occasional guest — has stepped into the pool accidentally.

Darby has no intention of retiring from show business now that "Daniel Boone" will be leaving the air. Prospects are good that he will land a top role in "Bless the Beasts and the Children."

"I'd like to act for the rest of my life," says Darby, "but that depends on people hiring me. If not I'd like to open my own school where kids could have a lot of fun."

A MEMORY

Among the scattered sea shells,
we walked along the shore.
Our footprints in the sand — and driftwood from somewhere.

A sound of surf, coming,
the morning tide returns.
Drowning grains of sand — and yesterday's flooded images.

A Musical Genius Is Illuminated By A Granddaughter

Mill Valley Kin Discusses Ernest Bloch And Work

By GIL PEARSON

When the truly great——cheek by j o w l——s p e a k well of a man's effort, then, he too rises to greatness. This has come about for a Marin lady's musician grandfather.

Albert Einstein wrote, "I esteem the works of Ernest Bloch above those of any great contemporary composers known to me."

Leopold Stokowski said, "I do not know of any musician in the world with a greater knowledge or more profound understanding of music in every phase than Ernest Bloch."

L o u i s Nizer noted, "Many keen musicians believe that he will be the fourth 'B'——Bach, Beethoven, Brahms and Bloch."

Other greats who voiced similar praise include Olin Downs, Alfredo Casella, Ernest Newman, Pablo C a s a l s, Romain Rolland, and Yehudi Menuhin.

GRANDDAUGHTER S i t a Dimitroff Milcev allowed us an interview in her Mill Valley home the other day, notwithstanding her nine months pregnancy. "We don't know just when the baby will arrive," she cautioned.

Brushing aside our suggestion for postponement, she scurried about with courageous agility producing photos, letters, and background material on her illustrious ancestor, the internationally renowned composer of music. And, in addition, she proved masterfully articulate in n a r r a t i n g his 80—year biography.

Ernest Bloch, a Jew, was born in Geneva, Switzerland, on July 24, 1880. Worldwide musicology has designated this racial and religious affiliation of Bloch a primary influence upon the style and speech of the majority of his compositions. The musician himself has done much to c o n f i r m and strengthen this.

HIS MOST POPULAR works are "Schelomo" (Hebrew for "King Solomon"), and "Nigun." The former is a Jewish rhapsody for cello and orchestra. The latter, for violin alone.

However, Bloch's major creation is the "Sacred Service" which is for the Sabbath which occurs in synagogues on Saturday morning. The traditional prayers may be spoken or sung, the whole corresponding in this respect to low masses and solemn masses of the Catholic Church.

These are the traditional Jewish prayers which Bloch has set to music for orchestras, mixed chorus and a solo voice, that of the celebrant, the cantor.

Commentators r e g a r d the "Sacred Service" as the crowning achievement of what they call Bloch's "Jewish cycle," which comprises such works as "Three Jewish Poems for Orchestra," "Three Psalms," and the "Israel Symphony."

AS FOR WHAT Bloch himself has said on the Jewish character of his music, grandaughter Sita produced remarks by the composer which a d m i r a b l y sharpen understanding of the style and writing of a work such as "Schelomo."

"It is neither my purpose nor desire to attempt a faithful r e c o n s t r u c t i o n of Jewish music. . . . I am not an archeologist. I believe that the most important thing is to write good and sincere music.

"It is the Jewish soul that interests me, the complex, glowing, agitated soul that I feel stirring in the Bible; the vigor and naivete of the Patriarchs; the violence of the words in the Prophetic books; the innate love of justice; the despair of the preachers of Jerusalem; the grandeur of the Book of Job; and, the sensuality of the Song of Songs.

"All of this, slumbering within our deepest being, I wish to translate into music."

THAT STATEMENT, Sita explains, defines all of Bloch's compositions. . . expresses his music's total freedom, and its voice which climbs anew from the depths towards the sky, even with "Schelomo," in which, unlike the "Sacred Service," the heavens don't open and man remains closeted with his melancholy if not with his despair.

"But," she advises, "it is not so much this feeling of pessimism which has made 'Schelamo' popular; it is its glowing l y r i c i s m which becomes a source of consolation and beauty."

We learn from a synopsis by Antoine Golea that: "The exceptional place that E r n e s t Bloch occupies in Europe, in America, and in the 20th Century is shared with a certain number of other famous composers — some even more illustrious than he — such as Bela Bartok, Manuel de Falla and Georges Enesco, to name only these three."

THE INSTRUMENT t h a t Bloch first learned to play was the violin. He began to study it at the age of 9 and composed, while still a child, some short pieces for this instrument. His desire to compose led him to supplement his violin studies with harmony and counterpoint, which he undertook under Emile Jacques Dalcroze, the celebrated eurhythmist and reformer of c h i l d r e n 's education through the learning of rhythms basic to the human body and to their application in group dancing.

Sita's aunt, Suzanne Bloch, notes in the 1969 spring bulletin of The Ernest Bloch Society that the composer was 24 years old when he began to sketch the music of his opera Macbeth. By then he had two symphonic works and four songs to his name. He worked on "Macbeth," the only opera he ever completed, for five years. Suzanne continues:

"My father's conception of the music was to express the inner f e r m e n t s of the characters, more important to him than the actual drama. With little encouragement from his country-

THE LATE ERNEST BLOCH was praised for his compositions and musicianship by some of the greatest figures of his age, including Albert Einstein, Leopold Stokowski and Pablo Casals. Today The Ernest Bloch Society, with headquarters in Mill V a l l e y where Bloch once worked and relaxed, keeps alive interest in his music, more than a decade after the composer's death in 1959.

Ernest Bloch -- A Great Of Music

NO SCRIBBLER was Ernest Bloch. Unlike Beethoven and many other giants of music, Bloch recorded the notes of his compositions with a neatness that was a joy to his transcribers and the printers.

men, with no financial subsidy he was stirred by an immense inner force. He exulted, he despaired, he slashed, he rewrote."

In 1907, when the music was almost all composed, Bloch had a chance to play it at a salon at the home of the son of George Bizet. Among the persons who heard it were the famous singer Lucienne Breval, and the critic Pierre Lalo.

BOTH ENTHUSED and they arranged an interview for Bloch, with Albert Carre, director of the Paris Opera Comique. Carre at once signed up for the rights of performance of "Macbeth" within two years, although it was an unheard-of-thing in Paris to bring out the work of unknowns who were not even French.

"Mon cher, Directeur," wrote Bloch in preparation for the first performance of his opera, "In regards to Macbeth, musically I have bound myself closely to the characters of the drama. I am enclosing some indications of the ranges of the voices to give you my very personal conception of the drama. . .

"Macbeth is a barbaric Celt with all the superstitions and terrors of a feudal soul. . . . He is a weakling, with the violence and brutality of the weak.

"Lady Macbeth is his opposite. He hesitates, she, never. . . . With a Lady Macbeth strong and perfidious, Macbeth's responsibility will seem to diminish. In spite of his horrendous acts the spectators should feel pity for him, should share his anguish, his fears and his despair.

". . .IN WRITING my music I have been constantly haunted by lighting. It must play a role, one of the most important. Just as the stage sets must be stark, crude and barbaric, so must the lighting be mobile, movemented, expressive.

"I have annotated the relationship of this with the music, notable in the sombre cavern of the Witches, barely visible, where on certain harmonies — slightly cabbalistic! — mysterious rays of light glow."

"Bloch's "Macbeth," first performed on Nov. 30, 1910, at the Opera-Comique in Paris, where it enjoyed more than a success d'estime, was repeated 43 years later at the Rome opera and again in 1957 when the Monnaie of Brussels staged a revival. The composer died in 1959 in Oregon.

It is Antoine Golea who notes that certainly some of Ernest Bloch's works can claim Jewish inspiration. He asks: "Is it a question of true Jewish music and true Jewish folklore?"

"the great wanderer," not only because he emigrated from Europe to America, but because he positively felt all his life to be without a country — a wandering Jew in an almost mystical sense of the term, yearning for a promised land of which he knew he would never see the borders. For him, the State of Israel whose birth and prosperity he witnessed was not and could not be this promised land.

He expressed all this in his music without having recourse to any authentic Jewish folklore.

It was in 1937 that a devoted group of international musicians and writers founded The Ernest Bloch Society in London and New York. Its revival today fills a growing need for review of this major, gifted composer's powerful contribution to the music of the 20th Century.

THIS SOCIETY'S aims are to develop among musicians and the music-loving public a fuller appreciation of the Bloch works by encouraging and arranging performances of his music and by making available commercial recordings of all his published compositions.

And to establish a library of Bloch's complete works for the use of members of the society and to serve as a center of information.

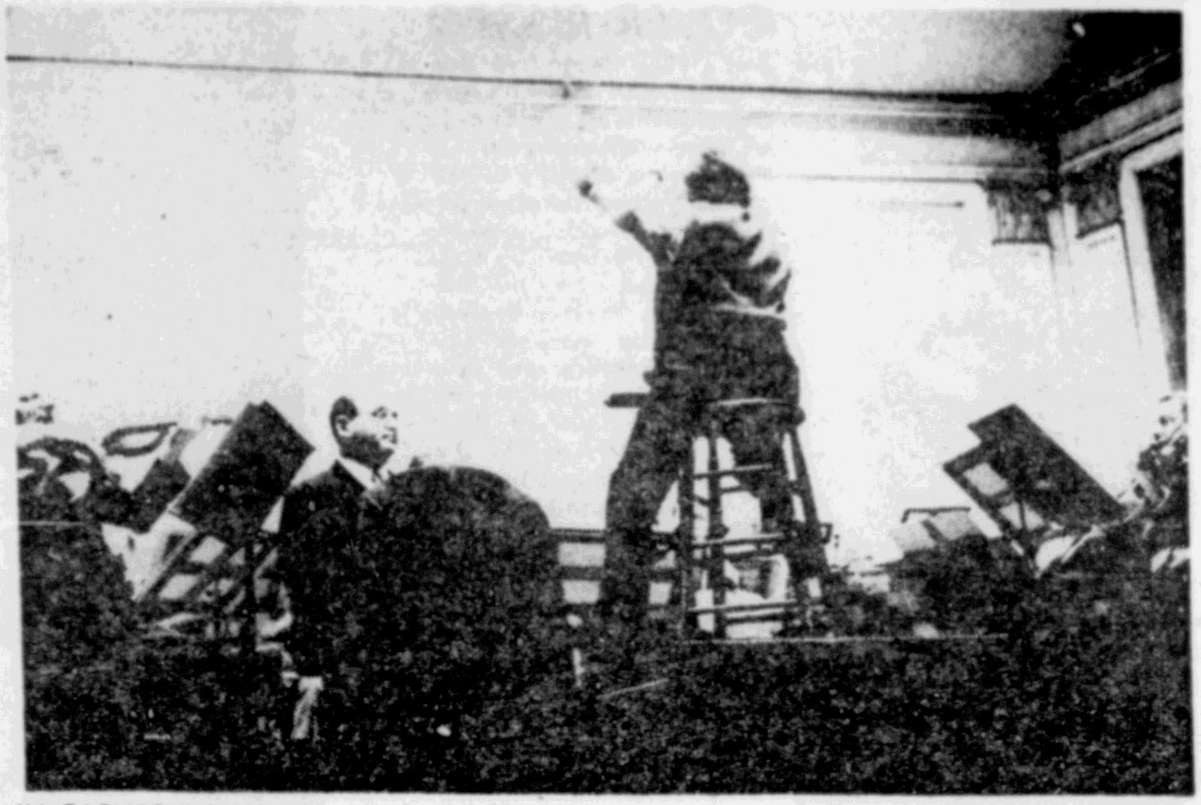
And, also, to bring out a bulletin informing members of performances and recordings.

Membership data is available by inquiry to The Ernest Bloch Society, 171 Marguerite Avenue, Mill Valley, Calif.

The headquartering of the society in Marin County, and particularly in Mill Valley, is appropriate. For it was in Mill Valley, in a small one-room cottage belonging to Lillian Hodghead, founder of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, that Bloch composed some of his most successful pieces.

AND IT WAS on the slopes of Mount Tamalpais that the musician enjoyed some of his most pleasant days, hiking, painting, camping, communing with the nature that he loved.

He died in 1959, having lived a full and a creative life.



IN CARNEGIE HALL, New York, the composer, Ernest Bloch, conducts the New York Philharmonic Orchestra for a performance with the Schola Cantorum of his "Sacred Service." The composition was regarded by many as Bloch's crowning achievement in a productive period known as his "Jewish cycle."

THE TEETH may look forbidding, but dental assisting students at the College of Marin assure you that "Caesar" is actually a most gentle and cooperative patient. The model is used often and effectively in both the classroom and the laboratory in various demonstrations by teachers and visiting lecturers and professionals. By the time they have finished their four semesters work, the dental-assistants-to-be are thoroughly familiar with every molar in Caesar's wide-open mouth.

There's No Waiting For Jobs By New Dental Assistants

College Of Marin Graduates Find Employment Readily

"We've learned skills that are in demand, and we are qualified for jobs that will pay us according to our abilities, anywhere in the world."

That is the satisfying feeling that Rosanne Chulla shares with 14 other College of Marin coeds who are graduating into the profession of dental assisting.

Behind them are two years or four semesters of study and laboratory work. Now they are highly trained professionals, capable of assuming many of the more simple procedures that the dentist might otherwise perform himself, thus releasing him for more exacting work.

THE 15 NEW dental assistants need not leave the confines of their own county to find employment, if they choose. Good jobs are readily available here in their field.

"There's never a delay in

More Assistants For Marin's Dentists

placing our graduates," says Hazel O. Torres, director of the dental assisting program at the college.

Thirteen of the 15 new graduates have jobs waiting for them, 11 in Marin and one in nearby Richmond. Two have elected to postpone work in favor of travel. One is transferring to San Francisco State College to work for a Bachelor's Degree in Health Science.

CREDITS EARNED in the dental assisting program are transferable to state colleges and universities and applicable toward the health science degree.

In each of the seven years the college has been graduating dental assistants, the employment record has been high.

Mrs. Torres maintains a permanent job placement file on the graduates, and, she says, "any girl who is not working is unemployed by choice." Her records show the graduates scattered throughout Marin, across the country and around the world.

DOMINIQUE SFEIR, a 1969 graduate, is working in Lebanon; Patty Rohl accepted a job offer in Aspen, Colo., and is now considering the Peace Corps; Catali Oroz is in Carson City, Nev. — all working in the occupations for which they were trained at College of Marin.

Upon completion of the program, the students are eligible to take a National Board examination that is recognized in every state, and in many foreign countries. One-hundred percent of the Marin graduates have consistently scored very high to this examination, according to Mrs. Torres, and have thus become certified dental assistants.

What does a dental assisting student study that makes her so valuable to the profession?

"JUST ABOUT everything a dentist studies, including office procedures and dental techniques, with emphasis on the role of auxiliary," said Mrs. Torres. "The well-trained dental assistant can work efficiently at chairside, or in the laboratory, and is qualified to assume many of the tasks the dentist might do himself."

Special testing and a personal interview aid in determining whether the student is qualified and has the aptitudes and the interest to complete the course of study.

The first semester courses introduce the student to dental materials and their applications, a dental vocabulary, ethics, philosophy, and the sciences related to the dental profession. The student also begins laboratory work during the first semester.

SHE ALSO TAKES her first business courses and learns how to handle the office work from receptionist and appointment duties to patient relations, bookkeeping, charting, patient care, correspondence, patient financing, and the filling out of the endless flow of insurance forms.

At the end of the fourth semester, the course of study is taken the student through all aspects of dentistry. She is capable of manipulating dental instruments, custom impression trays, constructing base plates, bit rims, tooth dies and orthodontic appliances. She also constructs temporary crowns and bridges.

Producing diagnostic x-rays is an important part of the training, and each student is closely supervised through at least 10 sets of full-mouth x-rays. College of Marin employees and members of the families of the students needing x-rays sit for this service. Each full-month

x-ray survey is processed, mounted, recorded and sent on to the patient's dentist.

THE MEMBERS of the Marin County Dental Society serve as guest lecturers in areas of their specialties, providing a valuable professional community link with the college. Approximately 70 dentists are in the current files in the office of Mrs. Torres, each with a request for a trainee, some for the second or third year in a row.

"Although we don't have enough students to go around, we value the interest and cooperation of the dental profession," says Mrs. Torres. In placing trainees for practical experience, location and the type of experience needed are factors. Two girls who live in Novato have been training in dental offices there. Another is in San Rafael for the same reason.

The average age of the student entering the program is 18. However, there is no objection to the over-30 woman in the community applying for the program, and it is a satisfactory endeavor for the young housewife wishing to enter a health occupation, Mrs. Torres believes. In fact, she would be pleased to see more interest from the more mature women.

THE PROGRAM could be completed in half-day schedules with evening classes, according to the director.

Keeping the curriculum relevant to the needs of the profession is accomplished by the director working closely with a 12-member educational advisory committee composed of members of the Marin Dental Assistants' Society and the Marin County Dental Society. Every modern concept of dentistry and teaching methodology is thoroughly explored, and, if found worthwhile, is incorporated into the program.

The college's aims are to train the students in both the special and conventional techniques that prepare them to handle any and all situations. For example, dentistry in many areas is moving into a new cocept of four-handed, and even six-handed operations.

"THIS IS WHERE a coordinating assistant makes it possible for the dentist to treat two or three patients during one period of time," explains Mrs. Torres.

Not only must the students perform to the satisfaction of the instructors——Billie Craig and Ruth McCarthy——but they also demonstrate instrumentation and manipulative skills before an audience of dentists and future dental assisting students at an annual "Career Night" at the college. The students have also participated regularly in dental health programs in elementary schools in Marin City, San Rafael and Sausalito, and, in an effort to gain clinical experience, they spend two days a week throughout the second year working with the dental students at the University of the Pacific and the University of California dental schools in San Francisco.

The past two years the students have prepared a dental presentation of skills and techniques for the Marin County Dental Society, thus demonstrating what they have learned.

THE FUTURE holds even brighter prospects for the dental assisting program.

Mrs. Torres and the staff are pleased with the new facilities under construction for the department (Harlan Center, scheduled to be completed late this year), which will make possible a new pentagonal arrangement for the four operatories in a semi-circle arrangement with an observation space in the center. An instructor will be able to work with a student in one operatory, while observing what is happening in the other three.

Student activity may be conducted separately in the laboratory without interference of instruction in the operatory area.

THE FACILITIES are larger, and several items of equipment have been approved by the board of trustees for inclusion when the department moves into the new quarters.

The past eight years, the program has been located in temporary facilities a few blocks from the main campus on Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur. Hopefully, the program will be in the new Harlan Center at the beginning of the spring 1971 semester.

For the first time this fall, dental assistants who are already employed but wish to upgrade their technical skill, will have an opportunity to get back into the classroom. A certified dental assisting course has been approved by the board of trustees and will be offered in the non-credit adult education series. The class will meet two evenings a week, Tuesday and Thursday, and will be taught by Mrs. Torres.

REQUIREMENTS are that the enrollee must have been employed for not less than six months in active dental practice prior to beginning the program. The course will be 66 weeks in length, with a total materials and registration fee of $25 for each quarter.

LINDA RUNDELL gains practical experience in the dental assisting laboratory at College of Marin working with a model to fabricate an orthodontic appliance. It is a job she will be doing soon for a "real" patient in a dentist's professional office.

JACKIE COLTON displays a finished assignment — an x-ray the dentist can actually work from in diagnosing dental care needs for a patient. After the film is approved by the dental assisting instructor, it will be sent on to the patient's dentist.

Marin Males Exercise At Health Spas

One Answer For Out-Of-Condition

By DON KEOWN

The sedentary male may not be disappearing from the American scene, but he is definitely decreasing in number.

There's a new awakening to the importance of physical fitness. The women took it up first. But now their husbands, too, are exercising.

In Marin you see them jogging along the roadsides, bicycling on quieter city street, hiking on mountain trails and playing on the golf courses.

There's another group that looks to another kind of workout to keep them in the pink. They are the men who use the facilities of what was once called a gym, but is now referred to "in the trade" more often as a health spa.

IN MARIN COUNTY there are at least two such spas, open to men and offering the latest in muscle-building equipment.

At Bob Fuller's Conditioning Therapy, 1125 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield, there's the full layout of exercise equipment, sauna bath, steam room and whirlpools.

And at Town and Country Health Spa, 135 Third Street, San Rafael, there are also extensive and elaborate facilities.

Both places serve male members on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. On other days, the spas are for women only.

THE PICTURES ON this and the following two pages were taken by Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean at the Town and Country Health Spa, where Barbara Stafford is the franchiseholder, her brother Denny Stafford the new men's manager and Becky Lasiter the women's manager.

Something like $50,000 worth of special equipment, most of it developed by Eileen Powers Figure Salon with which the spa is affiliated, is available for the use of visitors to the carpeted premises.

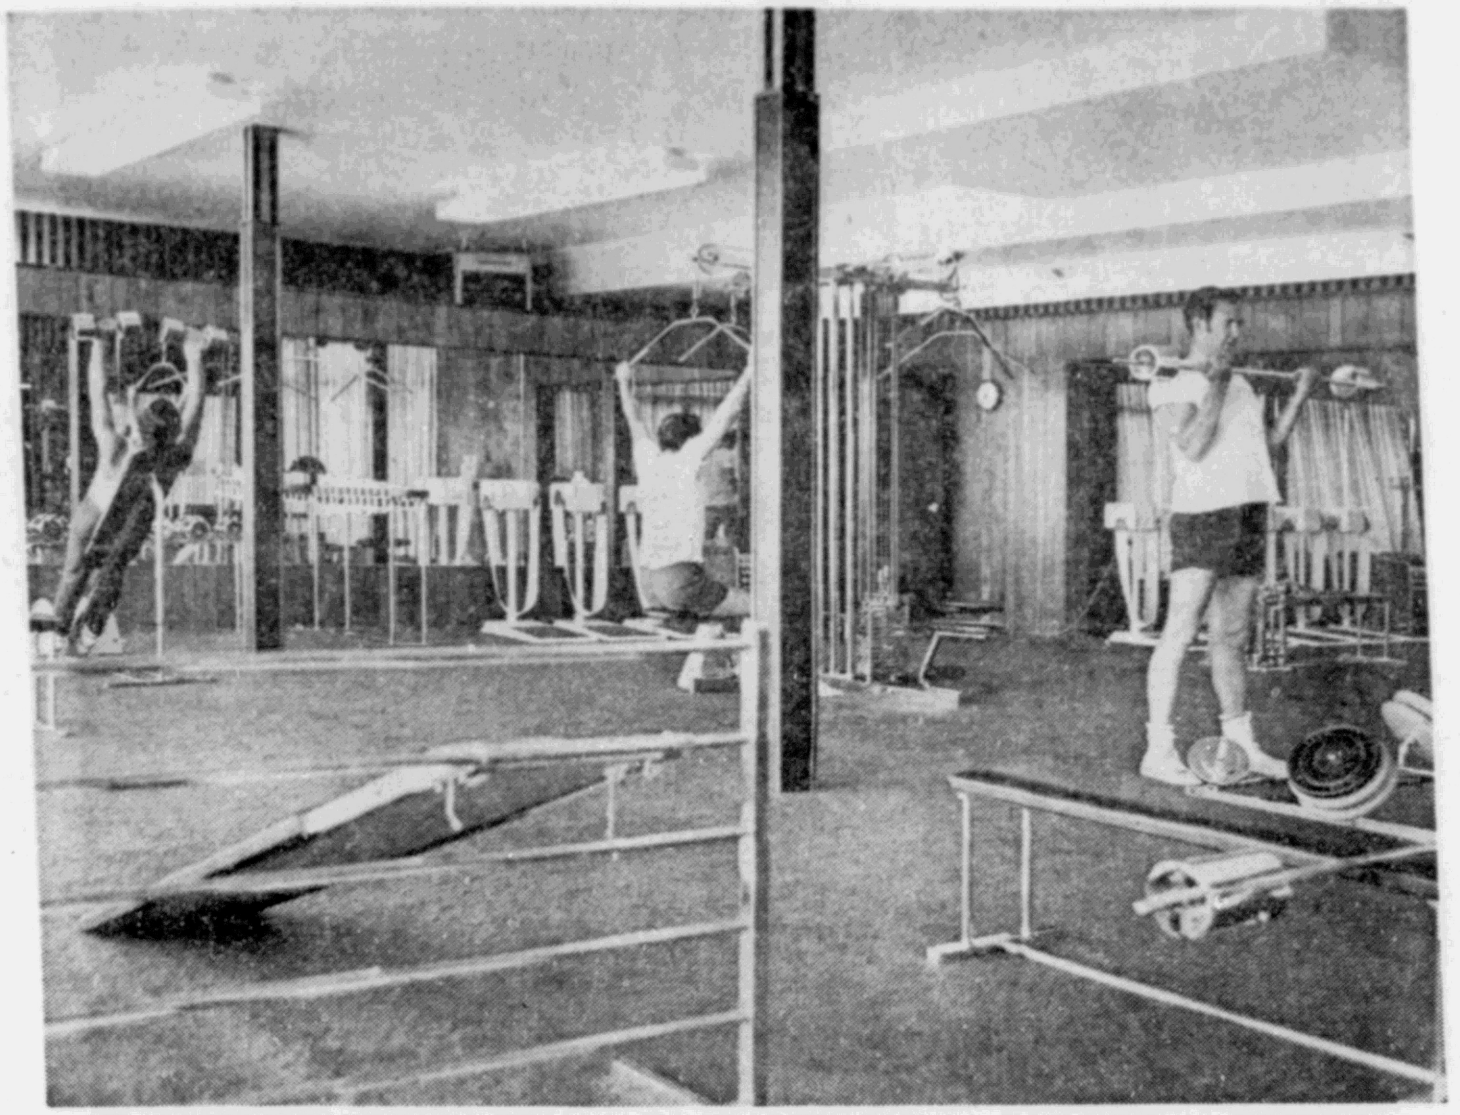
Why do men in increasing numbers sign up for courses at the spa?

Generally, says Stafford, because they have reached the sudden realization that they are woefully out of condition. They have been told by their doctor or by worried wives, or have come belatedly to recognize for themselves, that their sedentary habits have left them dangerously overweight or otherwise out of shape.

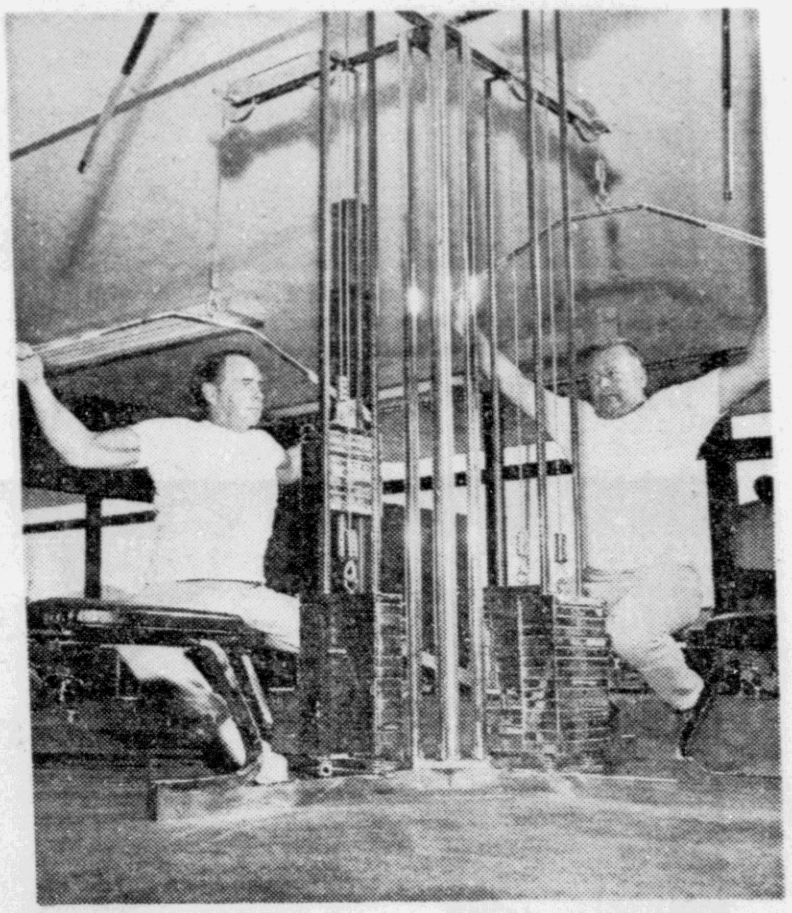
SHOCKED, SOMETIMES even scared, they begin the workouts that are a rigorous challenge for the unconditioned at the outset. But as the body hardens, from exercise and from new dietary habits, the workouts become easier. And what was once arduous toil becomes a pleasant outlet for increasing energies.

Who needs it the most?

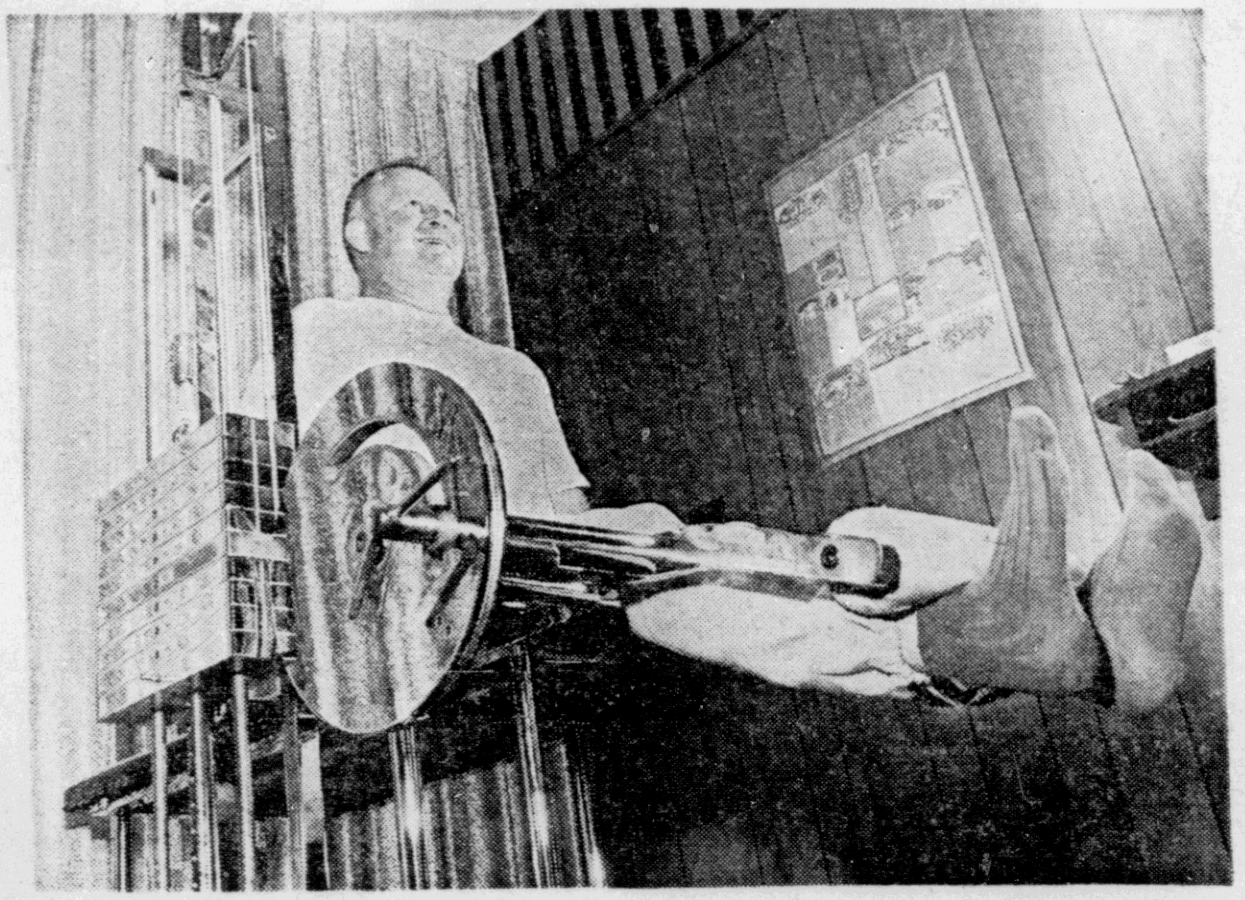
Executives and other office-workers, says Stafford, who are confined to desks and chairs most of their working days. As for ages, one is never to young, or too old, to begin a conditioning program. Ages at the Town and Country spa this summer have ranged from a 12-year-old to men in their 70s.



ON THE CARPETED floors and using the gleaming chrome equipment of the Town and Country Health Spa, 135 Third Street, San Rafael, men go through conditioning exercises. Like Bob Fuller's Conditioning Therapy at Kentfield, the spa is open to males on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. And a growing number of Marin men are making use of such gymnasiums in this physical fitness-conscious era.



JACK GASKILL, left, joins with Don Kinsella in a session on the health spa's "lat machine," designed to build up the arms, shoulders and back. Weights can be adjusted to lighten or increase the "pull." (Independent-Journal photos)



DON KINSELLA enjoys a workout on the "quadricep" machine at the Town and Country Health Spa. It's a device especially good at strengthening the muscles of the thighs and upper legs.

The Mystery Of The Missing Luggage

By MURRAY J. BROWN

NEW YORK (UPI)—It happens time and again every day in airport terminals around the world—some of the disembarking passengers turn out to be PAWOBs. No one calls for the police although the services of a private eye could prove helpful.

PAWOB is an airline acronym for a Passenger Arriving Without Baggage. And as unhappy as he or she may be, the airlines are even unhappier. It hurts their pride and pocketbook.

There are no over-all figures available on the total number of PAWOBs since the first one flew off in one direction and his bags went off in another. But last year alone the U.S. carriers paid out around 40 million dollars in claims arising from "misdirected" or "mishandled" luggage.

ONCE YOU HAVE checked in with the airlines—and hold on to your baggage claim tags—it is the responsibility of the carrier to deliver your bags to you on arrival at your destination. Actually, only a very small percentage of the millions of pieces handled (an estimated 225 million in 1969) is lost, strayed or stolen, and most eventually are found.

But that is small consolation for the PAWOB or the airlines. Airlines spokesmen admit that despite steady improvement, baggage handling is still one of their biggest headaches. It not only hurts financially but in customer relations.

"Consider, some of the things that can go wrong," said one source recently. "For instance, your bag could be misdirected; the destination tag torn off during handling; it could be taken off by mistake along the way or fail to be unloaded at the proper destination if the flight is continuing; or be picked up by error by another passenger in the baggage claim area."

AND THEN THERE are problems involved in inter-line transfer operations—that is when a passenger checks his luggage through to his final destination while flying on two or more different airlines.

"The passenger may make his connections even if his arriving flight may have been delayed," he said, "but his bags may not."

Nobody wants to be a PAWOB so here are some precautions to take:

—In addition to printing your name and address clearly on your personal luggage tag, put some easily-identifiable marks on the outside of the bag. A major cause for missing luggage is the passenger who grabs the first suitcase which looks like his and dashes off without anyone checking the claim tag. Tie a couple of bright ribbons to the handle, paste stickers or other markers on the top or sides, or daub the corners with paint.

—Tape a business or personal card or other identification marker with your telephone number inside each bag in case the luggage tag and destination tag are torn off or become illegible during handling. It will make it easier for the airlines to find you. Most airlines provide identification stickers free on request.

—Remove all the old destination tags before the next flight. They may impress some less-travelled fellow passengers and friends but they could confuse baggage handlers and your bags could be misdirected, unloaded at the wrong airport or left aboard the plane at the right one.

—If your flight plans include changes of planes and airlines, have your ticket written up to allow sufficient time between connections for checked-through luggage to be transferred.

The Travel Pages

GENERALLY, ABOUT one hour is enough if connections are at the same airport but you will need more leeway if it involves transferring to another, such as between Kennedy and Newark airports. There is no way of anticipating delays because of weather, mechanical trouble and other causes so many veteran travelers play safe by picking up their luggage between connecting flights.

I usually check through but always stow my toilet kit, a clean shirt, pair of socks and change of underwear in a small carry-on bag. My wife also packs her toilet articles and a change of clothing in her over-the-shoulder case.

If, in spite of all precautions taken by you and the airlines, your bags are missing when you arrive at your destination, contact the company representative at the airport immediately. He will start the back-checking which, hopefully, will locate them. Domestic airlines have a central "lost and found" headquarters with computers to help track down and recover "misdirected" and "mishandled" luggage. It's called the Airline Computerized Baggage Tracing System.

INCIDENTALLY, some airlines will compensate the traveler for "reasonable" necessary purchases to tide him over until his luggage is found. Ask, and you may receive.

Domestic and international airlines have fixed liability limits on lost baggage claims but you can buy extra insurance if you are carrying valuable belongings.

One more suggestion: don't leave your reclaimed luggage unguarded at the airport or allow anyone but a Skycap or someone you know to carry it out of the terminal. It may vanish and you will have no one but yourself to blame.

Mexico's Storybook City Offers Visitors Enchanting Experiences

GUANAJUATO, Mexico — This is a city of storybook fantasy. It is Mexico's finest example of Spanish colonial architecture, much of it unchanged since the early 1500s.

It is nestled in the converging arms of a mountain valley a short morning's drive (most of the distance over one of Mexico's few superhighways) from Mexico City.

GUANAJUATO once was Mexico's richest silver producing center. Not long ago, it was declared a national monument, which means that no modernistic buildings may be constructed within the city limits and that its surpassing Andalusian beauty will remain unspoiled.

The cobblestoned streets often dip into arched tunnels which weave beneath the city and then emerge every so often into splashes of sunlight.

Overhanging the streets are Moorish balconies covered with rainbow bougainvillea and exotic ferns and plants. Throughout the city are tiny squares built around exquisitely-manicured gardens or sculptured marble fountains.

MOTORISTS driving up the Centro ramp from the tunnels are surprised by one such plaza ringed with boxed trees. Yellow wrought-iron benches surround a matching gazebo where the local band in full marching regalia plays Sousa concerts two nights a week.

Guanajuato is a hiker's paradise. Many of the streets are too steep and narrow for automobiles. One passageway is so tiny that legendary lovers merely leaned over their balconies to kiss. Its name, naturally, is the Street of the Kiss.

Downtown, besides several massive churches built in the baroque Churrigueresque style, is the Juarez Theater. Concerts and operas are staged in this opulent colonnaded structure for the city's elite. The theater is open daily to the public.

SHOPS IN THE center of the city offer a fine hand-crafted silver jewelry and objects d'art. Aztec and Otami women sell beautifully-woven rebozas (shawls) in the market. Knick-knack collectors find a plethora of antique Spanish oddities in both the shops and the open-air market.

A glimpse of the soaring spires of the state college is well worth a short but bracing climb in the thin mountain air. Inside the college, there is a small museum whose unusual exhibits include rare stuffed birds.

An interesting, if macabre, sight in a cemetery located above the city is "las mommias" — corpses mummified by the hot dry air and lining a corridor of a catacomb.

SNAKING AROUND the hills above the town is a scenic drive leading to the massive stone block statue of Pipila, a revolutionary hero.

Many tourists drive three miles to the village of Valenciana where the awesome church of San Cayetana stands.

Built by an early owner of the now-abandoned silver mine (open to visitors), the church is the supreme example of Churrigueresque architecture and houses sweeping gilded altars. Legend has it that a fortune in silver dust was poured into the foundation.

FEW TOURISTS take the time (about half an hour) to drive to Cristo Rey, thinking it just another religious shrine.

It isn't. Cristo Rey is a soaring 150-foot statue of Jesus with outspread arms which dominates the highest peak in Guanjuato state. Though impressive at any time of day, the spot is magic at sunset. Filtering through the mountain air, the rays of the setting sun paint a panorama of color that is mind-boggling.

Guanajuato's weather is near perfect during the late spring and summer. Nights are cold and deliciously sleepable. The days burst with sunshine while the temperature meanders between 65 and 80. Humidity is near zero.

THE MEXICAN government has built three large ultra-modern motels on the outskirts of the city. They seem perpetually empty, so lodging is no problem. Dozens of smaller hotels and posadas are located in the town proper, offering clean rooms at rock bottom rates. One good bet is the gardeny Posada de la Pressa run by a pleasant lady who speaks excellent English.

Visitors wishing a taste of medieval splendor may book into the fabulous Castillo Santa Cecilia, a genuine castle refurbished with modern conveniences and now an elegant hotel. Room rates are strictly 20th Century, but an unguided tour is free.

One visitor who spent two weeks in Guanajuato in late spring when the jacarandas were exploding in purple blossoms described the town this way: "I'm not sure Guanajuato was real. It's like a picture town from a Spanish history book.

"But those gardens — they belong in Eden!"

WALKING ON cobblestone streets, two Mexican women wear the traditional reboza, one for style, the other for the carrying of her child. (American Airlines photo)

Hong Kong Offers Many Attractions For The Westerner

Shopping Is Just One Rewarding Pastime In The British Colony

HONG KONG (UPI) — There's no doubt shopping is a major attraction for American visitors in Hong Kong.

But there are other equally rewarding times in this British Crown Colony in the shadow of Communist China.

There is swimming at beautiful Repulse Bay or unspoiled islets in the South China Sea as well as various other water and land sports. There are fine restaurants featuring the exotic cuisines of old China and the foods of other Eastern and Western nations.

And there are super clubs, cabarets and other swinging spots for exciting after-dark entertainment.

BUT CERTAINLY Americans — still barred from Red China — should find time for walking or driving tours through this Western outpost which has become a sanctuary for millions of refugees from communism.

They'll find it a fascinating blend of East and West and of the old and new.

Modern office, hotel and apartment buildings on Hong Kong Island and mainland Kowloon tower over enclaves of dingy old tenements with laundry fluttering from windows, and squatter slums of old tin and wood shanties.

THERE ARE broad tree-lined boulevards with multi-storied department stores and shops with the finest silks, perfumes and other merchandise from around the world. And there are narrow alleys, noisy and strange-smelling Chinese streets, markets and bazaars and open-sided shops where men, women and children, work, live and play.

Rickshaw pullers in shorts and undershirts and men and women in flapping black pajamas carrying heavy burdens on yokes or poles on their shoulders vie for road space with taxicabs, powerful trucks and other vehicles.

Most of the older Chinese still cling to the traditional garb but younger ones dress in miniskirts and other Western styles. The only girls I saw wearing the provocative slit-skirt cheongsam were the waitresses in the Hilton Hong Kong nightclub The Den.

ALMOST THREE-quarters of Hong Kong's nearly four million population — 98 per cent are Chinese — live on the island and Kowloon. There are an estimated two million jammed into Kowloon's three and three-fourth-square miles and another million on the 29-square-mile island.

About 10,000 "water people" live in junks and sampans at Aberdeen and other anchorages. But less than one million are spread out in the 365-square-mile New Territories, which Britain holds under a 99-year lease from China expiring in 1997.

Americans should find the New Territories particularly interesting for a look at a way of life that has changed little over the ages.

IT IS MAINLY agricultural, dotted with terraces cut like stepping stones in the hillsides, shimmering rice paddies and carefully-tended truck gardens.

Peasants wearing conical hats and black pajamas till their crops and raise pigs, fish and fowl much as their ancestors did. Placid water buffaloes still pull plows and carts and men and women trot back and forth along the furrows with water sprinkling cans slung from yokes.

And it is like turning back the clock to step inside the old walled village of Kam Tin, built centuries ago by the Tang Clan. Their descendants still live inside the weatherbeaten stone walls in rows of attached brick houses, separated by narrow passageways.

THE CLOSEST foreign visitors are permitted to approach the border with Communist China is the Lok Ma Chau police post, about one-half mile away.

Even without binoculars, one can see for miles across the Bamboo Curtan from the observation platform. What one can't see with the naked eye, he is told, are the Red Chinese blockhouses and patrols along the Shum Chun River which marks the 17-mile-long boundary.

Americans need only a valid passport and International Certificate of vaccination against smallpox and inoculations against cholera and yellow fever if coming from an affected area for visits to Hong Kong for up to 30 days.

More than 20 international airlines serve Hong Kong and it also is a major port of call for cruise ships in the Far East.

THE UBIQUITOUS SAMPAN serves many purposes in Hong Kong including those of inshore fishing boat, floating shop and water taxi. For many, it is also home, a somewhat cramped abode while they wait for something better. Sampan dwellers anchor their craft in sheltered bays around the British crown colony's coasts. A favorite, shown here, is Aberdeen on the south coast of Hong Kong Island. An arched roof of bamboo converts a boat into a house, and it is not unusual for a half dozen or more people to live together on a 15-foot-long sampan. Many are the families of fishermen who go to sea in the larger junks while wives and children remain on the sampans.

Spy Pilot Francis Gary Powers Tells Story Of Ill-Fated Flight

OPERATION OVERFLIGHT by Francis Gary Powers; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 375 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Norm Howard.

Now, 10 years after the events it describes, Gary Powers' book surfaces, apparently with CIA approval, like a piece of cold war flotsam.

While he is not quite so gauche as to come out and say so, Gary Powers wants us to believe he is some kind of hero. Each reader must make this judgment for himself. But consider the evidence; After all, he did engage in dangerous espionage which very nearly killed him and ultimately resulted in his spending a very difficult couple of years in a Soviet prison.

Those who will recall that Powers was recruited for the U-2 program at a salary several times what most Americans can expect to earn at any time in there lives are simply being churlish.

Powers feels badly served by his government. Here, he does have a point. There were fair-weather patriots in the congress who said that he should have been ashamed to turn up alive after crash-landing his spy plane inside Russia. Powers also says not enough was made, upon his return to this country, of his wily evasion of some of his captors' questions. Well, the most fleeting of secrets are military one—sooner or later they turn up for sale in some capital or other.

All of this is not to pass judgment on the usefulness or necessity of the U-2 program. (Although, based on Powers' recollections, it is possible to make some unflattering observations on the management of it.) Nor is it in any way to criticize Powers' behavior during his captivity. To expect spies not to turn up embarassingly alive is sinister and glamorous in fiction, but it is hardly realistic or humane.

But for Powers — a living symbol of a foreign policy bungle of major proportions — to have expected any better treatment than he got from the sheepish bunglers was at least naive.

Up to this very day, Powers apparently doesn't understand the nature of the bargain he was making when he signed a contract with the CIA.

If you can possibly bear any more revelations about the way our affairs overseas are conducted, you'll find "Operation Overflight" worthwhile. Gary Powers writes like an Air Force pilot, despite the assistance of Curt Gentry, who last gave us "The Last Days of the Late Great State of California."

London's Police Minus The Myths

SCOTLAND YARD by Peter Laurie; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 297 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Usually anything but publicity-minded, the Metropolitan Police of London broke tradition to permit English journalist Peter Laurie access to many of its inner sanctums and to allow him to accompany bobbies and detectives on their rounds.

In this book, Laurie reports his experiences and his conclusions, and he peels away many of the romantic myths that have grown up around Scotland Yard, thanks to fiction writers and film makers.

What he reveals is a mammoth organization, somewhat unwieldy, but, considering the immensity of its tasks, more efficient than one has the right to expect.

Paperwork and red tape, the banes of all such systems, hamper the Yard as well. And not always has the Yard succeeded in shedding outdated procedures and equipment for more modern techniques and gear, sharing the general conservative English trait of a sometimes overwhelming preoccupation with and respect for the past.

Still, all in all, London's police stand as an example to the world in decent, restrained, effective law enforcement, using approaches the police of Chicago or New York (and the similarity is to these large city departments, not to our Federal Bureau of Investigation) might well copy. For instance, the handling of potential riots:

"In 150 years' co-existence," writes Laurie, "the Metropolitan Police and the London crowd have evolved an organic, non-violent relationship. That is not to say that there haven't been violent clashes, but they have been relatively few, and they are far less frequent now than in early days."

The policy is not to take "general action" against a crowd until disorder reaches spectacular proportions. Even then, gas, chemicals, water hoses, etc., are eschewed in favor of "men and horses close up" to disperse the threatening mob.

It may sound like mollycoddling, but the fact is that it has worked far better than quicker, less discerning, tougher reactions by the police of American cities and states.

In his discussion of detection and prosecution, Laurie notes that it remains the informant or "snout" who accounts for 90 per cent of the arrests. Hardly in keeping with the plots of those splendid British mystery novels where Scotland Yard detectives deduce from clues the identities of the criminals. But then fact is rarely closely akin to fiction.

Laurie describes, too, the operations of the traffic details on London's vast network of streets, the handling of drunks by uniformed personnel, the CID (Criminal Investigations Department) familiar to all mystery buffs, the Flying Squad, the laboratory and library facilities, the hierarchy of command, the system for "policing" the police, the training program.

Laurie's writing style is not especially appealing, and much of his book — organizational details, statistics, etc. — will be of interest only to those engaged or extremely interested in the police profession. But there is a considerable amount of material about the life and work of the London "copper" and the huge city with its teeming population that will interest the general reader. And there is more and more of this, as the book progresses.

Laurie also has some unusual and provocative ideas about police work.

". . . in crime, as well as in public order, the existence of the police is far more important than their efforts, " he writes. "If there were no law enforcement agency at all, few people would obey the laws. But if one exists, and is even only moderately efficient, then most people will not care to run the risk of getting into trouble. Given the fact of a police force, ready to prosecute if anyone asks them to, the level or criminality or good behaviour is then far more an organic characteristic of society. The mere existence of the police is their main contribution to whatever level of law-abidingness exists. The improvement that could be made by extra police effort is very small indeed."

"The flamboyant criminals, the murderers and armed robbers" must be arrested, Laurie agrees, "because these people create propaganda that will eventually nullify the deterrent." But aside from this, the role of the police is largely a symbolic one. "In their own persons they embody respect for the law. They persuade people to live honestly far more by their existence and example than because they physically remove wrong-doers from society."

Scotland Yard, if imperfect, is nevertheless much better than "moderately efficient, " Laurie's book makes clear. But it is in this symbolic role, with his conspicuous dignity and rock-like integrity, that the London bobby becomes a towering factor in making London with its millions of diverse peoples one of the most orderly and law-abiding great cities of the world. "His honesty, fairness and good sense are one supreme index of civilization," concludes Laurie.

SAN FRANCISCO SCENE

Musician's Novel About May-December Romance

THE ELECTRIC COTILLION by Don Asher; Doubleday, 215 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Francis Dozier Jr.

Musician Don Asher's "Electric Cotillion" is a commendable novel of a May-December romance set in the current San Francisco scene. The book, however, does contain certain flaws.

It is the story of Niles Davey, a 40-year-old, occasionally employed modern jazz pianist's brief affair with a girl-child of the NOW generation.

Several San Francisco reviewers have praised Asher for sucessfully bridging the generation gap, mainly, one can suppose, because the book's jacket blurb says that he has.

But he hasn't really; both man and girl end as they began: at separate poles.

Asher does, however, present what is undoubtedly an authentic insight into the slow death of that music genre that flourished in the forties and fifties. For example, a skillful aspect of this is done through Davey's vivid and sometimes flash remembrances of old friends, eastern jazz clubs and flash remembrances of old lyric phrases. When in one of these flashbacks, Davey and his wife to be, Noell, make love by blue candle light, he thinks: From this moment on you and I, babe, we'll be ridin' high, babe.

The book's main shortcoming, strangely, is the girl character, Poppy. From the opening chapter one suspects that she was not drawn from real life. She is too obviously fabricated.

Asher has her saying things like: "You mean to stand there looking at these sturdy legs and these knockers and call me 'man'?" And does anyone refer to teeth as "choppers" anymore?

A young black militant is thrown in for good measure and he, too, seems to be pure imagination, in contrast to a black woman singer in the past who appears perfectly believable.

In the main, though, Asher has woven a good book, sometimes fascinating and nostalgic. One only wishes that more credibility were given to the younger characters, since the book tries so hard to be "of today."

Primer For The Novice Izaak Walton

FRESHWATER FISHING by Charles W. Seaver; Hart, 157 pages, softcover, $1.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This small, illustrated manual by a veteran angler and writer on the sport is strictly for the beginner, starting from scratch with its discussions of equipment, techniques and the characteristics of the various species of fish. The basics are covered simply but completely, and there's a glossary of fishing terms to help the greenhorn cover up his inexperience. An unpretentious primer, it does the job for which it is intended, and does it quite well.

Listening To An Old-Style Liberal

By DON KEOWN

SO LONG AS YOU'RE HEALTHY by Harry Golden; Putnam's, 314 pages, $6.95.

Harry Golden, the Carolina Israelite, strikes us as the perfect example of the old-fashioned liberal.

We do not say that derogatorily, although it is fashionable to disparage liberalism these cynical days.

The old-style liberal, as exemplified by Golden, remains a decent, dedicated, sensitive, humane being. His social conscience continues to be one of humanity's redeeming features, an antidote to the selfishness of the more conservative society that surrounds him. His mellow, moderate approach sometimes seems an oasis of sanity in the turmoil created by the impatient demands and hard-line tactics of the more radical New Left.

Unfortunately, with all their virtues, these old-fashioned liberals at times appear hopelessly out of step with the new realities. Many have been utterly unable to adjust with the changed conditions of recent years.

They grew up largely in the era of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, although some trace their roots back to Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and the LaFollettes and Borah. They have been responsible for much of our social progress with their insistence upon, not great leaps forward, but consistent movement toward justice and equality.

They tolerated the interruption of their programs by war under Roosevelt, resumed their slow advances under Truman, fumed behind Stevenson's banner while the country marked time with Eisenhower, and embraced John F. Kennedy as a promising young leader after some initial misgivings.

With Kennedy lost too early, they rallied behind Lyndon B. Johnson for an uncharacteristic sudden surge forward. Then they found their aspirations bogged down again in war, this time a most costly and unpopular conflict that was shattering to their ideals. Caught in a pincers, between conflicting waves of arch-conservatism and leftist radicalism, they were thrown into confusion. The choice between a Hubert Humphrey, long one of their banner-carriers, and a Robert Kennedy or Eugene McCarthy, attempting to wed the old idealism to a new activism, tore them apart, individually and as a group.

The ultimate outcome was the installation in the White House of their arch-foe, the antithesis of all in which they believed, Richard M. Nixon.

Harry Golden, that wise old owl of Charlotte, N.C., adapted to change better than most. But even he has not been without his problems. His newest book, "So Long As You're Healthy," a collection of essays and commentary from his Israelite of the 1960s, reflects some basic misconceptions.

HARRY GOLDEN
The wise old owl of the Carolinas

For instance, his insistence that Negroes are combat soldiers in Vietnam "far out of proportion to their numbers in the population" because "Negroes are patriots. . .Negroes are combat soldiers because they love their country." There's no mention of the impact of an evil system that forces black young men to choose between the security of military life or the insecurity of a civilian existence fraught with unemployment and menial labor.

Unquestionably, many black men did enlist for the lofty reason Golden suggests. But it seems a simplistic explanation today in the face of reports that substantial numbers of young black men in uniform in Vietnam are more angry at the abuse and neglect of their own race in their homeland than they are concerned with Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

His description of Lyndon B. Johnson as a frustrated idealist will strike many as hopelessly naive.

He advocates a political coalition of the white American wage earner and the Negro as a means of achieving true equity — "The grandeur of America is that we are a politically-oriented society." He does agree that such a combination "appears to be a long way off." But worse than that, we have been losing ground, as the polarization has worsened.

Still, Golden is far more often wise than foolish, expressing truths and insights about our society with a warm sort of Will Rogers wit.

"What Americans worry about most: Calories, Communism, Body Odor."

On studies of television and its censorship: "I have a feeling that tenement rats do more to destroy family morals than the Noxzema girl who says: 'Take it off, take it all off!'. . .It is my contention that every television set has its own built-in censor: the knob."

About lynchings: "Despite all our piety, we are a violent country, ruthlessly brutal and ruthlessly materialistic; and we learn our lessons too slowly. As a nation we may venerate many things, but law is not one of them."

And: "Industry would just as soon do away with the middle class and have one vast buying class. Industrialists are lucky they have so far escaped detection. The middle class is mad, first at Christians, whether or not they wear a collar, and next at elective officials. The higher the office, the madder the middle class gets. Lastly, the middle class is mad at the native-born Negro citizens who either want their rights or expect hominy and grits for the next few days to keep the family alive."

Or: "Fannie Hurst wasn't what was wrong with the novel, or this world."

The electric toothbrush: "Was it for this Benjamin Franklin risked electrocution?"

On fountain pens: "Fifty years ago a boy got a fountain pen at his bar mitzvah, and 30 years later he still wrote his prescriptions with it as a doctor. I defy any pen to do the same today. I admit today's pens do some jobs far more easily than the old fountain pen. They are much better when it comes to writing on butter and much, much better when it comes to writing under water. But after all, how much butter do you want to waste to write a letter, and how long can you last under water?"

Thus Harry Golden pokes fun at our foibles, gently but effectively. One wishes that the essays were dated, particularly those that deal with matters that have changed greatly in recent years. And one regrets as he reads that the Carolina Israelite no longer publishes, to bring us its unique brand of commentary, pithy, amusing, provocative, individualistic.

But most of all, one is pleased that Harry Golden himself is still with us and still commenting. One readily forgives him those instances when his point-of-view seems frayed or antiquated, knowing that on the next page one will encounter something fresh and completely contemporary.

As, for example: "I believe that the first requirement for being humane is the recognition of humanity, and humanity is essentially the human story no matter how high we go into space or how many planets we eventually explore. The human story remains the same as it was a thousand years ago and as it will be a thousand years from now, the story of a man, a woman, and a home and the relationship of one to the other."

"INDIAN JOURNALS" (City Lights, $3) represents Allen Ginberg's experiences, observations and impressions recorded, sometimes poetically, always emotionally, of India as he found it in 1962 and 1963 while there absorbing the culture, mysticism and flavor of the ancient land. "Mostly tortured introspection," he calls it. And, indeed, there is as much examining of the inner Ginsberg as there is of the outer India. The poet reports with equal intensity, whether describing the taste of a banana, or the ritual of the cremations. Readers' verdicts will no doubt divide among already established lines. Ginsberg admirers will love it. Ginsberg detractors — or those bewildered by him — will reject it. It's the kind of twain that never meets.

BLOOD MONEY by Thomas B. Reagan; Putnam's, 183 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

Earl Boulton's father never paid him any attention, and his mother showered him with gifts and very little else. So Earl learned early in life that he could find companionship through what was to him the thrilling channel of crime.

The one big one, the one that would put him and his wife, Anita, a former go-go dancer, in clover for years was a bank holdup. He, Anita and a young friend who needed money designed and executed a plan. It went like clockwork.

Then Earl's life blew up and innocent people were murdered. Earl found himself alone, really alone, for the first time in his life — and hunted. Fear drove him to disguise himself. The only people he knew were a gang of cruel motorcycle riders and hitchhikers, and even these foretold of doom.

Reagan's novel is expertly plotted, an exciting Red Mask mystery.

TO CATCH A SHADOW by Bradshaw Jones; Bobbs-Merrill, 184 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

Jones's new book is a little jewel about jewel thieves who have outwitted an elaborate electronic alarm system to steal $300,000 worth of jewelry from a leading London firm.

A refreshing addition to the mystery shelves, the book unfolds the story both of the master criminal behind this and other thefts as well as the hunt for him directed by a police superintendent.

The little people as well as the middle men in the plot come easily, but the big guy is finally caught only through a strange but believable foul-up. The book is a refreshing change from the usual "whodunnit," with some good descriptions of interesting characters including both cops and robbers.

New Albums Released By Columbia —

By JOHN SUNIER

Some new albums from old-reliable Columbia:

MORTON SUBOTNICK: "Touch" — Columbia MS 7316:

Another magnificent addition to the electronic literature from a former Bay Area composer now living in New York.

Subotnick, already acclaimed for his synthesized scores commissioned by Nonesuch Records, now is with Columbia and has reached new heights of non-verbal communication with this singular work. Using the Buchla synthesizer, which does some things the more famous Moog does not, Subotnick seems to bypass all barriers of communication through music and reach the listener in a gut-level manner that is amazingly objective. In other words, certain portions of the piece communicate the same emotions to nearly every person hearing them.

Try this one in the dark.

MOONDOG: "Theme;" "Stamping Ground;" Symphoniques Nos. 3 and 6; Mini-Symphony No. 1; "Lament;" "Witch of Endor;" Symphonique No. 1 — Columbia MS 7335:

Moondog is a unique New York phenomenon previously known to only a few cognoscenti of the off-beat in music.

He is a blind street musician who has done some fairly serious composing in a classical mode as well as improvising fascinating folktype music which seems to be an amalgam of influence from dozens of countries and cultures simultaneously. This is his first recording in many years, and the first of his large orchestral works, which are conservative in harmonies but not in rhythms or voice-leadings. There is a great deal of ostinato pattern work which may get on some listeners' nerves.

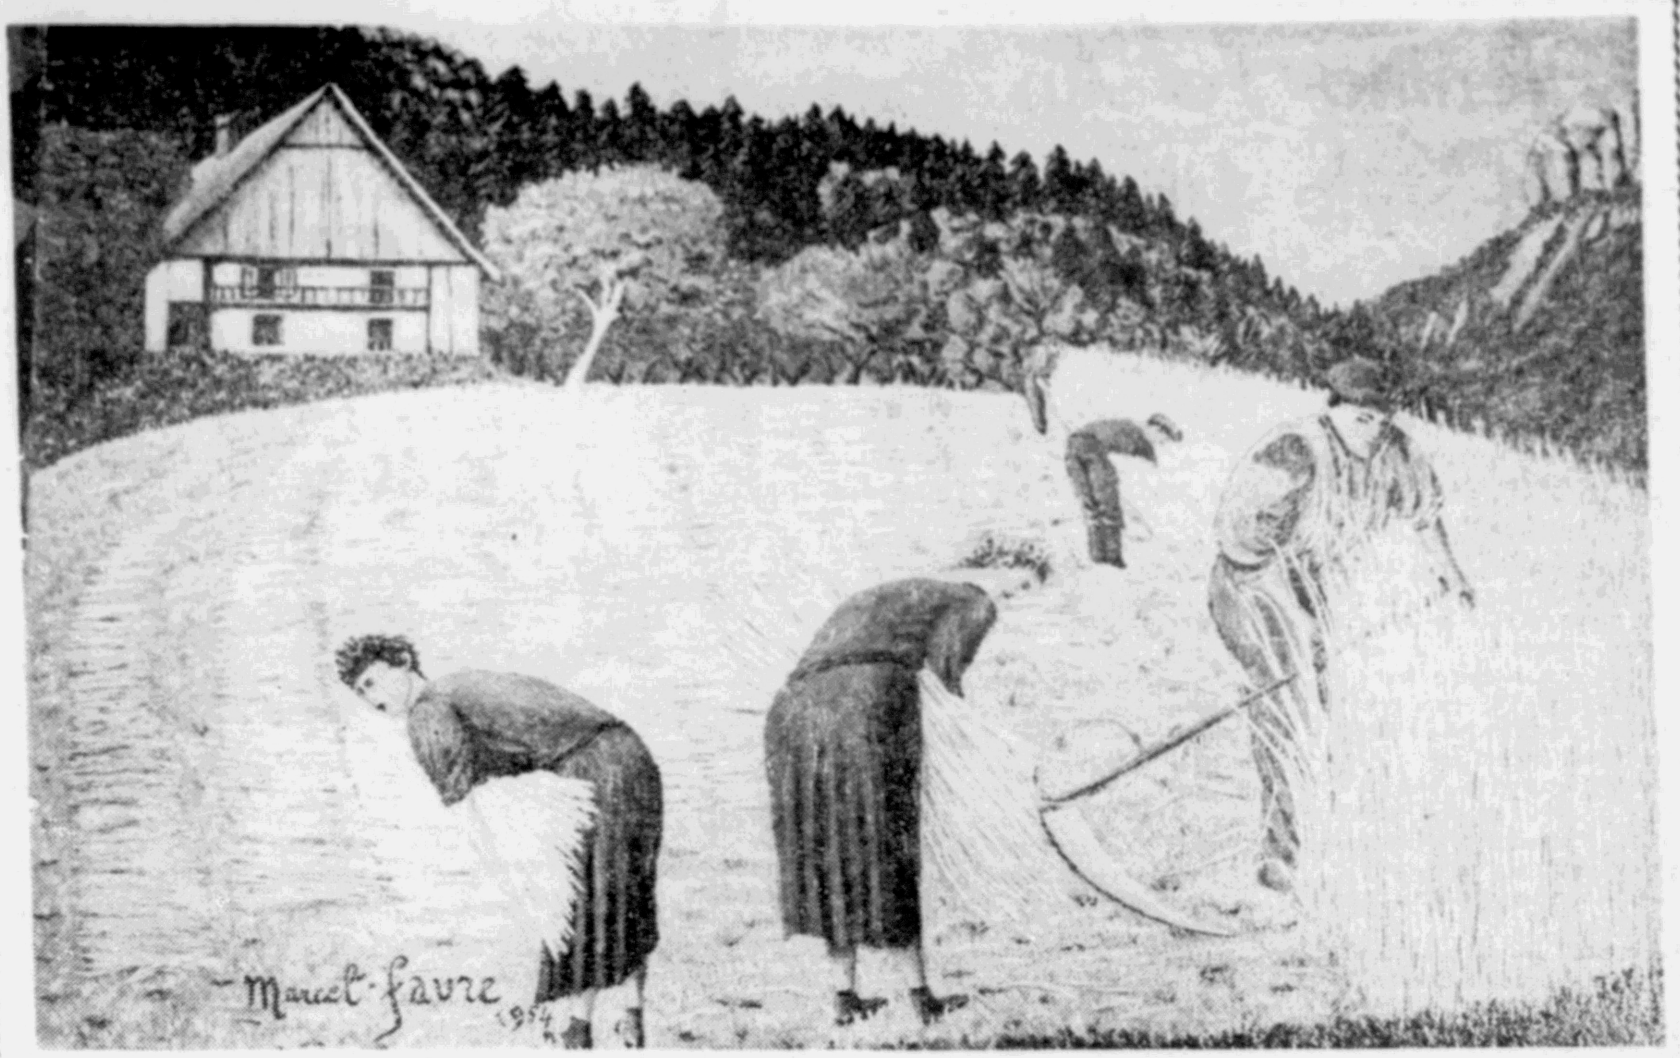
A large number of top New York musicians are present on this date, some of them playing some of the special percussion and stringed instruments which Moondog has invented.

Moondog cannot be well described, he must be experienced. If this record can be brought to the attention of the younger rock set, I think they would really dig it.

"SWITCHED-ON ROCK" — The Moog Machine — Columbia CS 9921:

This is one of the first of many Moog LPs to hit the shops lately that is almost 100 per cent Moog-generated. Only a drum set and one other live instrument which the listener is left to identify (I couldn't find it) are added to the electronic monster that speaks with its very own musical language of gwirps, pwees, moogoboes, sweetswoops, and other effects that never before existed in music.

Several people collaborated on this project, which features imaginative Moog arrangements of tunes such as "Spinning Wheel," "Get Back," and "The Weight." Bit of a bore to hear both sides in succession, but a real kick in shorter installments.



INCLUDED IN THE current exhibition of work by the "naif" painters of France at the Musee d'Art International, 507 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, is the above canvas by Marcel Favre, leader of the group. The "naif" painters are untrained artists engaged in other occupations — farming, sailoring, etc. — with painting as a secondary vocation. Favre was until recently employed by the French Finance Department. A collector of art, he himself began to point at the age of 40. An imaginative reality and a preoccupation with detail mark the naif work.

New Books For Juniors — Three From Sesame Street

Three more books stemming from the smash television hit, "Sesame Street," have joined the two reviewed here earlier.

The new additions are:

"The Sesame Street Book of Shapes" introducing the child to a variety of geometric shapes and relating them to familiar objects. The aim: to sharpen his sense of perception.

"The Sesame Street Book of Puzzlers" offering the youngster an opportunity to use his powers of reasoning in solving simple problems.

"The Sesame Street Book of People and Things" acquainting the pre-schooler with himself, the people and things he will meet in daily living, and some of the vital rules for living — patience, sharing, etc. — in today's society.

The books were developed for Time-Life Books by the Preschool Press of Weiner Communications System Inc. of New York City, working with the Children's Television Workshop and making extensive use of the TV show materials and techniques. Little, Brown and Co. is the distributor. The books are hardbound, each 64 pages, all profusely and effectively illustrated. They retail at $3.95 per book.

Some other new books for the juniors:

Veteran pleaser of children Paul Galdone has adapted and illustrated an ancient fable to produce in his "Androcles and the Lion" (McGraw-Hill, $4.95) a funny, yet moralistic, storybook. The artwork is typical Galdone — bold, warmly humorous, eye-catching. And the version of the story is filled with the kind of turnabout surprises that delight youngsters.

For smaller children, Gladys L. Adshead has written another of her charmers about the Brownies and their friends. In "Brownies — They're Moving!" (Walck, $3.75), the elves give Grandfather and Grandmother a helping hand in their move to a new labor-saving home, and create some problems for themselves in the process. It is a merry little book with a happy ending, with lively illustrations by Richard Lebenson.

Some Candidates For Hot Spots Against The Wall

Garden Page

Planting against a sunny wall needn't be a problem though reflected heat and oven-like exposures can play hob with some shrubs. Any nurseryman can show you a varied assortment of plants that like it hot.

One rule of thumb is to seek grayness in a shrub's foliage. Gray shrubs, as a trip through the desert would indicate, show great resistance to heat. The attractive foliages enhance the landscape, too, blending nicely with other plant materials.

The Cotoneaster family has many members that can take it. The selections range from groundcover types to large-growing shrubs.

THE GRAY LEAF Cotoneaster (C.glaucophylia) is a low grower, whose versatility in the landscape makes it a favorite for single or massed plantings.

Bush Morning Glory and Bush Germander (teucrium fruticans) are silvery-gray shrubs to use where low-to-medium growers are required.

Rockroses thrive in hot spots and have plenty of green foliage plus pleasing flowers. Use them at the far reaches of the garden — and don't pamper them.

For a planting that absorbs the sun's hottest rays and reflects only freshness, rely on the vast family of Junipers. From carpet-like groundcovers to large, spreading varieties you'll find several to choose from.

IF YOU HAVEN'T shopped for Junipers lately, you'll be amazed at the colorations of green, gray, silver and blue available. The colors, shapes and textures of the different varieties make it possible to achieve distinctive effects. Check out what your nurseryman has to offer.

Bloom-wise, Oleanders and Crape Myrtles rate top consideration. Native Ceanothus — and Californians can select from several — offer carefree gardening and handsome planting. The lilac-like blooms in shades of soft blue to deep purple smother these natives.

JUNIPERS ARE AMONG the many plants that reflect a cool freshness on the warmest summer days, even when planted in the heat of a sunny wall. This one is the Hollywood Juniper with a rich, dark green foliage and an interesting growth habit that makes it an excellent accent planting. (Photo courtesy of California Association of Nurserymen)

In our coastal gardens, Bougainvillea and Lantana are excellent for color and both will take any heat. Inland gardeners will want to plant this pair in protected areas to prevent frost damage.

These, like so many shrubs your nurseryman can show you, thrive on neglect — not an unpleasant trait for today's hurried gardeners.

Syngonium: Foolproof Houseplant

Are you looking for a foolproof houseplant? One that's easy to grow and yet always looks attractive?

Then get a syngonium.

According to a Pennsylvania State University correspondence course on houseplants, syngoniums want semi-shade, average house temperature and humidity, and soil of equal parts garden loam, perlite and peatmoss kept evenly moist.

They tolerate abuse and irregular care.

The plants have arrowhead like leaves on long stalks. There are many varieties.

Trileaf Wonder has white-spotted leaves six inches long on petioles up to 20 inches. Emerald Gem has crinkled foliage and grows compactly. Mostly the plants you find offered for sale have glossy green leaves of solid color on petioles eight to 10 inches long.

Propagation is by single-node stem cuttings. A leaf with node and short section of stem inserted upright in moist peatmoss or perlite at 75 to 80 degrees soon takes root.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

The Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔ Fast-growing and colorful perennials such as Geraniums, Marguerites, Shasta Daisies and Agapanthus, and those annuals, Zinnias and Marigolds, can all be planted now and will soon be coloring your garden in brilliant tones.

✔ During warm summer days, your lawn and garden will need regular, deep watering. By watering deeply, penetrating through each plant's root zone, you will help the plant and conserve water at the same time. Watering deeply — at intervals — encourages the plant to develop a deep root system.

✔ Cut faded hydrangea blooms from those shrubs, but delay really tough pruning until early 1971.

Beware Of The Backyard Boobytraps

By VIVIAN BROWN

Your backyard boobytraps may be nearly as dangerous as those found on a battlefield.

Safety precautions will insure a healthful summer for the family.

For example, there are the swimming pool horror tales. A neighbor's completely guarded pool may be just as dangerous for inquisitive neighboring tots as an unfenced one. One person had a fence with a locked gate and a cover over a pool but a child drowned in water that had collected in the pool cover.

The person who had taken all these precautions obviously was safety-minded, yet an unsafe condition arose that should have been noted.

THE CHILD OF A well-known theatrical personality was outdoors with nurse, mother, father and teen-age sister. He managed to run barefoot in the sand over hot embers left from the previous night's luau. His badly burned feet gave him and the family an unhappy summer.

Broken glass is another bugaboo for children who enjoy running around barefoot and even for adults who attempt to remove it with bare hands. One gardener bent down to pick up a bottle that proved to be broken. She wound up in the hospital with a severe cut.

Another potential danger — particularly to children allergic to bees — are yellowjacket nests in the ground or among trees where children are likely to play. If you see yellowjackets, try to locate their nest and warn youngsters. Remove the nest when you can.

GLASS DOORS THAT lead to gardens and patios cause a great many accidents even to wary adults, especially in summer when doors are likely to be kept cleaner. A spiral motif in the center of each door or a little border of something or other at the bottom of the doors may provide warning.

Removable muntins can provide visual restraints.

Slippery surfaces around pools should be carpeted in non-skid materials and the pool should be inspected by the family scuba expert before it is used by unwary guests. Many accidents are caused because a person dives into a pool that is loaded with children's toys.

ONE PERSON DIVED into such a pool before his host had arisen, hitting his head on the raised ladder of a large metal fire engine.

It's a good idea to be cautious about inviting people to use your swimming pool when you are away from the house. You are liable for injuries and your best friend may not hesitate to sue if something goes awry.

Safety rules shouldn't be left at home when one goes off on a day trip. How often does one see in a small craft a big child wearing a little lifejacket that says "good for up to 50 pounds" — the same one he had when he was 4 years old.

ALL SORTS OF safety clothing is available in sporting goods shops but entire families will board a boat completely unprepared for emergencies.

Resort doctors and hospital clinics do a thriving summer business as the result of some of the strangest little accidents. Everyone should make a visit to such an emergency station before he begins his vacation in the area.

A person should think twice about letting a small child bait a fishhook or run barefoot on an unclean beach.

DOCTORS EXTRACT fishhooks from fingers, eyes, ears and other unlikely places of children and adults. One deep sea fisherman let a fish bite off the tip of his finger. Another cut his arm, eagerly trying to scale a small fish with a big butcher knife.

Outpatient departments of hospital clinics take on an atmosphere of comedy at times where inquisitive little boys may be seen sitting with an arm stuck in a bottle or thumb in the small hole of a flower pot.

One boy observed was wearing a birdcage over his head. No one at home had a tinsnips.

But it isn't only the lollipop set that has amusing freak accidents.

One man with teeth marks on his arm explained that he had reached in a zoo cage to retrieve his child's sweater and he had been bitten by a monkey.

Well — that's what he told the doctor.

Build Yourself A Storage Closet Lined With Cedar

Investing money wisely in your home not only adds to your pleasure in living in it, but it increases the value and resale worth of the home.

When it comes time to sell the house, any profit or loss — barring any major fluctuations in the cost of real estate — will depend largely on the general condition of the house and upon the improvements you have made.

A prospective home buyer isn't interested in impractical, expensive frills. He or she looks for useful additions which make a home more comfortable and more livable.

HIGH AMONG the things he looks for is storage — number of closets, size and location of the closets, and the kind of storage they provide. For this reason, and for your own convenience, it is wise to increase your storage facilities in connection with any remodeling or home improvement project.

One of the best ways to do this is to build a closet in the basement, attic or garage.

In ranch houses particularly, there is often ample basement space for the construction of a full-size closet.

And to make such a closet even more functional, it's a good idea to line the interior with aromatic red cedar closet lining.

BUILDING A cedar closet in the basement requires no great carpentry skill. It's a relatively simple matter of framing out the area earmarked for a closet with two-by-four studs and then nailing the cedar pieces directly to the studs. No other backing material is required.

If the closet is to be built on an outside wall, it is recommended that a vapor barrier of some sort — a polyethelene sheet, for example — be used for protection against dampness.

Apply the cedar lining horizontally, working from the floor up, one wall at a time.

Cedar lining is tongue-and-grooved along the sides and at each end for easy and more secure installation. The pieces hold together firmly even if they join between bearing points. Use small finishing nails and drive them into the face of the three-inch wide lumber.

FOR MAXIMUM moth repellency, it is best to apply the cedar lining to the ceiling of the closet and to the back of the door as well.

After the cedar lining has been completely installed you can nail up your shelves, hanger poles and other pieces of hardware to fit out the closet to your particular needs.

For a finished, professional-looking job, fit cedar quarter-round molding at all wall, ceiling and floor junctions.

THIS WALK-IN cedar closet can easily be a part of a family room addition. Studs for one wall of the closet already are in place, so it becomes a matter of framing out the other three walls, then nailing strips of aromatic red cedar directly to the vertical two-by-four studs. For greater moth-repellency, cedar lining should be mounted to the inside of the door. If a solid door is used, the lining can be nailed directly to the door surface. If it's a hollow-core door, you're better off mounting the cedar with a cartridge-type adhesive.

Reagan Decides Not To Cut Welfare Spending

Foes Of Governor Cheering

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— Gov. Ronald Reagan, abandoning a controversial plan to slash welfare spending by $25 million, today sought an alternative "which cannot be sabotaged by arrogant social workers."

Meantime, Democratic legislators and representatives of two welfare worker organizations cheered the repeal of "emergency" regulations Reagan ordered to cut back attendant care for the blind, aged and disabled.

He has beeon caught in his incompetence," said Coleman Blease, spokesman for the 5,000-member Social Workers Union, AFL-CIO.

Faced with the threat of a court suit by a federally financed legal aid group for the poor, Reagan Friday ordered the cancellation of the rules. He bitterly assailed social workers who he accused of sabotaging and subverting his campaign to reduce welfare costs.

At a hastily called extraordinary news conference, the Republican governor charged social workers with "terrorizing' 'the most needy recipients by ordering their aid stopped.

He insisted the rules, scheduled to take effect Aug. 1, were not intended to force any truly deserving recipient out of his home and into a county hospital or other nursing institution.

"Apparently, the regulation was worded in such a way they (social workers) could claim they were adhering to the letter while they violated the spirit," he angrily told newsmen.

"This is a clear subversion of our intent and can only be interpreted as an attempt to sabotage our efforts toward responsible administration of the program," he said.

Reagan two weeks ago ordered currently budgeted state funds of $24 million for attendant care reduced to $14 million. The reduction triggered a loss of another $15 million in federal and local matching funds.

The governor, seeking reelection, said cancellation of the regulations would restore the $10 million in state funds, at least temporarily.

Some county supervisors and welfare directors charged the state administration with mere-

B52 Armada Called Out To Halt Red Drive On Gun Base

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Command sent an armada of B52 bombers today against what was described as the beginning of a North Vietnamese attempt to drive American troops out of another gun base near the Laotian border.

Paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division abandoned Fire Support Base Ripcord in South Vietnam's far northwest corner Thursday after losing 61 men killed and 345 wounded since July 1. The base was deemed too costly to maintain.

Now, military sources said, the North Vietnamese have turned their attention to another 101st gun base, code named Veghel, 16 miles southeast of Ripcord. Like Ripcord, it commands a view of Communist infiltration routes into the A Shau Valley from Laos.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Command said B52 bombers came in this morning and dropped up to 150 tons of 500- and 750-pound bombs into a target area four miles west of Veghel, where the guerrillas were believed massing.

Veghel and a third gun base along the valley, Katherine, were spared serious attack during the 23-day North Vietnamese drive against Ripcord.

Hanoi Radio said the abandonment of Ripcord was a "heavy defeat" for the American paratroopers.

The bombing near Veghel marked a continuation of a steady strean of aerial attacks against the Communist supply lines in Laos and in the A Shau Valley as the Allies strive to prevent an expected guerrilla offensive in the northern war zone.

Tactical fighter-bombers flew strike after strike Thursday and Friday against North Vietnamese positions around the abandoned Ripcord base and then the B52s came in and dumped heavier bombloads on the camp to render it useless to the guerrillas.

Ground fighting in South Vietnam and Cambodia was reported light this morning, with spokesmen listing two battles from Friday in which U.S. infantrymen killed 59 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese. One American died and six were wounded in the fighting.

One of the battles, 270 files north-northeast of Saigon, saw 400 troops of the 4th Infantry Division swarm into a guerrilla base camp aboard 30 helicopters after ground fire from the camp shot down the American helicopter. The crewmen were not hurt.

Spokesmen said the bodies of 39 Comfunist soldiers were found after the five-hour battle 19 miles northwest of the Central Highlands town of An Khe. U.S. casualties were listed as six wounded with no fatalities.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, who fought the second clash Friday, reported killing 20 Communist soldiers in a one-hour firefight near Rang Rang 48 miles northeast of Saigon.

The cavalry division infantrymen were backed by helicopter gunships, artillery and fighter-bomber strikes. Spokesmen said U.S. casualties were one killed.

One American was killed and one wounded Friday afternoon when Communist ground fire shot down and destroyed a second observation helicopter in the Mekong Delta 46 miles southwest of Saigon.

I-J PROTEST

Hundreds Are Expected For Rally

Hundreds of demonstrators were expected to gather today in San Anselmo to march to San Rafael for a protest rally against the Independent-Journal.

The Bay Area AFL-CIO labor rally, led by farm organizer Cesar Chavez, was to be the fifth major protest since San Francisco Typographical Union 21 struck the I-J Jan. 7.

On the first day of the strike, which was to be marked by vandalism, threats and death, about 100 pickets attempted to prevent the departure of delivery vans from the I-J parking lot.

Employees entering the building were shoved and verbally assaulted, and an invasion of newspaper property by pickets resulted in a brief scuffle. One employee's clothing was ripped as the tried to enter the building, and employees' cars had tires punctured and tacks strewn under them.

Two employees were struck with picket signs as they left the building.

Not all violence and vandalism accompanying the confrontation on Jan. 7 occurred at the demonstration. Linecasting machines and six I-J delivery trucks were sabotaged before the strike officially began, and bottle of paint thinner were thrown at one employee's home but did not ignite.

In a second confrontation Jan. 17, approximately 500 strike sympathizers joined printers' union pickets in forming a human chain that ringed two blocks in San Rafael.

All tires were punctured on the cars of three I-J employees, a side window was smashed on a delivery truck and police where called out to clear Julia Street, blocked by demonstrators in an attempt to prevent movement of I-J delivery trucks.

One demonstrator was arrested on suspicion of disorderly conduct when, according to police, he charged a line of policemen trying to clear the street, attempted to grab a police sergant's night stick and spat on patrol car windows as he was taken to jail.

The third confrontation, on Feb. 14, was organized by a committee of Bay Area AFL-CIO union leaders similar to the committee of 25 Bay Area AFL-CIO union officials which organized today's rally.

Charles B. Weers, secretary of the Marin County Labor Council and co-chairman of the committee which organized today's rally, was also a member of that committee.

Approximately 700 union members and sympathizers attended the rally, which turned into a riot resulting in 17 injuries — eight to law enforcement officers — and 12 arrests, which resulted in charges ranging from misdemeanor vandalism

Nader Attacks Mine Safety Indifference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said today the Nixon administration was indifferent toward the safety and health of the nation's coal miners.

A report compiled by a group of law students, backed by Nader and partially financed by the Interior Department, also charged that the United Mine Workers Union and the miners themselves had failed to take an active role in forcing action on their problems.

The report, released by Nader at a press conference, concluded that Nixon has disregarded Congress' intentions in the 1969 Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act.

"If the President's posture toward black Americans has been termed 'benign neglect,' the attitude toward our coal miners can well be termed calculated indifference," the report said.

The report, written by J.

ISRAEL UNDECIDED

Jordan Near Nod On Peace Proposal

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Jordan was reported on the verge of accepting the U.S. plan for indirect Middle East peace talks today, leaving only Israel's response in doubt. One Tel Aviv cabinet minister said the proposal "must be rejected."

Political sources in Beirut predicted the Jordanian government would announce its acceptance within 24 hours. It met this morning with Dr. Hassan Sabry El-Kholy, and Egyptian envoy who was counseling Jordan to follow Cairo's lead in accepting.

Egyptian officials announced that Syria, a front-line Arab nation that was not invited to take part in the talks, had approved Cairo's decision to join the negotiations anyway, indicating tacit approval.

The talks, through U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring, would begin after a three-month cease-fire takes effect. Israel has voiced opposition to the standdown, contending Egypt would use it to build up its Suez Canal line.

Israel's development minister, Haim Landau, said the American proposal "must be rejected since it really is a plan to liquidate Israel by stages," forcing it to withdraw from territories captured in the 1967 Middle East war.

Premier Golda Meir of Israel met for 90 minutes Friday with the American ambassador to Jerusalem, H. Walworth Barbour, who was reported to have given her Egypt's acceptance statement and urged Israel to go along with the plan despite its doubts.

Fighting flared during the night on the Israeli-Jordan frontier, where Tel Aviv said its troops killed two Arab guerrilla infiltators. The guerrilla command in Egypt has assailed the U.S. plan and vowed to ignore it and keep fighting.

Jordan and Egypt were the only two front-line Arab nations to receive the plan. Cairo accepted it but President Gamal Abdel Nasser assered Friday he has "absolutely no hope" for a political settlement.

Tel Aviv's reply was expected next week.

"If Israel rejects the plan and the United States resumes aid (to Israel), American interests in the Arab world will Friday in Cairo, alluding to be in danger," Nasser said American oil interests.

kIf the U.S. and Britain continue sending arms to Israel, he said, "There should be a major confrontation between the whole of the Arab world and America and Britain."

He added, "If Israel makes reservations in her answer, if she says she must keep part of Arab territory, Jerusalem for instance, this would mean the initiative has failed."

U.S. officials were reported pressuring Tel Aviv to accept the plan despite its contention that Egypt would use the truce to build up its Suez Canal defenses.

Successor To Finch Moaning, Too

WASHINGTON (UPI) —HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson says he complained "loudly and clearly" to the White House because he wasn't consulted before President Nixon vetoed a $2.76 billion hospital construction bill.

Richardson, who took over the post last month, said in a UPI interview that he had experienced "failures of communication" with the White House, a complaint voiced frequently by his predecessor, Robert H. Finch. Finch is now a White House counselor.

Richardson said he called presidential assistant John Ehrlichman "mainly to record, as forcibly as possible, the assumption that I would in the future have full opportunity to be heard.

"I just felt that if I did not record this loudly and clearly at this time, there might be some similar inadvertent failure in the future."

Richardson, former undersecretary of State, also said he believes there is a "better than even" chance the Senate Finance Committee will approve the administration's welfare reform proposals despite this past week of hostile hearings.

The administration welfare plan, which would provide a

Pinheiro Site Urged For Shopping Center

By JEFF GREER

Novato must create a major, regional shopping center and its associated facilities — or risk losing its future to Petaluma in the north and San Rafael in the south.

The warning, and potential ways to reach the goal, are sketched in an 118-page report on the downtown Novato program, prepared by consultants Sedway and Cooke of San Francisco.

The study, financed by a $30,000-plus federal "701" planning grant, suggests drastic steps may be necessary:

1. The city government, or perhaps a combine of city government and specially created private corporation, should acquire more than 100 acres of downtown Novato, to control its development.

2. One major regional shopping center similar to Northgate should be created, preferably on the Pinheiro ranch. If the property owned by the Frank Pinheiro family cannot be obtained, less favored choices would be the San Marin East property north of the Pinheiro ranch, and the Downtown Novato shopping center, now a growing neighborhood center at Seventh Street and Grant Avenue.

Much-discussed plans for a shopping center at the intersection of Highway 37, South Novato Boulevard and Highway 101 are written off by the consultants.

The report will be presented by Sedway and Cooke to a joint meeting of the Novato City Council, planning commission and downtown study committee at 8 p.m. Aug. 3 in the multipurpose room of Hill Junior High School.

The report advises Novato's city government to take extensive — and sometimes drastic — steps including urban renewal proceedings, condemnation of land if necessary, creation of assessment districts and parking districts for improvement of the downtown area, and extensive guidance of any private development in the area.

The downtown figuring in the survey lies west of the future 101 bypass, generally south of the future Atherton-101 interchange (unless the San Marin East area must be used as the regional shopping center site) and northeast of Novato Boulevard, except for the Diablo

Novato Votes Again Tuesday On Hiking School District Tax Limit

The Novato Unified School District, without funds to grant raises to employees, will again ask voters Tuesday to increase the district taxing limit by 85 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Polls in the special election — second this year — will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in 14 locations.

Voter approval would increase the tax limit from $3.481 to $4.341 for general purposes and the total tax rate from $5.345 to $6.195.

A similar proposal was narrowly defeated by voters in April, with 3,072 in favor of the increase and 3,461 against. Fifty-one per cent of the district's 12,848 registered voters cast ballots. A simple majority vote is required for passage.

If the increase is approved, the board has said it will restore cuts made in district programs as a result of a fiscal 1970-71 squeeze and also consider employee raises.

"There is no doubt additional income would be used to make cost-of-living increases," board member Carolyn M. Crabtree told the Independent-Journal.

The board has not indicated how much of the increase it would use in 1970-71 if approved by voters.

The board, in deliberating a $9.9 million budget for 1970-71,

Hardboard Paneling: Easy To Work With, Nice To Look At

Simplicity Of Today's Products Is Suited To Amateur's Needs

Working with hardboard panels today can be learned quickly by either amateur or professional carpenters.

Much of the simplicity lies in the product, its availability for prompt delivery to the site and its workability with common tools.

Consider a room addition. Here, two basic types of hardboard are used: exterior siding and interior paneling.

A wide variety of hardboard siding is available, ranging from prefinished Colorlok to textured Ruf-X, Moonspot and Barkridge, plus smooth-surfaced and grooved boards.

SIDINGS COME in panels or lap styles. Some are completely prefinished in colors. Some are pre-stained. Most are factory primed, requiring only on-the-job finish coats. Prime-coated or prefinished hardboard sidings ease the decorating chores, of course.

Depending on the climate, the hardboard sidings are applied either directly over stud walls or nailed to studs first covered with sheathing and vapor barriers. Development of improved hardboard siding has made nailing easier than when the product was introduced 15 years ago.

Shiplapped joints eliminate need for battens. Butt joints require caulking ahead of nailing on battens.

PRIME PAINTED aluminum siding corners, designed specifically for Masonite brand siding products, require no face nailing.

Craftsmen may cut the siding with a fine-toothed hand saw or a power saw with a combination blade.

Interior hardboard panels come in a variety of finishes, ready for installation. Because of the prefinished feature and the easy, damp-wipe maintenance, thousands of installations today are made with this type of paneling.

DEVELOPMENT of a cartridge-type adhesive makes panel installation a breeze. Nailing is eliminated and the job speeded up markedly. Four-foot -wide panels cover a wall rapidly, and the joint treatment includes a vertical groove to simplify installation.

For those who insist on nails, a color matched product is available.

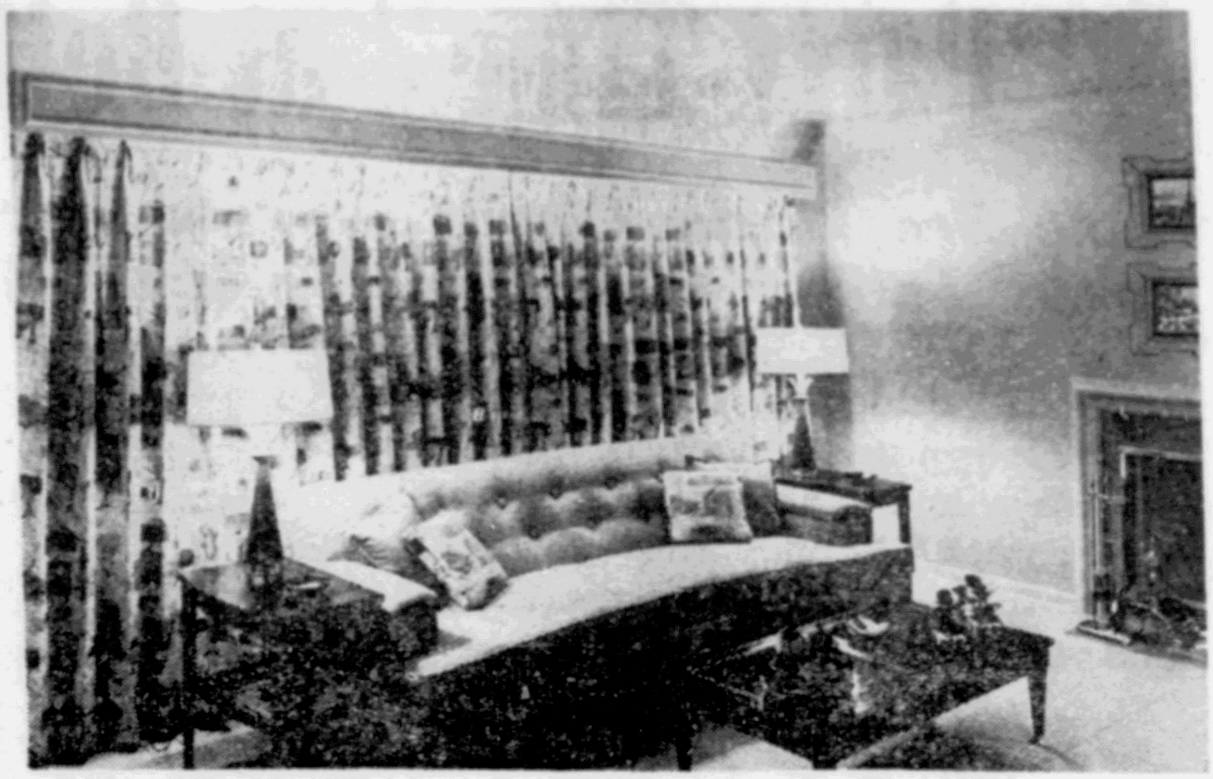
Also, color-matched or coordinated moldings may be obtained to give any installation a professionally-finished appearance.

"How-to" of paneling is relatively easy. In new construction, panels may be bonded directly to wall studs. In existing homes, they may go directly over old walls, if they're "true;" otherwise over furring strips.

PANELS MAY be sawn on the job to fit, as required.

Many colors, textures, patterns and moods are available in hardboard paneling. These range from three-dimensional textures to prefinished woodgrains to replicas of aged colonial paneling.

Prices are reasonable — in the neighborhood of 30 cents a square foot, retail.



ANYONE WHO has been confused and frustrated by a traverse rod will appreciate a new simplified guide that takes all the fear and mystery out of installing traverse track, making valances, cornice boards and hanging draperies. Directions tell how to measure, make and hang valance boards, and how to install track, make and hang draperies. All the hardware, right down to the last bolt and bracket, is illustrated and described to permit amateurs to make like "pros" on their very first attempt. Send $1 for Easi-Bild's Book No. 627, "How to install Traverse Track," to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510. Be sure to include your zip code number for prompt delivery.

RED CEDAR SHINGLES, long used for the exteriors of homes, are being used inside as well. "Why Did My Dress Bras Stiffen In Cleaning?"

The reason relates to an old situation. It used to be found in dress shields, then in bonded shoulder pads. Now that sewn-in bras are made a part of many dresses, we find the old complaint returning.

The rubber or "foam" which form the bras deteriorates in drycleaning fluid. Some of the materials react by stiffening. Others crumble and lose their shape. This is why dress shields and shoulder pads had to be removed before drycleaning. The same is true, now, of sewn-in bras. If the garment is cleaned, this trouble would not occur. But when drycleaned, the sewn-in bras should be removed first.

Car Bomb Kills Phone Executive

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Philip J. Lucier, president of the Continental Telephone Corp., was killed Friday when he turned the ignition of his car and set off a pipe bomb planted beneath the seat.

Two vice presidents of the firm, who were returning from lunch with Lucier, were uninjured although they had just opened the doors of the black Fleetwood Cadillac to enter.

Lucier, 49, had jumped in ahead of the vice presidents to "cool it off," apparently meaning he would start the air conditioning in the car.

The vice presidents were James L. Robb and James V. Napier, both of the St. Louis area.

Major Herbert Johnston, assistant chief of the Clayton police department, said the victim "was damn near cut in two. It looked like he sat on a stick of dynamite."

The explosion ripped a hole in the floorboard under the driver's seat, sent the back portion of the seat through the rear window and shattered the windshield and side front windows. Two holes were punctured in the roof.

Johnston said the device was wired to the ignition and apparently went off when Lucier turned the ignition switch. He said the bomb was what is usually called a "pipe bomb," galvanized pipe filled with black powder.

It was placed under the front seat on the driver's side, Johnston said.

"It probably took no longer than five minutes to install," he said. "It was apparently a professional job."

The car was parked in a lot at the Pierre Laclede building, a few blocks from the Continental Telephone Building in the suburban Clayton business district. The three had been eating at the St. Louis Club in the building.

Police said they did not know who would want to kill Lucier, who was the founder and first president of the company.

Police checked other cars in the area and executives at Continental requested a check of all company cars but no other bombs were found.

Yale Professor Hits Gun-Carrying Police

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Yale psychology professor says police should not be allowed to carry guns during campus disturbances unless there is evidence that students also are armed.

He termed the shooting deaths of six students this spring at Jackson State University in Mississippi and Kent State University in Ohio "murder by civil authorities."

Kenneth Keniston, author of two books on radical youth, told the President's Commission on Campus Unrest Friday that campus activists "are in many ways the most able, independent, morally concerned and politically aware of students on American campuses," rather than "The stereotype widely held in America of the activist as a 'rotten apple' or 'bum' acting out his neurotic problems."

The way "to stop the killing on campus," he said, is to "take the murderous weapons out of the hands of civil authorities who have so far done the killing."

In response to a question from Cleveland Public Safety Director Benjamin O. Davis, Keniston said he would permit police to enter a campus with guns only if they had evidence that students were armed.

Activism, he said, is "the effort of the best educated generation in world history to push our society toward practicing what it has always preached. Activism is a product of the success, not the failure, of our society's efforts with the young.

"In the years to come, an ever larger group of students will be disposed by their backgrounds and convictions to become activists." He said the public and police "must become reconciled" to campus unrest.

He compared it to "similar public feelings of outrage" when workers were forming unions and demanding new rights in the 1930s.

Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee made a similar analogy. And he said student strikers should be required to take a strike vote before walking out, just as union members do.

He said, too, that just as union members lose wages for the time they are on strike, students should be denied academic credit while striking.

David A. Keene, chairman of the Young Americans for Freedom, blamed "appeasement" by college administrators for campus turmoil.

CRASH NEAR SPAN CLAIMS 10TH VICTIM

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The toll is San Francisco's worst automobile crash rose to 10 Friday with the death of John Simer.

Simer 19, was one of nine young people riding in a mustang bound to Marin County when the car was struck by a speeding southbound sports car on the San Francisco approach to the Golden Gate Bridge July 11.

Six persons riding in the Mustang and three in the sports car were killed immediately.

Investigators from the Federal Highway Safety Division in Washington, D.C., blamed gross driver error on a substandard stretch of state highway for the crash. The dive of the sports car, said witnesses, accelorated to more than 100 miles an hour prior to he crash.

Two other passengers, Laurence Lucas, 17, and Carl Campbell, 21, remain hospitalized with injuries suffered in the accident.

State Paints Manson As A Racist Leader

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state Friday opened its murder case against Charles Manson and three female members of his "family" by describing him as a "megalomaniac" who wanted to start a race war.

Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi said in opening remarks "the evidence will show that one of Manson's principal motives" for murdering actress Sharon Tate and six other persons "was to ignite . . . the black-white revolution by making it look like the black people had murdered the victims . . . thereby causing the white community to turn against the black man and ultimately lead to civil war, a war Manson foresaw the black man winning."

WORD 'PIG'

He noted the words "pig," "helter skelter," and "rise" had been written in blood on the doors and walls of the home of Sharon Tate and Leno LaBianca, where the murders took place.

Bugliosi said Manson believed the blacks would wipe out all whites, except him and his chosen followers, who would be hiding in the desert in a place called the Bottomless Pit, which "Manson derived from Revelation 9, the last book of the New Testament."

He said Manson believed the blacks would be unable to handle the reins of power because of inexperience and would have to turn to those whites who escaped the slaughter."

Manson, who had carved an "X" in his forehead, glowered at Bugliosi as he spoke. His three co-defendants, Leslie Van Houten, Patricia Krenwinkel and Susan Atkins, whispered and occasionally giggled during the opening statement by Bugliosi.

After completing his opening remarks, Bugliosi called Paul Tate, father of the 8slapn actress, as the prosecutions first witness.

COMPOSED, TRIM

Tate, a retired Army colonel, was composed, trim and specific in his answers about the last time he had seen his daughter alive and his acquaintance with other victims, coffee heiress Abigail Folger, hair stylist Jay Sebring and polish writer Voityck Frokowski.

After testifying, Tate took a seat in the crowded courtroom and watched the defendants without displaying a sign of emotion.

The state then called Wilfred E. Parent, whose son, Steven, 18, was killed at the Tate home; Winifred Chapman, the maid who found the bodies on the morning of Aug. 9, and William Garretson, 18, the caretaker who lived in the guest house on the Tate estate and who at one time was questioned as a suspect in the slayings.

Garretson said he spent the night of the murders in his room, listening to a stereo and writing letters after the younger Parent had left after stopping for a visit.

When the trial resumes Monday, Manson family member Linda Kasabian is expected to be one of the first witnesses called.

Bugliosi said Mrs. Kasabian, who was a member of the family for a month, witnessed three slayings at the Tate residence. He said she has been promised immunity for her testimony about driving members of the cult to the murder scene and that the principal killer was Charles Watson, 24, who is currently fighting extradition from Texas.

31 Nabbed In Violation Of Curfew

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) —Sporadic vandalism and window smashing shattered a night as police sealed off this central New Jersey city under a state of emergency declared after three previous nights of violence.

Thirty-one persons, including eight juveniles, were arrested on charges of violating the curfew which Mayor Patricia Sheehan termed "effective."

One of those arrested, William Belk, 20, also was charged with resisting arrest and assaulting a policeman following a scuffle during which Belk and three policemen crashed through a barbershop window.

Police from seven communities, sent in to beef up the 81-man New Brunswick force to 110, were dismissed by 1:30 a.m. EDT today when quiet returned this community of 42,000 including 12,000 blacks and Puerto Ricans.

City spokesman John McDonald said the latest disorders were centered in the Hale Street and Commercial Avenue area off the main business section near the scene of Thursday night's violence which culminated with police firing five volleys of buckshot over the heads of 15 youths to disperse the group.

Roadblocks manned by helmeted, rifle-carrying police straddled major arteries to prevent entrance to the city by outsiders. The sale of liquor and gasoline in containers was banned after the curfew was imposed.

$200 A Party Drug Catering Ring Is Cracked

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—A narcotic ring which catered to drug parties for a flat fee of $200 was cracked with the arrest of four men, the Allegheny County Sheriff's office said. Thousands of dollars of drugs were confiscated.

Three of the suspects, arrested Friday at a city gasoline station, were charged with possession of drugs and dealing in narcotics and other dangerour drugs. A fourth man identified by sheriff's deputies as the "supplier" was arrested later in the day.

Confiscated were quantities of morphine, heroin, hashish, marijuana, amphetamines and drug paraphernalia, a deputy said.

The rng sold enough drugs for a party of 15 persons at a fee of $200, he said. The gas station was the headquarters.

Heath Selects New Exchequer Chancellor

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has chosen European Affairs Minister Anthony Barber as chancellor of the exchequer to mastermind his sweeping economic recovery program for Britain, political sources said today.

The exchequer vacancy occurred when Iain MacLeod, 56, died Monday of a heart attack after less than a month in office.

It was not known who would succeeded Barber in the job of chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. His specific assignment as European Affairs minister has been heading the British delegation to the Common Market membership talks. One possibility mentioned was Minister of Technology Geoffrey Rippon.

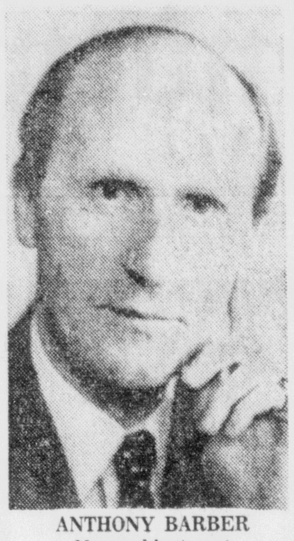
Barber, 50, has been a close friend and working associate of Heath for years and was widely credited with organizing the Conservative party victory in the June 18 general election.

Political speculation earlier this week had centered on Harber, Home Secretary Reginald Maulding and Sir Keith Joseph, minister for health and social security, as possible candidates for the job, comparable to the secretary of the treasury in the United States.

Sources said Maudling, who was chancellor of the exchequer in an earlier administration, told Heath he was not anxious to take on the economic hot seat again. They said Joseph was rejected as not having sufficient economic and financial experience.

The sources said Barber was picked largely because of his closeness to Heath for many years. He had four years experience as financial secretary to the treasury in former Prime Minister Harold MacMillan's administration.

In picking Barber, Heath may have indicated he plans to keep a close personal eye on running the nation's economy. They said he could do so more easily with Barber than he could have with a man of MacLeod's strong personality.



ANTHONY BARBER
New cabinet post

The government is faced with carrying out programs to slash direct taxation and government spending at a time when the economy is suffering from unemployment, stagnant business, sagging exports and the threat of adverse effects from the present dock strike.

Family Fuss Leaves Five Persons Dead

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A family argument apparently triggered a knifing and shooting spree that ended with five persons dead and two children wounded Friday.

Sheriff's deputies said the incident began when Cleve Van Metcalf, 34, fatally stabbed his wife, Jonnie, 28, during a family quarrel. Their daughter, Mary Ann, 13, was wounded when she tried to intervene.

Deputies said the argument began when Mrs. Metcalf ordered him out of the home. They said the argument apparently stemmed from Metcalf's arrest July 16 on suspicion of molesting his children. Mrs. Metcalf refused to prosecute.

Then, authorities speculated, Metcalf grabbed a revolver and ran to a nearby home where he shot and killed Mattie Wilson, 22, and Linda Walker, 14.

A security guard, Cleveland Verdine, 34, told officers he saw Metcalf run into the second home and then heard a series of shots.

When Metcalf ran out carrying a revolver and headed toward a third home behind the one in which Miss Walker and Miss Wilson were shot, Verdine said he pulled his gun and ordered Metcalf to drop his weapon.

Instead, Verdine said, Metcalf whirled and opened fire. Verdine said he fired three times at Metcalf, but the man escaped into the third house, where Perline Wilson, 22, was shot to death and 10-month-old Vallisa Harby was wounded in the hip.

Authorities said Metcalf returned to the second house and apparently killed himself. A revolver was found beneath his body.

Authorities said all of the victims were related to Metcalf by marriage.

The Wilson girls were sisters of Mrs. Metcalf and the Hardy infant was the daughter of another Wilson sister, Mrs. Bobbie Wilson, who was not at home at the time.

Alioto To Seek Job Again, Paper Claims

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mayor Joseph L. Alioto will seek a second four-year term next year, the San Francisco Chronicle said in its Saturday editions.

The newspaper credited "reliable sources close to the mayor" as eliminating all doubts about the one-term mayor's immediate political future.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

European Visit

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—The U.S. Air Force C5 Galaxy, the world's largest aircraft, made its first visit to Europe today on a shakedown trip from Dover, Del., to prepare it for regular cargo flights beginning next month.

After a stop at Rein-Main Air Base the huge transport is to continue on to air bases in England and Spain before returning to the United States Tuesday, an Air Force spokesman said.

The C5, one of 17 in the U.S. Air Force, can carry up to 265,000 pounds, has a range of 7,320 and a maximum speed of 540 miles per hour.

The spokesman said the C5 service initially will involve only about one run per week between Rhein-Main and the United States.

Hopper Hearing

TAOS, N.M. (UPI)—Movie actor-director-producer Dennis Hopper, who played a motorcycle pilgrim in "Easy Rider," faces a preliminary hearing here next month on charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

Hopper and three others were arrested last month and released on $2,000 bond each. They were accused of brandishing guns during an incident near Taos June 16.

Keeps Promise

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The man who thought up the Vice President Spiro T. Agnew wristwatch has kept his promise to donate part of the profits to charity.

Mrs. Hale Dougherty, wife of the Anaheim, Calif., physician who designed the timepiece and whose family marketed it as the "Dirty Time Co.," presented a $2,500 check to the City of Hope Medical Center Friday.

The Swiss firm which manufactures the watch also donated 20,000 Swiss francs (about $4,800) to Mrs. Stephen Hanson of El Toro, Calif., who represents the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

Slaying Hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The President's Commission on Campus Unrest will hold three days of public hearings in August in Jackson, Miss., where state troopers killed two Jackson State College students during campus disturbances in May.

Soviet Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission said Friday seismic signals indicate the Soviet Union set off an underground nuclear explosion of between 20 and 200 kilotons at about midnight EDT Thursday.

Wrong 'Word'

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—A Seattle police officer who ran unsuccessfully for mayor last year is on three-day suspension for using the word nigger over the police radio.

Acting police chief Charles R. Gain of Oakland, Calif., said Ross "Tex" Roddam used the word twice Thursday to describe four men he stopped. Gain said the penalty would have been more severe except that the derogatory words forbidden by police regulations to be broadcast are never explicitly spelled out.

Roddam lost in the primary in his mayoralty bid last year.

Rehearsal Party

HOUSTON (UPI)—Julie Nixon Eisenhower and her husband, David, attended the rehearsal dinner Friday of her former college schoolmate, Susan Harvin of Houston.

The President's daughter and Miss Harvin became close friends during their college days at Smith. Susan asked Julie to be her bridesmaid at her wedding today. David will be an usher.

Maddox Shaken Up

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UPI)—Gov. Lester Maddox was shaken up and bruised Friday when the state patrol car he was riding in skidded on wet pavement and struck a concrete abutment.

Burger Denies Appeal By Union On Pickets

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger denied yesterday an appeal by San Francisco Typographical Union 21 from a lower court order that held it in contemp in connection with picketing against Independent-Journal advertisers.

The appeal was from a contempt ruling handed down June 24 by Judge William T. Sweigert of U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

At the request of the National Labor Relations Board, Sweigert held that the union had violated his April 28 temporary injunction restricting picketing at seven Marin businesses and one in San Francisco which advertised in the Independent-Journal.

The NLRB said the union was using illegal signs to picket the advertisers.

In finding the union and four of its officers in contempt, Sweigert ordered the union to stop picketing I-J advertisers for 14 days. The union has complied with this part of the order, according to Nathan R. Berke, a San Francisco attorney representing the I-J.

If and when the union resumes picketing advertisers, Sweigert ruled, signs must clearly state it is the newspaper being struck and not the stores who advertise.

In addition to ordering the 14-day halt to picketing, Sweigert also directed the union to notify its members by mail that the union, its officials — Leon Olson, union president; John J. DeMartini, vice president; G. M. Bachich, secretary-treasurer, and Donald H. Abrams — had been found in contempt, post notices for 60 days at union halls admitting contempt and to pass such notices to advertisers for display to customers and to order union members not to engage in further illegal picketing.

These conditions were appealed to Burger after the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld them July 6.

Hundreds Expected For I-J Protest Rally

to felony assault on police officers.

The I-J was besieged by a mob which smashed almost every window in the building, spattered paint on wall, threw rocks, threw a stink bomb into the building and mounted a club attack on police who arrived to restore order.

San Francisco Typographical Union 21 has denied repeatedly any connection with this or any other acts of violence and vandalism which have occurred during almost every week of the strike — now in its 29th week.

The official directory in the May 1970 Typographical Bulletin, official publication of San Francisco Typographical Union 21, lists among its general officers John J. DeMartini, first vice president, and Donald H. Abrams, representative.

DeMartini was charged with felony assault on a police officer during the Feb. 14 riot, and Abrams was charged with assault and battery stemming from an incident which occurred when he was picketing on Feb. 4.

James R. Brocato, delegate to the Sonoma County Labor Council from the local, was arrested on June 3 and has been charged with conspiracy to break windows of I-J advertisers in San Rafael and Novato.

Dennis J. Crowley, arrested with Brocato and placed under the same charges, was listed as secretary - treasurer of the local's executive committee. Crowley had been arrested in November, 1966, for similar activities related to a strike against the Concord Transcript.

A planned major confrontation March 7 was different from the previous three confrontations in two respects — it was organized by a nonlabor group, Students for a Democratic Society, and it was without violence or vandalism.

Organizers held rallies at two San Francisco colleges and and passed out leaflets at at least four schools. SDS officials predicted a turnout of 1,000-1,200 students, and preparations for the rally were being made on the basis of their estimates.

As television cameramen, merchants standing by their shops and police — 100 on duty and 400 more from Marin and Southern Sonoma county jurisdictions on mutual aid standby — waited expectantly, about 50 young people gathered over an hour after the rally was to have begun, politely applauded rally speakers and quietly dispersed.

Today's rally had been advertised in leaflets as nonviolent, and San Rafael police have said they do not expect, but are ready for, violence.

Six motorized patrols were set to control traffic on the parade route along the Miracle Mile, and six to eight officers were to accompany the parade on foot. Fifteen to 20 officers have been stationed at intersections along the route for traffic control.

The only special precaution taken, according to Capt. Thomas L. Stephenson, deputy San Rafael police chief, was to request mutual aid units in Marin and Southern Sonoma to be available on standby in case riot conditions do occur.

Some merchants with businesses near the I-J building have made plans to be standing by their businesses — some of which are normally closed on Saturdays — to observe the rally and to do what they can to prevent damage should the expected crowd not be as peaceful as leaflets advertising the rally have predicted.

Whether the march and rally scheduled today will remain peaceful the people of Marin, the Independent-Journal and local law enforcement agencies were waiting to find out.

Jury Finds Pair Guilty Of Drug Charges In '68 Raid

A jury of seven women and five men in Marin Superior Court deliberated about three hours yesterday before finding two young men guilty of drug charges stemming from a raid on a plush San Anselmo house in November 1968.

Andrew Samuel Perri, 21, was convicted of arranging a sale of LSD to a narcotics agent, and Hamilton Bassett Henry, 23, of possessing LSD and marijuana for sale.

Perri, Henry and four other persons were arrested in a raid on an expensive home at 156 Crescent Road which officers said held a chemistry laboratory capable of producing LSD.

LSD and marijuana valued at $35,000 were seized by agents, who said that the San Anselmo house was linked to heavy drug traffic in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district.

Perri, a Haight-Ashbury resident, met an undercover San Francisco officer, Garrett McDonald, who lived for months in the drug culture under the name of "Moses," through an informant, identified only as "Dick."

According to McDonald, Perri agreed to arrange for the sale of $4,000 in LSD pills at $2 each by the San Anselmans. Perri testified in court that he had only agreed to lead McDonald to a fan who could sell him a large amount of marijuana.

He called this man "Chemist Tom" and said he was not present when he, McDonald and the informant arrived in San Anselmo.

Perri claimed he did not know the residents, but that they allowed him to use the bathroom, where he was arrested along with the occupants of the house.

Henry, who gave the Crescent Road address when booked into jail, denied in court yesterday that he had ever lived there. He did admit, however, that two letters found in a bedroom were written to him.

The cases of two other persons arrested in the raid have already been disposed of. Henry's sister, Christine Jane, who was 18 at the time of the arrest, was tried in juvenile court.

Peter Russell Robbins, who was 21, pleaded guilty in 1969 to being in a place where narcotics were used.

After telling Judge Hadden W. Roth of municipal court that he "had learned his lesson about drugs," the judge allowed Robbins to return to his Texas home to enter college.

Still awaiting trial are David Charles Hoye, 22, and Mary Theresa Rosenbaum, 21, who are charged with possessing LSD.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered Perri and Henry held in jail under $20,000 bail each until sentencing Aug. 14.

Thurber's Bail Set: $250,000

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bail for Frank J. Thurber, accused of the murder of Independent-Journal employee Allan W. Daly, was set at $250,000 during a municipal court hearing yesterday.

Thurber, who has been in city prison since July 16, was reported still in jail today.

The 45-year-old San Bruno resident, who belongs to an affiliate of the typographical union striking the I-J, was implicated by two juveniles also charged in the slaying.

Larry G. Rutherford, 16, and Richard A. Wamsley, 17, also of San Bruno, were identified by Mrs. Daly as the two who forced their way into the Daly's San Francisco home on July 4 and shot her husband in the abdomen after clubbing him with a pipe.

The youths are being held in juvenile hall pending a Wednesday hearing. A motion to transfer the case to superior court is expected to be made at that time by juvenile authorities.

Police allege Thurber gave the two boys Daly's name. The pair said they had been promised money for robbing Daly, but had not been paid, police said.

Thurber pleaded innocent July 17 to the slaying and additional charges of conspiracy, robbery, and burglary.

Homicide Inspector John McKenna indicated July 6 that San Francisco police would investigate whether "there was someone behind Thurber," but refused to comment on that investigation yesterday.

He said his office is preparing for a grand jury hearing, possibly Aug. 3.

Thurber, a member of Newspaper Mailers Union 18, is employed by San Francisco Newspaper Printing Co., which prints the San Francisco Chronicle and Examiner. The mailers' union is affiliated with San Francisco Typographical Union 21.

Municipal Court Judge George Maloney yesterday continued Thurber's preliminary hearing to next Friday.

minimum income of $1,600 plus food stamps and other aids for a family of four, has been severely criticized during committee hearings.

Committee chairman Russell Long, D-La., called the proposal a "massive and costly experiment" that would increase welfare costs by more than $4 billion a year and add 14 million Americans to the welfare rolls.

Others have charged the bill actually would destroy the incentive to work in some cases rather than stimulate it.

Richardson said, however, he would rate the chances of committee approval "better than even because the committee is really working" on the problems.

WELFARE

ly shifting an extra welfare burden on local property taxpayers to finance welfare. Other critics said recipients would be forced to give up their attendants because the maximum $300 monthly cash grant was cut in half to $150.

Attendant care is purchased by recipients of aid to the elderly, disabled and blind to hire persons to perform routine chores they are unable to do themselves. It involves no nursing.

Reagan said the cuts were aimed at "eliminating fraud and extravagance" in a program where he said costs "skyrocketed" with no corresponding year-to-year increase in the number of recipients. The cuts would have returned the program to last year's spending level, he added.

NADAR

Davitt McAteer, a third-year law student at West Virginia University, was especially critical of Nixon's ouster in March of Bureau of Mines Director John F. O'Leary. The vacancy has not yet been filled.

"It seems clear that President Nixon is treating the miners of America with conscious disregard by allowing his administration to refuse to enforce the (health and safety) law by vascillating in the appointment of an independent, strong director for the Bureau of Mines," the report said.

Pinheiro Site Urged For Shopping Center

triangle and Nave Shopping Center neighborhoods.

With the Pinheiro property as a regional shopping center covering 68.1 acres, total downtown retail acreage would be 117.9, Sedway and Cooke visualize. About 41.3 acres would be devoted to office building use and 60 acres to other nonresidential activities, including pedestrian malls, offstreet parking, linear parks and the like, as well as to a civic center.

Novato's East Grant Avenue shopping area would be treated so as to preserve its historic small-town character with use as a specialty retail and entertainment area.

Grant Avenue from Seventh Street to Redwood Boulevard (now Highway 101), would become even more of a thoroughfare of office buildings. Redwood Boulevard between Olive and Grant Avenues would be similar. The existing, privately-developed Novato Downtown Shopping Center would continue to serve primarily as a community retail and service center.

A major transit terminal is proposed on Olive Avenue, and civic center expansion is seen to take in lands both east and west of the present center's block.

If the San Marin East property must be the focus of regional shopping center development, the general impression of the future city would remain much the same. The Pinheiro property then is seen as logical medium-density residential, apartment and motel sites. West Grant's office growth would be de-emphasized and Redwood Boulevard stressed for office buildings.

If Novato must give up on having any regional shopping center, the consultants think, the major concentration of subregional shopping center growth should be the Seventh Street-Grant Avenue area.

Now a cow pasture rising into oak-covered hills and merging into the residential and commercial strip along Highway 101, the Pinheiro ranch is recommended to be developed to provide an eventual 800,000 square feet of retail space, exclusive of supermarkets which the consultants think undesirable in a regional center.

Two or three major department stores would take up about half the leasable space; the rest would be divided among such uses as banks, smaller stores, restaurants, a theater and service shops.

Construction of an overpass across Redwood Boulevard to link commercial development eastward to the railroad is suggested.

Many pages of the report go into detailed proposals for the rest of the downtown area but changes needed if the regional center is shifted to San Marin East or elsewhere are not so detailed.

Where should Novato start, to realize its downtown?

Sedway and Cooke recommend four steps: Annexation and regulation of the Pinheiro ranch and neighboring lands, land assemblage — by condemnation if necessary — under a single ownership of the ranch and of 65 more acres to the east now under five ownerships; marketing the holdings, and development.

"The cooperation of (Frank Pinheiro) should be secured at the earliest possible time," the consultants urge. "Most desirably, all of the six parcels should be acquired in a single, concurrent purchase by a developer."

The merger of interests by the involved owners into a private corporation or syndicate" for negotiating such a sale is recommended, and the city is advised to call together the landowners to urge such action, the report says.

"Where the owners will not voluntarily sell or participate in the project, urban renewal eminent domain powers could be used."

"The proposed regional center is unique in many respects," the report notes. "Probably the most important . . . is the significance of the proposal to the city's future and . . . implications for the city's role . . .

The advantage of city or development corporation involvement is the clear availability of land to a developer. The disadvantage is the possible necessity for full disclosure of offers, proposals, etc. — a factor that could hurt the project."

creased costs 6 per cent and that enrollment was expected to rise 3 per cent while the district income would increase only 1 per cent. However, the board has learned since the argument was filed with election officials that the district would receive $312,924 more than expected because of a larger ending balance from 1969-70 and additional state aid.

Also in its official argument, the board said the district has the lowest income, tax rate and expenditure per pupil among Marin districts with at least 1,000 students.

Donald M. Van Dyke, chairman of Novato Citizens for Reasonable Taxation, wrote the argument against the increase. He claimed that while the district says assessed valuation will increase only 3 per cent in 1970-71, it actually will rise 8.3 per cent.

The district should revise operating and accounting policies to insure more effective use of income, Van Dyke argued. He felt a tax rate might be considered at a later date but not at present.

Polling places will be at these locations: Olive, Marion, San Ramon, Pleasant Valley, West Novato, Lu Sutton, Lynwood, Rancho, Pacheco and Loma Verde schools; Hill Junior High School; Novato and San Marin high schools, and the Chiosi residence at 4 Summers Avenue.

Notary Public

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The office of the Secretary of State today announced issuance of a notary public commission to Timothy J. Egan of 39 Vistawood Way, San Rafael, and to Clauda L. Perry of 247 D Street, Apt. 206, San Rafael.

Mobile Home Show Is Set Tomorrow

Three model mobile homes varying from 12 to 36 feet in width and up to 63 feet in length will be on public display all day tomorrow at the Marin Valley Mobile Country Club in Novato.

Mobile units feature many of the comforts and conveniences of conventional homes, including two and three baths, master bedroom, sunken tubs, separate dining room, sunken living rooms, garbage disposals, dishwashers, air conditioning and outdoor decks.

Marin Valley Mobile Country Club, a multi-million dollar, 160-acre development, is celebrating its grand opening after three years of construction. Eventually there will be 600 spaces, of which 165 are now ready for occupancy. The center offers a heated swimming pool, sauna baths, gymnasium and exercise room and other recreation facilities.

Man's Body Is Found In Bay

The body of a 23-year-old man was found floating near the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday by the crew of a fishing boat.

The San Francisco coroner's office tentatively identified him as Ronald A. Sorensen of Des Moines, Iowa. There was no indication that he had jumped from the bridge, the office said, adding that it was unable to immediately determine how long the body had been in the water.

Near the body when it was found shortly after 3 p.m. was a cardboard sign reading: "I need a place to crash."

Mill Valley Planners To Discuss Rezoning

The Mill Valley Planning Commission will meet Monday at 8 p.m. to consider a request by Trans-Marin Properties to rezone a parcel of land east of Miller Avenue and La Goma Street to permit construction of an apartment development.

Also on the agemda is a request by William E. Cullen for approval of a master plan for a 64-unit cluster development on Warner Ridge.

DRAMA REVIEW

By KAY KSANDA

"I am as premonitory as she is proud minded, and when two such fires meet there is explosion." You know them. It is the romance of Katherina and Petruchio, the "Liz and Dick" of the 16th Century, with their two falls out of three courtship that has delighted theatergoers for almost 400 years.

The "Taming of the Shrew" has always been one of the best known and popular of Shakespearean comedies concerning the eternal battle of the sexes. In this Elizabethan farce — the second production of the current Marin Shakespeare Festival season — the playwright becomes the psychologist suggesting to the men of his time that they put their wives in their rightful place as vassals to their lords by a razor's edge of bullying, starving, shouting, and rewarding technique much like the training of a hunting hound; and it works! Success probably hinged then, as it might now, on the wisdom of the "trainer." However, the play has much of its persuasion in the portrayal of Petruchio as more male than mad, and the promise of his being a dashing shiek with her the captive. There is tempest within this comedy with two heroes, two heroins and multiple mixups.

However, this Petruchio, Robert Ferro, is more of a buffoon than a romantic figure. Katherina, played by Hope Alex Willis, could have probably won the match if she had wanted to show her hand, but she abided by the play. A more cavalier Petruchio, and a less awkward Gremio (either being more of a fool or a rogue) would have strengthened the "Shrew."

The action is fast, funny and full of wit. Many of the supporting actors showed timing and skilled technique in their cameos . . . The tailor who sobs his creative little heart out while knee deep in the very wet moat. . .The widow who pursues her intended with fierce galloping gusto. . .The delicious scene where the father of the two brides, Baptista, becomes suddenly acute like a professional in the supermarket check-out stand in the detailing of the dowery and estates exchanged.

Costumes are lush and colorful. The set revolves around a very large lump that sems to conceal a goodly group, and can become either a house or a countryside.

This festival is presenting "Taming of The Shrew," "The Tempest," and "Henry V" on alternate weekends through the summer. When else is there a theater more lovely than Forest Meadows? Even the stroll from the street into the trees past the 20th Century tennis players up to the bannered entrance, where the Madrigal Singers, are positioned is perfect. There is no bustle. The audience is relaxed and friendly as it files past the pages with coffee, donuts and oranges.

The "Shrew" will be presented again at 8 p.m.

Free Concert Of Chamber Music Slated

A free concert of chamber music, under the direction of violist Lucien Mitchell of Mill Valley, will be presented tomorrow at 2 p.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael.

This is the second of three concerts being arranged by the Marin Mental Health Association in cooperation with the American Federation of Musicians, Local 6.

The first concert, featuring the Dick Clark jazz musicians, and dancers from the Buchanan Street Workshop, was performed at the Marin Community Mental Health Center for patients and their families.

Sunday's program will include the Haydn Cello Concerto in D, featuring Jean Mitchell; Beethoven's Trio for Strings in E Flat, Opus 3, No. 1 and an oboe concerto with Raymond Duste as soloist. Other musicians in the group, who perform with the San Francisco Symphony and Opera and Marin Symphony, are Irvin Mautner and Michael Gerling, violins; Eugene Winkler, cello; Eleanor Biondi, oboe and Max Mazenko, French horn.

The James Dukey 16-piece jazz band will perform at the final concert on Aug. 9 at 2 p.m. at the Mill Valley Public Library.

Ex-Frogman Is Arrested For Nixon Threat

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI)— Secret Service agents have arrested a former Navy frogman with a history of mental disorders on charges of threatening to assassinate President Nixon.

State highway patrol headquarters in Sacramento Thursday issued an all-points bulletin for John M. Woolf at the request of the Secret Service. They said he was a weapons expert with a history of threatening other well-known persons.

He was seen at a service station parking lot north of town and kept under surveillance until federal agents arrived to make the arrest Thursday night.

He was held without bail.

Agents revealed no details about why Woolf was suspected or how he was picked up. They carried a search warrant for the mini-bus he was driving but would not reveal if they found anything.

Applicants Face Quiz By Parents

A general meeting to allow parents in the Sausalito School District to question candidates for two principal vacancies will be held Monday at 7 p.m. at Bayside School, Interim Supt. Robert E. Spain announced.

At least six candidates for the openings at Martin Luther King and central schools will be present, Spain said.

The regular meeting of the board of trustees scheduled for Monday has been canceled. The next board meeting will be held next Saturday at 9 a.m. at Bayside school, when the board will adopt the 1970-71 budget.

Mills Group To Play At Inverness Festival

The Mills College Performing Group will give a recital of contemporary chamber music at the Inverness Music Festival, Aug. 14-16 and 23 at St. Columba's Church and Amphitheater.

The group will be heard in the amphitheater at 3 p.m. on Aug. 15. Musicians performing will be pianist Naomi Sparrow, Oakland Symphony Concertmaster Nathan Rubin and clarinetist Donald O'Brien.

The program will consist of Ravel's Sonata for Violin and Piano, "Ile de Feu" by Oliver Messiaen, Four Pieces for Clarinet and Piano by Berg, Milhaud's Suite for Three Instruments and Bartok's Contrasts For Piano, Violin and Clarinet.

The group was established in 1963 by composers Lucian Berio, Morton Subotnick and Darius Milhaud to assure the performance of contemporary music and older music updated by changing contemporary perspectives.

Harpsichordist-pianist Nancy Bennett and Fae McNally, festival founder and music director, will kick off the festival at 8 p.m. Aug. 14 at the church with a recital of four-handed piano music by composers from the classic and romantic eras.

Their program will include Haydn's Symphony in C Minor, Fugues by Schubert and Mozart, "Jeux d'Enfants" by Bizet, Sloavnic Dances by Dvorak and "Allegro Brillante" by Mendelssohn.

The festival's two major events will be the two operas, Bartok's "Bluebeard's Castle" to be presented on Aug. 15 at 8 p.m. in the church and Smetana's "The Bartered Bride," to be performed on Aug. 16 and 23 at 2 p.m. in the amphitheater. On Aug. 16 at 8 p.m. in the church the Marin Arts Quartet will perform the Brahms Quintet for Clarinet and Strings and the Schumann Piano Quintet.

Reservations and further information are available by writing the Inverness Music Festival, Box 2, Inverness.

Poetry Experts To Be Given Tomorrow

Mill Valley actor Tom Leith will read excerpts from poety of E. F. Cummings, Francis Warner, William Blake and Shakespeare tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the Community Congregational Church, 145 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon.

The program is the final in a series celebrating "The Artists in Our Midst."

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — Andre Courreges, who invented the short skirt in 1963, joined the rest of the Paris designers today and abandoned it.

But the Courreges long winter collection proved he can design maxi-midi outfits that are just as fun and happy looking as his short dresses.

Courreges, who also started only show in Paris so far where the fashion journalists leaped to their feet to give him an ovation and cheers of "Bravo!"

Courrege, who also started the trouser suit fad in 1963, still showed some long trouser outfits but concentrated more on his clinging knitted all-in-one jump suits, or "cat suits", which he told the audience "are the solution to replace the pants suit in the future."

Courreges played it safe and sensible by showing outfits at various lengths. Many of his wool dresses edged with leather ended just below the knee at the tops of boots.

There were narrow maxi dresse, such as one winner in pale blue wool with narow white edging. Maxi skirts were open to the waist and worn over jump suits. There were midi suits with little short jackets in fake quilted leather with colored linings and wide a-line skirts.

"The clothes can either be worn long or short. I wanted the woman able to wear the clothes at her best length," Courreges told the audience.

The mannequins in short perky wigs danced to rock music while they showed Courreges' inexpensive ready-to-wear called "Hyperbole," expensive ready-to-wear called "Couture Future" and his custom clothes. He was the only designer to put ready made clothers into his collection during the fashion week.

The audience applauded the low-slung look of low loose belts. The familiar Courreges touches were there - welter seams, round buttoned tabs at hemlines and at high necklines, lots of white, oval pockets.

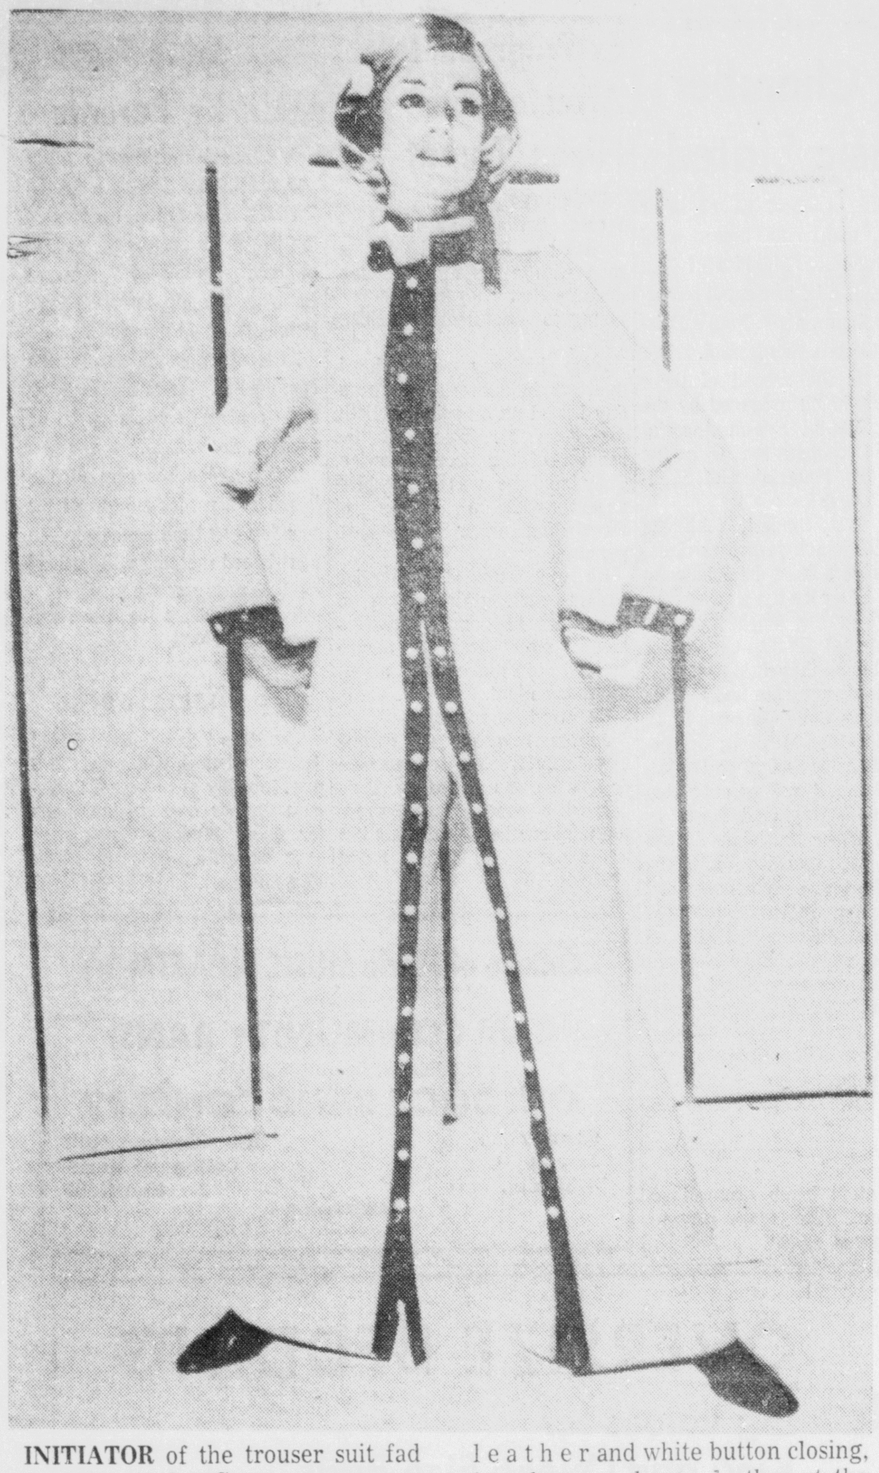
There were maxi raincoats in artificial leather of blazing yellow or purple with big floppy hats and boots in the same color.

And for more fun Courreges threw in see-through black chiffon blouses embroidered with modernistic flowers and a see-through dress which the mannequin braved in just a pair of panties. All the Courreges girls wore colored felt dog collars.

Since many older women would not feel comfortable in zippy Courreges clothes, there still is a large place in the fashion world for Alix Gres, one of the elegant designers.

Madame Gres never was happy with the short look and her salon with obvious relief today presented again her traditional dresses of shirred, tucked and draped jersey.

The rest of the fashion collections were divided on whether the long look should be "elegant" or "swinging."



INITIATOR of the trouser suit fad in 1963, Andre Courreges concentrated on this all-in-one jump-suit or "cat suit" in his winter collection yesterday. The overall, done in herringbone gray wool with brown leather and white button closing, has the same brown leather at the cuffs and on the collar, reminiscent of an officer's uniform. HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Three-Way Yak Sessions Create A Party Line Phoning Problem

DEAR HELEN:

My folks are on a telephone party line with two other families. Two of these women are best friends and they get on the horn and gossip for hours. They even have three-way conversations with another lady.

Sometimes my family has important calls, but if we ask these yakkers to hang up, they act insulted. What burns me, though, is that the few times I get the phone, one of them cuts in and makes remarks about teen-age talkers.

They also listen in and then, when they see me, they lecture me about boys.

My folks think a private line is too expensive. What can I do? — HORNED IN ON

DEAR HIO:

A private line costs only a few dollars more per month. Couldn't you get a new babysitting job to pay the additional cost? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This girl and I stopped dating because we felt we were too good friends to go steady. We talk together a lot and help each other with various problems.

Suddenly I realized what I should have known all along: When you're so comfortable and happy with a girl you consider her your best friend, you're in love with her, dope that I am.

How can I persuade her out of this "brother-fixation"? — TY

DEAR TY:

Stop acting like a brother. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

On the day school let out, our class sang The Star Spangled Banner. I put my hand over my heart, and the boys made fun of me.

It's getting so you're ashamed to say you're proud of being an American. If you don't call policemen "fuzz" or "pigs," you're a big nothing. If you say you're against rioting and flag-burning, you might as well slit your wrists.

I'm just a seventh grader and maybe too young to think about world affairs, but I'm worried. If we can't respect the flag, and have faith in the people who are voted in as leaders, and love — really love — our country, what chance have we got to survive? — STEVE

DEAR STEVE:

The majority of your generation is on your side — but they're the silent ones. Thanks for speaking out. Don't ever be shouted down. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend of mine said that if you grow your fingernails to a certain length (very long) you could sell them to a cosmetic company. Is there any truth in this statement? — TRYING

DEAR TRYING:

No.

. . . And don't collect tea bag tags or cellophane opener strips from cigarettes either. Nobody wants 'em. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help.

Blind Dates For Sailors

CHATHAM, England--A Navy publicity stunt called "Rent-a-Jack" in which girls were encouraged to make blind dates with sailors has caused such an angry reaction from sailors' wives that an official complaint has been lodged with the defense ministry.

Mrs. Peggy Fenner, the new Tory member of Parliament for Chatham, where there is a big naval base, has written to Peter Kirk, the Navy minister and forwarded a petition signed by more than 80 enraged wives there. She assures Kirk that the wives are extremely concerned and urges him to ban the scheme in future.

The "Rent-a-Jack" scheme was launched while the Frigate HMS Ajax was berthed in Liverpool two months ago. Naval recruiting authorities publicized the ship's telephone number before it arrived and suggested that people shouldering up and ask sailors out to entertain them. They hoped that this would bring the navy some publicity and help to boost recruiting.

It was expected that a few families would respond by asking groups of sailors to their homes for tea. Instead hundreds of girls rang up to ask sailors out individually offering entertainment.

Demand was so heavy that HMS Ajax, which carries 260 sailors, ran out of available men within a few hours. So the scheme was extended to the Commando Carrier Albion, which arrived in Liverpool soon afterwards. The 1,000 men aboard were soon in great demand.

Designers On Dress Lengths

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

We read about the New York and European designers, but we treasure every word you give us. Please tell us once and for all, what we should do about lengths.

MRS. M.M.J.

DEAR MRS. M.M.J.

Thanks Mary, you are an ego builder, and I don't feel deserving of the compliment. However, please let me quote some of the most prominent designers that I personally spoke to at the New York press showings of top American designers.

Victor Costa: The best thing in the world for the average woman, he feels, is to get her mind off the hemline and picture herself as a glamorous somebody-else!

George Halley says "Elegance doesn't mean length, it means beautiful fabric and workmanship." George likes his women with skirts 1 inch above their knees. He says, "Women like them — men love them!"

Adele Simpson believes there is a new clothes language in which words like "inches, knees, lengths," are obsolete. Instead, "body, mind and eye, plus composition, fabric, color, place, person and purpose, this is the language fashion used to express the modern identity."

Pat Sandler says, "No blue knees this winter!"

Jerry Silverman says "1969 was the year of instant youth, the short dress! In 1970 the woman radiates seduction and provocation. It's the 'kneezy game,' play with it and see where it's right for you! Leg watchers will have to move a little faster, not east and west, but now with the slits in the skirts, it's north and south. This is the great age of femininity, the return of the real woman!"

I could go on and on, but the answer would still be the same. I am from the Midwest and would still rather middle-of-the-road it! If you never wore the real honest to goodness mini, then you will never wear the honest to goodness midi! Let's once and for all examine our own figure and wear the length that looks best for us, individually.

Let's face it, everyone naturally resists change of any kind. It is natural that we would resist and resent a change in fashion that we learned to love. But does anyone remember the outcry of rage when the mini was first introduced?

In closing, I for one can remember one of the first cars I owned. It was a 1941 Chevrolet. It was a beautiful, wonderful, grand car, but would I want to buy this same car now in 1970 — the answer is of course not! And so it is with anything in this world — nothing is constant, but change makes the world go round!

ZELMA CUNDIFF, Louisville, Ky., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her 'sewing tip.'

"When making a dress with those long darts that are shaped in the middle, I find it easier to start stitching in the middle and work to the small end or point of the dart. Then, turn the fabric in the other direction and overlap the stitching in the middle of the dart and stitch to the opposite end."

DEAR EUNICE,

Do you honestly think that dresses look as well after they have been laundered as they do if they have been dry cleaned? Every summer I eagerly fall for the line that this particular fabric is washable. I can truthfully say that I have never had perfect results.

MRS. M.K.

DEAR MRS. M.K.

I think you must analyze the purpose of the fabric you are buying and purchase accordingly. If you are considering sports clothes, in most instances you would want fabrics that are washable.

For your better clothes, I personally wouldn't think of washing them. Dry cleaning seems to preserve the original fabric finish and of course, the pressing is always more professional.

Some cottons, such as the hand screened ones, are much lovlier when washed. Once again I must repeat, if you are intending to wash any garment, be sure to shrink the lining fabric and any trimming first.

If you would like a free button gauge, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Mrs. Burke Heads Mental Auxiliary

Mrs. Robert W. Burke is the new president of the Marin Association for Mental Health Auxiliary.

Born in Tracy, Barbara Burke was graduated from San Jose State College and has been a Marin resident for 11 years. Her husband is a child psychiatrist. Canoeing, swimming and classic Asian art are her hobbies.

The auxiliary supports the association in its programs of community mental health such as its Creative Living Center, a new suicide prevention center, establishing a halfway house for persons who have recovered from mental illness, and its Children's Services Committee, which offers parent-teacher groups education on methods of treating emotionally disturbed children. This committee has also been studying the need for day care centers for children in Marin.

The auxiliary, which welcomes new members, is planning a fall luncheon at Maple Lawn in San Rafael.

Other officers are Mrs. Juhan Liikane, treasurer; and Mrs. Donald Fratus, luncheon chairman.

Joan Sevenair Is Engaged To M. P. Lillenvand

The announcement of the engagement of Joan Ellen Sevenair to Michael Peter Lillenvand, both of San Francisco, has been made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Berlenbach Jr. of Fairfax.

A graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, Joan attended the College of Marin and San Francisco State College. She is employed by Cushing, Cullinan, Hancock and Rothert in San Francisco. Paul E. Berlenbach of Fairfax is her brother.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David N. Lillevand of Alameda and brother of David N. Lillevand Jr. of Oakland. He is a graduate of the University of Santa Clara and the University of San Francisco Law School. He is employed by Orrick, Herrington, Rowley and Sutcliffe in San Francisco.

They are planning a Sept. 18 wedding.

Use Jewelry

NEW YORK (UPI) —Fashion designer Pauline Trigere says that every item of jewelry a woman owns should be put to good use. Accordingly, "rings for her fingers" double as clasp for scarves at the neck. Bracelets move on up to become armlets, worn on left or right arm in matching or graduated sizes.

Everything we learned in 17 years of building fine homes went into American Housing Guild at Lucas Valley.

We believe these magnificent new homes are, by far, the most significant values in Marin today—in space, livability, craftsmanship, location & features, like the unique conversation pit above. 1-level & 2-story homes with 3, 4, 5 & 6 bedrooms. To see furnished models, go north on Hwy. 101 to San Rafael, ½ mile beyond Terra Linda Turn-off; left on Lucas Valley Rd. Follow signs. 479-1761. American Housing Guild

As a home owner at Lucas Valley, you enjoy automatic membership in the beautiful Lucas Valley Community Center.

Located nearby, the center is regarded as one of the finest of its kind. It provides many recreation facilities for you and your family. There is an over-sized swimming pool with surrounding grass areas for sunning, a children's wading pool, play yard, jungle gym, swings, sand box, slides, and much, much more. And the lovely tree-studded Lucas Valley Creek along the perimeter of American Housing Guild's Lucas Valley homes is there to be enjoyed in all seasons.

Expansion Of Resort Area Is Due Restudy

Proposed expansion of trailer and campsites at Lawson's Landing near Dillon Beach will get closer scrutiny from the Marin County Planning Commission Monday at the Civic Center.

The planning commission meeting will start at 9 a.m. in the commission chambers on the third floor.

Merle and Walter Lawson want to add 55 campsites, 140 more trailer sites, and install a marina for 200 to 250 boats on their 140-acre waterfront property.

Last week, the Marin County Board of Supervisors declared that existing camp and tax trailer sites should be improved to county standards before any more facilities are added.

Planning commissioners will also decide whether developer Harley Ussery should be allowed to put in 18 apartments on Pelican Hill just south of Circle Drive in Tiburon.

Grosvenor Fearon wants to divide his 16,000-square-foot lot at the corner of Murray Avenue and Fern Road in Larkspur into two buildings sites.

R. J. Tikker, who owns a lot in Santa Venetia on North San Pedro Road west of Meriam Drive, wants rezoning from residential to administrative-professional so that the California Teachers Association may build an office building.

A controversial boys school in Kentfield, sought by Katharine Branson School, will get another hearing at 2:30 p.m. Katharine Branson wants to add a boys' campus on 10.5 acres at 217 Laurel Grove Avenue in Kentfield. The site is now used as a novitiate by the Dominican Fathers.

Residents of the area lodged a mass protest against the proposal at the July 13 hearing before the planning commission.

Guilty Plea To Reduced Count In Holdup Case

Paul Robert Reynolds, 21, of no known address, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced charge of assault with a deadly weapon against a Mill Valley man on July 11.

He had earlier been accused of three counts of armed robbery and illegal entry stemming from the holdup of Kenneth M. Stevens, 21, of 85 Tamalpais Avenue, and his two guests.

Reynolds and two other men reportedly forced Stevens and his guests into a bedroom, bound and tied them and took $1,235.

A co-defendant, Roy Morgan Jr., 22, of Marin City is due to have a preliminary hearing on the charges Aug. 3. The third man is still being sought by authorities.

Reynolds is to appear in superior court Wednesday for setting of a sentencing date on the felony conviction.

Plea Date Set In Drug Case

Daryl James Moran, 20, of Santa Venetia, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing marijuana and being under the influence of heroin when arrested Monday at his home.

His case was continued to Tuesday for entry of plea.

Drug agents who went to his home with a search warrant said they found two bags of suspected pot as well as three cigarettes. They also said they found empty balloons and other paraphernalia with suspected heroin residue. Moran told them he had a $50-a-day heroin habit, agents said.

AND
BUSINESS MAKING GOOD MONEY
(Recession Proof)

We're proud to talk about our business. It's fascinating. Dynamic. Appeals to the small investor. No experience necessary. With very little money he or she can achieve financial satisfaction — quickly or moderately. It's yours to decide.

Ours is a vending machine program. The best. We establish route locations. Provide finest line of snack items. We train, counsel, guide, hold your hand until you're firmly entrenched. No experience necessary. Just honesty, integrity, willingness to listen, work and give good service.

You need a car and at least $600 for minimum investment strictly for equipment and inventory. No fee or extra of any kind required. Be ambitious and willing to expand.

Vigorous 4-billion plus recession proof business. Cash sales. No credit risks. Works for you day and night — even while you sleep. Quick turnover. Original investment can be returned in short time.

Requires only 6 to 8 hours per week of serious attention. Like getting retirement pay, annuity or pension — only better!

If you're serious, sincere, let's talk. Letter preferred, giving name, address, phone, and sufficient references to verify. Write to:

Ussery Industries, Inc.
1195 Empire Central, Dept — 5392A, Dallas, Texas 75247.

Discrimination?

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Alcoholism can be grounds for divorce in Kentucky, but drug addiction cannot.

Proposed Dinner Leads To Felony Assault Charge

A 63-year-old Chinese butler has been arrested on a felony assualt charge after an altercation with his Sausalito employer over a proposed dinner party.

Way Lim Li, of San Francisco, was released from Marin County Jail without bail Thursday and is to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday.

Sausalito police said that Li and his boss, Ronald C. MacDonald of 41 San Carlos Avenue, got into an argument over a dinner party MacDonald was planning and, according to MacDonald, the butler threatened him with a bread knife and two eight-inch Chinese cleavers.

MacDonald had a small cut on his finger, according to police, but Li said that his employer had cut himself.

Record Dutch Brew

AMSTERDAM (UPI) —Beer drinking in the Netherlands reached a record in 1969. Government statistics report the average Dutchman drank about 53 quarts of beer last year, compared with about 47 quarts in 1968, the highest in a hundred years of beer drinking statistics.

The Population Center Of Marin

Golden Gate Span Needs Repair, N.Y. Engineer's Figure $355,000

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A New York engineering firm that traditionally captures contracts with the Golden Gate Bridge District yesterday proposed a $355,000 contract to engineer repairs and improvements to the span.

Ammann and Whitney made the proposal at the invitation of the district after the firm recommended $10.5 million in work on the bridge over the next decade. The estimate included $7,090,000 for new suspender ropes.

The firm made its recommendations after a two-year inspection at a cost of $490,000.

District directors referred the proposal to the building and operating committee for its review.

Other needed work includes development of methods to stop corrosion of the bond between the roadway slab and the supporting steel members, and repair of the lateral bracing in the San Francisco approach.

The Golden Gate Bridge District board also:

FARES — Set the basic one-way fare on the Sausalito ferryboat at 50 cents, and 25 cents more for the feeder bus service from Mill Valley.

FEEDER — Set a meeting of the joint transportation and finance-auditing committee for 9:30 a.m. Thursday in toll plaza offices to decide how to provide feeder bus service to the ferry.

TERMINAL — Leased the former heliport next to the Ferry Building in San Francisco as a ferryboat terminal for $450 a month.

SIDEWALK — Referred to committee a proposal by director Stephan C. Leonoudakis that a moving sidewalk be planned between the San Francisco ferryboat landing and the rapid transit station to be built at the Embarcadero.

BART — Referred to committee a suggestion by former director William C. Blake of San Francisco that the district form a committee to work with the Bay Area Rapid Transit District on future transit planning.

GRANT — Authorized Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring and "any directors who may wish" to go to Washington to push for federal approval of the district's application for a grant to buy buses.

BIDS — Received nine bids to furnish catering service aboard the district's ferryboat, with the percentage of gross revenue to be paid to the district ranging from 6 to 21.7 per cent, the latter bid from John Cosmos of San Francisco.

REPORT — Set a special board meeting for 10 a.m. Aug. 5 in toll plaza offices to receive a report from the district's naval architect, Philip F Spaulding, on a long-range water transportation system. The $55,000 report originally was due in May.

SUICIDES — Set a meeting of the special committee on suicide prevention at 2 p.m. Aug 5 to review steps being taken to reduce suicides from the bridge.

$1,500 PROMOTION

Hoopla To Herald Revival Of Ferryboat Across Bay

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A funny little German band, an antique car parade and free commemorative coins will herald the revival of ferryboat service by the Golden Gate Bridge District — but not the "official ferryboat captains hats" dreamed up by one imaginative director.

Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco envisioned a special page in local newspapers that could be torn out and folded into the hats — with the wearers entitled to half fare on the first day of service next month from Sausalito to San Francisco.

Director Lowell Edington of Napa County, observing the board meeting was far from San Francisco, told Leonoudakis, "You don't think as well up in this country air."

Leonoudakis could not even get a second to his proposal, and instead settled on a $1,500 appropriation to promote the big day.

5,000 commemorative coins are to be stamped at no cost to the district by "some banks," Leonoudakis said. Director Carl Daubeneck of Mendocino County, a banker, said he would "hand out signature cards to open accounts at the same time."

Director Joseph E. Sheeks of Belvedere suggested the parade include "some antique buses. I think I know where we can find some," he said. Several directors murmured, "Yeah, from Greyhound."

'Colonel' Can Lick All Five Fingers Again

Colonel Sanders has his fingers back, according to one of the youths who allegedly kidnaped him from his San Rafael fried chicken establishment Monday.

Daniel L. Bufano, 18, of 25 Edgehill Drive, said he and four others caught by police Monday on suspicion of taking the $500 statue from 555 Second Street had repaired the three broken fingers the colonel suffered when taken Monday.

He said the chicken chain had agreed not to press charges.

Caught with Bufano were Rex B. Powell, 16, of 15 Malone Lane; James D. Hill, 16, of 120 Edward Avenue, Vernon D. Kleimo, 17, of 9 Linda Avenue, and Gary Garvin, 18, of 125 North San Pedro Road.

Colonel Sanders was recovered in North San Rafael less than an hour after he was taken when the five led police to a hiding place in a junk yard.

Pot Case Is Dismissed On Binocular Use

A charge of cultivating marijuana against George Francis Curtis, 22, of Fairfax, was dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court. The judge ruled that an officer's use of binoculars to identify a pot plant in a window was an invasion of privacy.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. ruled that a search warrant issued after an officer viewed the plant in an upstairs window was invalid on another ground, also.

He said that the residence in which Curtis lives is divided into two apartments, with Curtis and his sister occupying the upstairs one, and additional marijuana plants found in the back yard were not linked directly to the Curtises.

The case of the sister, Mary Kathryn, 19, arrested along with her brother on April 20, was tried in juvenile court, where proceedings are not made public.

Employee Pay Hikes Again Before Council

The Tiburon City Council once again will consider a five per cent boost in city employees' salaries when it meets Monday at 8 p.m. at city hall. The council reviewed the matter, proposed by its finance and administration committee, at its meeting Monday, but took no action.

Also on the agenda is consideration of rezoning the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way to a park zone to permit a pedestrian and bicycle pathway.

Marijuana Case To Juvenile Court

The case of Janie Alice Gallagher, 18-year-old visitor from Pennsylvania charged with marijuana possession, yesterday was transferred to Marin Juvenile Court.

Miss Gallagher was arrested May 28 in a Mill Valley residence where marijuana plants had been seen growing outside. Drug agents said she had half a lid of suspected grass on a bedside table.

Drainage Master Plan Due Discussion

The Bel Aire Flood Control Zone Advisory board will continue discussion of a drainage master plan at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Bel Aire School.

The area was plagued with floods last winter.

Rug, Carpet Ads Deceptive, Says Business Bureau

Some rug and carpet advertising in the Bay Area is deceptive, according to a study made by the San Francisco Better Business Bureau.

The study did not record how widespread the problem was, but a bureau spokesman said it was "enough for us to be concerned."

He said advertising misrepresented the quality of carpet; used the term "FHA Approved," although the Federal Housing Administration does not allow use of its name to endorse products; advertised sale items without dealers having ample stock of the products, and claimed "lowest prices" and similar claims, although they are "practicaly impossible to substantiate," according to the BBB.

The bureau has issued a set of guidelines for future rug and carpet advertising copy.

Chavez's Words In Lettuce Fuss

SALINAS (UPI) — Cesar Chavez wants the Salinas Valley lettuce growers to negotiate future labor contracts with his United Farm Workers Organizing Committee.

Friday he fired off telegrams to six grower associations requesting a meeting "at an earliest possible time."

"Our union members feel strongly that it is time that they cease to be discriminated against in labor-management relations because most of them happen to be Chicano, Filipino or black," he wrote.

"Making a demand on the growers while the Teamsters strike was on would have been taking unfair advantage of the employers."

He said he hoped to hear from the growers by Monday.

All-Star Game Saved, But Grid Strike Continues

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The College All Star Game in Chicago on July 31 has been saved, but the 26 National Football League owners and the Players Association still have to agree on a contract within the next week to preserve the pre-season schedule.

The Players Association relented Friday night and agreed to allow the Kansas City Chiefs to begin practicing for the charity game in Chicago against the collegians, but John Mackey, president of the association, said the Chiefs will disband after the game if a contract agreement is not reached with the owners.

"At no time has the NFL Players Association intended to jeopardize the scheduled football game between the Chiefs and the All Stars," Mackey, an end for the Baltimore Colts, said. "Earlier this week, in the interest of playing the All Star game, the NFL owners asked the NFL Players Association whether or not we would allow Kansas City to go into training camp if they were to agree to lift the lockout imposed on the Chiefs.

"At that time," he added, "we did not respond affirmatively to the inquiry for two reasons: 1. Coach Stram (of the Chiefs) stated publicly that the Chiefs could play the game if his team began organized practice by Saturday; 2. The players felt strongly that this dispute would be settled by Saturday and now Saturday is upon us."

The remaining 25 teams in the NFL will continue their strike, however, and the other owners will continue to lock out the veteran players. The two sides met in Philadelphia on Friday for their first discussions with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service after two changes in the site. It was the first time in 10 days that the two sides had sat down together to discuss their differences, which amount to $11.4-million in pension benefits.

With the first exhibition games scheduled a week after the College All Star Game, the owners have said they have considered cancelling the entire season if a satisfactory agreement is not reached.

"It would be unfeasible to play the All Star Game without the veterans," said Lamar Hunt, owner of the Chiefs and American Conference president, "but it wouldn't be impossible to play the rest of the season without them. After all, it wasn't so long ago that we started from scratch and we could do it again. We also have considered the possibility of cancelling the entire season."

The Players Association polled its 1,250 members before deciding to allow the Chiefs to practice for the All Star Game. The poll came after the owners offered to lift the lockout for Kansas City.

Tex Schram, president of the Dallas Cowboys and head of the owners' negotiating committee, said, "Obviously the Kansas City players wanted to play the game and they prevailed." Jim Tyrer, player representative for the Chiefs, denied the team brought pressure to force the All Star Game although each of the team's players will get one-fourteenth of his annual salary from the game. However, he said the team requested permission to play in it.

Mackey explained that the Players Association agreed to let the Chiefs practice because they had earned the honor by winning the Super Bowl under the old contract. He also added that the game is considered a good cause for charity.

"We would like to clearly state our position and give you the reasons why this decision was reached," Mackey said. "We all agree that the All Star Game is for a worthy charity and that the tradition of the game should continue simply because it is really a package situation that goes with the world championship each year. Since this came about with Kansas City because of the Super Bowl it does not fall under the new negotiation now being held and should not affect in any way the NFL owners and the NFL Players Association negotiations."

Mackey added, "We haven't gone far enough in the negotiations to be optimistic or pessimistic. We hope to get it resolved so that everyone can play. It's not that I don't want to talk about it, but I'm not going to say anything that would hurt us. I'm playing it hour by hour."

All Lloyd Ruby Needs Is A Little Luck

Lots of guys haven't won the U.S. Open. Lots of guys haven't won Indianapolis. Lots of guys have never played in a world series.

But, when the golfer is Sam Snead, who has won a hundred other tournaments, including all the major ones, it becomes a crime against history. Particularly, when you know Snead was second in the U.S. Open four times, including one playoff.

And when the ballplayer is Ernie Banks, who has hit more than 500 homers in 17 seasons, won the league MVP award twice in a row, has made more than 2,500 hits, and has 1,500 runs batted in, and was the league's best fielder at two positions in his career, someone should be prosecuted.

And, for Lloyd Ruby not to win Indianapolis is an historic outrage on the order of Man O' War never winning the Kentucky Derby, William Jennings Bryan never sitting in the White House — and, did you know that Babe Ruth never won the MVP award?

Don't Have To Be Great To Win

Lots of worse drivers than Lloyd Ruby have won the Indianapolis 500 — just as lots of bogey-shooters have won the U.S. Open, and lots of Triple A ballplayers have starred in World Series. And lots of political hacks have sat in the White House.

Defeat is easier to take for the under-confident, the under-skilled, the over-anxious or the over-rated. But no one ever hit or caught a baseball with more elan than Ernie Banks, no one ever swung at a golf ball with the pure, flowing grace of a Sam Snead — and no one ever tooled an open-wheeled racing car with more nerve and reflexes than Richard Lloyd Ruby of Wichita Falls, Texas.

Ruby led the 1966 Indy race for 217½ miles. An eight-minute pit stop to fix an oil leak took that race from him when he was blackflagged (told to park it) at the end of the 152nd lap. That was the year 13 cars piled up at the start, and Graham Hill, to his considerable surprise, was adjudged the winner. "I never passed a car all day!" he marveled to Ruby, who had passed dozens. Ruby had a lap lead with 48 to go. He was hardly surprised when he took a plane to Milwaukee after the race that night and it crashed.

Fastest Lap In Competition

In 1968, Ruby led Indy from the 57th lap till the 89th lap, regained the lead on the 166th lap. He had a 23-second lead on the ultimate winner, Bobby Unser, when he had to pit at the 175th lap. His clocking for one lap was 168.666 m.p.h., the fastest ever in competition up to that time.

But it was in '69 that Ruby really must have felt God was picking on him. He was leading the race, and the second car, Mario Andretti's, had made a 40-second pit stop. In auto racing, this is like topping a drive or taking a called third strike. So Ruby made a routine pit stop on his 106th lap. He had been gaining a second every three laps on Andretti and knew that Mario had to slow down periodically to keep his car from overheating.

"I could have won the race reading a book," Ruby recalls ruefully. But, at Indy lately, cars have two gas tanks. When Lloyd saw the hose jerk out of the forward tank in the pit, he lurched back toward the track. Alas, the rear hose was still connected. It ripped his tank fittings, tore a hole in his car, flooded the pit with gasoline, and Lloyd had lost again.

Exploded Six Engines At Indy

This year, he exploded six engines in practice and qualifying but finally put his red, white and blue Silent Majority Special in the 25th spot in the 33-car grid. By the 22nd lap, Ruby's Old Glory colors were already in seventh place. He had roared up to third by the 50th lap. But the car was glowing like an open hearth ingot by now, and, at the 54th lap, it was burning like an oil well fire. "Shel," Ruby said to owner Carrol Shelby, "I'm beginning to think I couldn't win this thing if I was the only one in it." "Another minute, and they could have lit cigarets off you," Shelby told him.

You don't have to know cam shafts to know Lloyd Ruby is a great driver, just the alphabet. In 10 years in Indy, he's been eighth, eighth, third, 11th and 11th and has led the race five times and, if you discount the five pit stops in 1968 (for a total of nine minutes and 30 seconds), and allow reasonable pittings, Ruby's running time was 21.93 seconds faster than the winner.

Ruby will be attempting to qualify for the California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway on Sept. 6. He'll be the one being followed around by a black cloud — the "Joe Bsfllk Special."

Junior Tennis Champs Crowned

Bob Klyce and Claudia Wood won the top division championships yesterday in the finals of the annual Marin County Junior Tennis Tournament at Albert Park, San Rafael.

Klyce defeated Gary Walters 6-2, 6-0 while Miss Wood downed Meredith Mills 6-1, 6-1 in the age 18 and under division finals.

Klyce also teamed with Norm O'Neill to whip Eugene Kilgore and Mike Gomez 6-2, 6-2 for the doubles crown.

Although he missed his shot at the 18 age crown, Gary Walters collected the 16 title with a 6-2, 6-2 win over John Beritzhoff.

In other boys' singles finals, Henry Jacobson defeated Marcus Robinson, 9-7, 7-5 in age 14, Gary Stansbury beat Jim Altamirano 6-3, 6-2 in age 12 and Noel Dockstader topped George Salladin 6-1, 6-2 in age 10.

In the only other boys' doubles match, age 14 and under, Stansbury and Robinson outgunned Eric Raney and Grant Grinnell, 6-4, 6-4.

In other girls' singles play, Missy Kaufman edged Laura Lee 8-6, 6-3 in age 16, Pat Gomez downed Carmelita deUrioste 6-4, 7-5 in age 14, Diane DeMartini edged Lisa Beritzhoff 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 in age 12 and Alexandria Beritzhoff defeated Debra Hill 6-2, 6-3 in age 10.

Doubles finals saw Debbie O'Neill and Stella Perone rally to beat Laura Lee and Seve Dix 1-6, 6-2, 6-4 in age 16 and Diane DeMartini and Lisa Beritzhoff down Ellen Sharkov and Nita Gariaeff 6-0, 6-0 in age 14.

The tournament was sponsored by the Independent-Journal which presented trophies to the finalists.

San Rafael Battles Marinwood In Final

San Rafael National League's Bank of Marin was to meet Marinwood's White Sox this afternoon at Castro Field, Santa Venetia for the championship of the Marin County Little League Team Champions Tournament.

Those teams advanced through semifinals last night. San Rafael nipping Hamilton-Loma Verde Pirates 2-1 in a 10-inning thriller at Novato Rancho while Marinwood was breezing past the Strawberry Ravens 10-1 at Castro Field.

Bank of Marin relief pitcher Dave Menary, who held Hamilton-Loma Verde scoreless in the top of the 10th inning, won his own game in the bottom of the 10th with a single that scored starting pitcher Steve Colombo with the winning run. Colombo had doubled.

The two teams battled scorelessly through seven innings, each scoring a run in the eighth.

In the other semifinal, Gordon Hodgson pitched a one-hitter and aided his own cause with a two-run home run in Marinwood's easy victory. Paul DeMattei and Paul Herefeld were other batting stars for the winners.

Big Three Enter Napa Tourney

NAPA (UPI) — Professional golf's three top all-time money winners have signed to compete in the $150,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament in Napa. Tourney chairman Vern Peak said Friday that Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and defending Kaiser champion Jack Nicklaus will be on hand for the competition Oct. 22-25 at Silverado.

Haves Versus Have-Nots In Pro Golf Team Tourney

LIGONIER, Pa. (UPI) — A battle between the haves and the have-nots developed today in the third round of the $200,000 national four-ball golf championship.

On one side were the haves, the veterans, big winners whose successes are legendary, tied for the 36-hole lead at 128, 14-under-par: The teams of Arnold Palmer-Jack Nicklaus and Sam Snead-Gardner Dickinson.

On the other side, one stroke behind were two teams of have-nots, the rabbits, players still searching for fame: The teams of Jim Colbert-Dean Refram and Dave Eichelberger-J.C. Goosie. The tournament, only team event on the PGA tour, became a dogfight Friday when Palmer and Nicklaus were bothered by inaccurate driving and inconsistent putting and came back to the field with a 67 after their opening-round 61.

Dickinson and Snead, meanwhile with Dickinson, consistently around the pin with his approach shots, sinking seven birdie putts—produced a 61 of their own.

Colbert-Refram and Eichelberger-Goosie both had 65's Friday to go with first-round 64's that left them one stroke ahead of two other teams—Miller Barber-Don January and Bruce Crampton-Orville Moody.

OLD FOLKS

Snead, 58, and Dickinson, 42, whose combined age of 100 makes them the oldest team in the Tournament, have teamed together all three previous times the four-ball event was held and never finished lower than eighth. Friday, Snead explained why.

"We get along very well together," he said. "We know each other's game. We never get hot at each other."

Dickinson called it "beautiful playing with old Sam for a partner.

"It doesn't matter what club he hits, he's liable to knock it cold stone right by the hole. You never know when it's going to happen, so you just keep patting him on the shoulders and telling him to go," Dickinson said.

The Snead-Dickinson combination produced six straight birdies from the sixth through 11th holes that made up their six-stroke deficit after the first round.

TO THE POINT

Palmer and Nicklaus analyzed their difficulty in one sentence.

"Neither one of us was very good," Jack said.

Of Palmer and Nicklaus' first 10 tee shots, only three found the fairway. Nicklaus missed short putts at the first two holes, Palmer missed one at No. 6 and later Palmer three-putted at No. 17.

"I don't think we played nearly as well as we did yesterday, that's obvious," Nicklaus said. "But had we putted like we putted yesterday, with the number of short putts we missed today I don't think our score would have been much different — even though we didn't both play as well."

BRILLIANT CAREER

Snead has won 132 tournaments in his brilliant career, and he and Dickinson have combined career earnings of more than $875,000. Palmer, the top money winner of all time, and Nicklaus have combined earnings of more than a million.

George Archer and Bobby Nichols, who won in 1968—last time this tournament was held—were at 131, along with Bob Charles and Brucke Devlin.

At 132 were Lee Trevino-Jess Whittenton, Jim Grant-Hugh Royer and Chris Blocker-Howie Johnson.

Six teams were deadlocked at 133 including brothers Dave and Mike Hill, Ray Floyd-Bob Rosburg, Tommy Aaron-Charles Coody, Lionel Herbert-Jimmy Wright, Dale Douglass-Hale Irwin and Bob Lynn-Dave Stockton.

Thurmond Future Still Undecided

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Nate Thurmond, San Francisco Warrior center who is 29 years old today, says he will decide his future after a vacation in Sweden.

He'll take off next Tuesday for three weeks and he said Friday that when he returns he will decide whether to resume a pro cage career that has been troubled by injuries.

Warrior owner Franklin Mieuli, always optimistic about Nate's return despite his announced retirement last winter, said "conditions" will determine Nate's decision.

FISH AND GAME

Interesting Things Gathered At Meets

By AL GIDDINGS

This past week I attended several meetings and heard some interesting things. One meeting at Point Reyes was held with ranchers, and personnel from Bay Area Regional Water Pollution Control Board, Department of Fish and Game, Water Quality, Health Department, and Dept. of Agriculture. The topic in general was: Keeping wastes out of streams.

Dan Murphy of the Regional Water Pollution Control Board gave a good background of Marin County dairies. There are approximately 145 dairies in Marin County, 200 in Sonoma County. At present from these dairies there are about 700 tons of waste per day. Persons now discharging any waste other than in a public sewer are required to file for a waste permit. The Regional Water Pollution Control Board may specify conditions and set standards.

They may also issue a cease and desist order to any waste discharger or pollutor. Violations of the cease and desist orders are subject to the Porter-Cologne Act, a new water pollution control act that became effective Jan. 1, 1970. A pollution in violation of this act may result in fines up to $6,000 per day if the pollution continues.

SLIDES were shown and a talk given on new cleanup and anti-pollution methods being used on many dairies. One important item discussed was the new methods of disposing of the 12 pounds of waste solid per cow. Formerly 1,000 pounds of water was used making a total waste product of 1,012 pounds. New methods of dry cleaning with the use of less water may be an important new procedure with much less waste products to contend with for the rancher.

At another meeting in Sonoma County, the Department of Agriculture had representatives give the new facts in the use of chemicals and insecticides. Some of the facts were: Licenses are now needed to sell pesticides. Salesmen of pesticides must be registered. DDT in Sonoma County is being eliminated except for homeowners; they have until Jan. 1, 1971, to use what's on hand, then the ban is complete. The product 245T is being banned in areas where it can get into waterways. Some phosphates stronger than DDT are now being used, but the residual effect is very short, where as in DDT it lasted for years.

I ALSO ATTENDED a meeting at which the Peripheral Canal was discussed. The gist of this meeting was that most of the people who are against the Peripheral Canal are so because they believe the canal is the California Water Plan. Not so! The California Water Plan is a plan voted by the people 10 years ago. It is a plan whereby water is to be sent to Southern California areas. Since 1967, and at present, approximately 4,000 cubic feet per second is going southward. Recently, the Tracy pumps were activated to send 7,000 cubic feet per second south.

This caused a flow reversal in the River; in other words, the streams flowed backwards or uphill from the suction effects of the pumps. Small fish, salmon and bass, etc. were sucked into the pumps with this rate of flow. Eventually 18,000 cubic feet per second is slated to go through the pumps. In a study over the past nine years, the state and federal governments have come up with the Peripheral Canal as the one method of permitting the California Water Plan to go into effect without hurting the environment and ecology of the Delta.

THE PERIPHERAL Canal will be 43 miles long, 400 feet wide and 30 feet deep. It will be built to take water directly to the pumps, but it will take water, 22,000 cubic feet per second, from the Hood area of the Sacramento River, far enough up the river so there will be no flow reversals. It will carry the water on a separate route to the Tracy pumping plants so that the operation of the plant will not effect the flows in the delta area. Also along the 43-mile route of the Canal water releases will be made at eleven points along the way in waterways flowing downward and into the Sacramento River.

These waterways will eventually be improved by continual new added flows. The Fish and Game Department in its studies feels that the Peripheral Canal meets all the criteria essential for a positive flow to the sea, and an enhancement of fish and wildlife. If the water plan is fully implemented without the canal to insure proper intake procedures, proper releases at important points and proper seaward flows then the striped bass, salmon, sturgeon and other anadromous fish runs will be seriously impaired.

The Department of Water Resources had recently made a 20-minute film for public use by clubs, etc. Interested persons can write or call Frank Hubbard, Dept. of Fish and Game, Ferry Building, San Francisco.

PACKING HIS BAGS

Lanky righthanded Boston Red Sox pitcher Jim Lonborg cleaned out his locker in the Red Sox dressing room after holding an informal press conference yesterday where he told reporters that stories saying he would retire or refuse to report to the Red Sox minor league team in Louisville, were in error. The 1967 Cy Young Award winner said he would join Louisville at the earliest opportunity. (UPI Telephoto)

Giants All Willies In Split

MONTREAL (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants have got the Willies, and they couldn't do without them.

McCovey and Mays provided the stumbling Giants with an 8-7 win Friday night over Montreal before the Expos came back to drop the Giants in the nightcap, 7-5.

McCovey knocked in four runs and Mays drove in three in the opener to help San Francisco come from behind. McCovey, recovering from a pulled hamstring muscle and ailing with arthritic knees, added his 24th homer of the season in the process.

But he and the aging Mays were unable to hold the Giants together in the nightcap. Jim Ray Hart drove in four runs for the losing cause with a single and a pair of homers, but San Francisco's front-liners failed to follow suit and Skip Pitlock picked up his third loss in four decisions.

Mike Davison won the opener for the Giants to improve his record to 2-3.

A's Mystery Man Puzzles Yankees

By STEVE TOOMAJIAN

OAKLAND (UPI)—The pitching record of Chuck Dobson always has been a mystery.

A strong man with a world of potential upon his entry into the majors five years ago, Dobson's only claim to consistency has been his yearly string of Jekyll-and-Hyde performances.

You could always depend on him to fire a brilliant complete game one night and make an early trip to the showers the next.

"It's been like that all through my career. I either throw a good game or get ripped early," Dobson said Friday night after displaying one of his good ones against the New York Yankees for an 11-0 victory.

His teammates ganged up to score seven runs in the opening inning and Dobson responded by limiting the Yankees to four hits, firing his third shutout and ninth complete game of the year and evening his record at 10-10.

THIRD STRAIGHT

The win was the Dobber's third in succession and fourth in a row for the A's, who trail division leading Minnesota by 10½ games.

Though Dobson, now 26, has been Oakland's most effective starter the past couple of weeks, he still leads the club in losses and has the worst earned run average (3.92) among the club's starters.

Opposing players will tell you he's one of the league's best pitchers— when he wins. But when he loses, the ball shoots out of the batter's box like a chain of Fourth of July rockets.

"I've always been streaky, and I've never understood why," Dobson said. "This year I think I've had bad luck. I haven't pitched as bad as my record. But I'm not making excuses.

A PUZZLE

"Take spring training, for example. I feel like I've got the best stuff I've ever had, but I ent up losing my first three games. I can't figure it out."

If Dobson ever learns to win consistently, he may finally take his place among baseball's top hurlers. He is 6-4, 200 pounds, with tremendous strength and endurance, and his fastball and breaking pitches tail sharply.

Dobson had it all working Friday night. In each of his last three victories, the A's have staked him to sizable early leads.

Twelve batters came to the plate in the first inning when New York rookie Steve Kline (1-2) could not find his rhythm. The result was seven runs on five hits and four walks. Don Mincher crashed a two-run double, Frank Fernandez and Dobson belted two-run singles and Rick Monday concluded the assault with a run producing base hit.

SINGLE RUNS

The A's added single runs in the second and third on run scoring hits by Dick Green and Sal Bando. Reggie Jackson and Green came back with RBI doubles in the sixth for the final tallies.

Dobson's next appearance is Tuesday night against Boston, at which time he hopes to "figure out," as he says, what it takes to put together a string of victories.

Mill Valley Junior Tennis Starts Monday

More than 250 junior tennis players from throughout Northern California will gather Monday at the Mill Valley Tennis Club for the start of the 12th annual Marin County Junior Hardcourt Tournament.

Ten Marin players are seeded in the event, which is sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association and the Northern California Tennis Association.

Andy Moffat of the host Mill Valley club, playing in the boys 18 and under class, is the county's only top seed. Seeded second are Dan Tierney of Tiburon in boys 14s, Diane DeMartini of Greenbrae in girls 12s, and Lissy Manheim of Tiburon in both girls 16s and 18s.

Third seeds from Marin are Jerry Suyderhoud in boys 18s and Jennifer Gobershock in girls 14s. Mark Rodnick in boys 16s and Cary Stansbury in boys 12s are seeded fourth and Bill Kinser of Tiburon is the seventh seed in boys 16s.

The tournament will last five days, with finals next Friday.

Russians Rip U.S. In Track And Field

LENINGRAD (UPI) — The American track and field team wondered today what might have happened if some of its missing veterans had made the trip.

Russia's seasoned and powerful squad in a two-day battle Thursday and Friday gave the young and starless Americans one of the worst trouncings in the 10-year history of the dual meets. Competing before 25,000 appreciative fans in Lenin Stadium the Soviets won overall by 200-173, and they carried both the male and female divisions by 122-114 and 78-59, respectively.

Not since Kiev, 1965, have the Americans done so poorly.

The U.S. men now have lost twice in the 10 meets and the Soviets chalked up their fourth overall win. The pattern in the past was for the Soviet Union's women to win by a landslide while powerful American men counterbalanced to give the Yank teams the overall victories. This year, however, too many U.S. record holders and Olympic veterans stayed home.

And the U.S. team likes to think it would have come out on top had absent stars like Randy Matson in the shot put, Bob Seagren in pole vault, miler Jim Ryun or triple jumper Bob Beamon been present and in form.

But U.S. head coach Leroy Walker did not lament. He predicted his losers will turn to stars.

"I think it was a real good match and I'm sure our policy of bringing over such a young team will pay dividends in the next Olympic Games in Munich in 1972," he said.

"I'm glad we can give such a nice young crew, averaging only 22 years old, a chance to see what it is all about before the Pan American Games in July next year and the Olympics."

Walker was disappointed by the U.S. performance in the 1,500 meter, 5,000 meter and pole vault Friday. But he recalled with pride the stunning 10,000 meter race run Thursday by Frank Shorter of the University of Florida and team captain Ken Moore of the University of Oregon.

Shorter, 23, was Thursday's hero with a blazing 28:22.8 victory in the 10,000 meters. He was followed over the chase by Moore for the first American double triumph in the event against the Russians.

A major disappointment Thursday was the 100-meter loss by Vaughan and Ivory Crockett of the University of Southern Illinois, who lost in driving rain to Russia's European champion, Victor Borzov.

More also had been expected in tht 800 meters by Ken Swenson of Kansas State, but the 22-year-old student surrendered tamely to Russia's Evgeny Zhdanov only a week after setting an American record against West Germany with 1:44.8.

Teenagers Jim Moore, 19, of the University of Oregon and Raynaldo Brown, also 19, of Cal Tech, scored upset wins in the long jump and the high jump respectively. Moore's 7.96 (26 feet, 1½ inches) and Brown's 7 feet, ¼ inch won against vastly more experienced Russian opposition.

Field Captain Bill Skinner exploded in his last javelin throw to score 272 feet, 8 4-10 inch win over Russia's Olympic champion and world record holder, Janis Lusis.

FIGHT AGAINST DRUGS

Gambino Is Champ Out Of The Ring

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Vincent (Jimmy) Gambino has to rank right up there with the greatest fighters I've ever seen.

Pound for pound or any other way you know to measure a man.

Jimmy Gambino is 38 now. An old 38. He once was a Golden Gloves champ and after that a rather promising professional heavyweight. As a pro he won 13 out of 14, but then turned into a drug addict and lost both his legs due to Buerger's disease which the doctors told him resulted from all the drugs he took. He was hooked on drugs 13 years, but has been clean the past six.

Jimmy Gambino isn't much for ceremony.

He parked his artificial legs alongside his wheelchair Thursday, put his special steel cane up against the wall of what once had been an abandoned apartment but now serves as headquarters for Project Return, and then told it like it is to 35 other ex-drug addicts.

"There's only one word I'd say to somebody who is gonna use drugs," Jimmy Gambino said. "Don't. When you use drugs, you gotta lie, you gotta cheat, you gotta rob, you gotta hurt people. You can always tell a junkie. Your face gets yellow; your teeth rot and fall out; your sex life is finished; you can't even talk with people because anytime you do, you're always scheming to get a fix."

Most of those in the group Gambino was talking to were between the ages of 15 and 22 and one youth wanted to know what the ex-fighter thought about marijuana.

"Look, I'm not a doctor," said Gambino, addressing an audience for the first time in his life as part of a program sponsored by the MOD (March on Drug Corps,) "but I don't know of anyone who first started by putting a needle in his arm. I know this: marijuana leads to harder drugs. A kid says 'Wow, I got this way on marijuana, I wonder how high I can get on the other junk.'

"Heroin and the other drugs are destroyers of the body and the mind. Look at me! No legs anymore. This is an ugly picture. I know it's ugly. But I like to speak to kids in the 6 to 12 age group before they get involved. They see me and I figure maybe they'll listen because they say, my God, this guy blew his legs because of drugs. They cost me more than that. I have a wife and two children no longer with me because of drugs. They mean more to me than my legs."

Jimmy Gambino was born in Greenwich Village and still lives there. He fought a preliminary on the Joe Louis-Rocky Marciano card in the old Madison Square Garden on Oct. 26, 1951 and was arrested in his dressing room after the bout for the sale of narcotics.

A judge sentenced him to two years.

"I came home from jail in 1953 and there must have been 80 of us in my neighborhood who were on dope. Only six are left now. The others all died of overdose or wound up in insane asylums," Gambino said.

"I wanted to be one of the guys. Three of 'em would go their way but I'd have to go the other way because I wasn't taking dope. So one day after I'd been smoking marijuana I rolled up my sleeve and stuck a needle in my arm. I wanted to find out what it was all about. I found out all right. If I ever do put a needle in my arm again I'll make sure there's enough in the spoon so I never wake up," he said.

"I can only say this to you: when I got out of the hospital after losing my legs, a friend of mind said he'd rather see me this way than being a junkie. At first I was mad but now I honestly feel the same way he does. If you see somebody out on the street and he's strung out on drugs, he's the square. And if you see someone out on the street and he's clean, then he's the hippest person you'll ever see."

On Aug. 14 the MOD Corps is going to stage its first National Drug-Out Day and National Chairman Norman King says a parade is planned that will end in Central Park. More than 500 former drug addicts plan to march.

"Don't forget to come to the parade," Jimmy Gambino urged all those listening at Project Return which really is something to see at 141 East 34th Street in this city. "We'll all walk together."

I asked Jimmy Gambino what kind of a fighter he considered himself and after thinking it over a little he said:

"Average. Not much."

He was never so wrong in his life.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, eVnus Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1866, Ulysses S. Grant became the first American officer to reach the rank of general of the U.S. Army.

In 1934, Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss of Australia was assassinated by troops of the Nazi Black Guards as Adolf Hitler tried unsuccessfully to take over the country.

In 1943, King Emmanuel of Italy replaced Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini.

In 1952, Puerto Rico became a self-governing U.S. Commonwealth.

A thought for the day: Daniel Webster said, "let our object be our country, our whole country, and nothing but our country."

POOR COUNTING

East won the first trick with the king of spades when declarer, a member of the younger generation, played a low spade from the dummy. For lack of anything better, East returned a spade to dummy's ace.

South led the queen of hearts from dummy, led a heart to the ace and then brightly remarked, "Well, that's that," as he led a club to dummy's ace.

The Old Kibitzer was so furious at South's apparent failure to see that a trump was still out that he stormed out of the club without waiting to see what happened next.

CONTINUES CLUBS

Declarer continued with another club, and East was obliged to win the trick. East had only spades and diamonds, and couldn't lead a diamond without giving dummy a free finesse. In an attempt to get out, East returned a spade.

SUCCESSFUL RISK

Since there was still a trump in dummy, South could discard a diamond from his hand while he ruffed in dummy. Then he gave up another club and claimed his contract. If South had drawn three rounds of trumps, East could have returned his spade quite safely, and declarer would have lost a diamond trick to lose his contract.

What the Old Kibitzer didn't know was that South was an excellent counter but didn't trust kibitzers over 30 years of age.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ - K 9 5 4 2
♥ - 8 4
♦ - K 8 6 4
♣ - K J.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades.

If partner has three or more spades, you want to play the hand at four spades. If partner has only two spades, you will content to let him play at 3 no-trump.

Car Tires Last Longer If She's Behind Wheel

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Women drivers get about 10,000 miles more wear out of a set of tires than men, according to a tire company study.

Goodyear says its study showed that women drivers average about 30,000 miles before needing replacements, while men average 20,000 miles, with some getting as little as 12,000 miles.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

The Editor's Notebook

Two Fearless Men Made Marin 'Clean County'

FOR MORE THAN a generation, Marin has been known as a "clean county." That is, laws were enforced rather rigidly. Offenders could expect swift and sure justice.

It was not always so.

In J.P. Munro-Fraser's "History of Marin County," published in 1880, the author wrote, "No county of its size has such a bloody record as this; some of the murders committed in it are almost beyond description."

IF YOU TALK WITH old-timers whose memory extends back to prohibition days and earlier, you know that Marin was a pretty rowdy, bawdy place.

Rumrunners, speakeasies, gambling dens and houses of prostitution flourished.

A rather brash but handsome young man appeared on the public scene in Marin nearly 40 years ago. He had the temerity to run for the office of district attorney in opposition to the "establishment" incumbent.

Somehow, that young man won election and a new era was born. The county's only superior court was presided over by a "tough" judge. Marin began to throw off its image as an "open" community and became, instead a "clean" place.

The brash young district attorney was Albert E. Bagshaw, now the head of a private law firm in San Rafael. The judge was Edward I. Butler, now dead.

At the end of their tenure in office, neither was very popular with Marin members of the law profession.

Unfortunately, their key parts in cleaning up the county and keeping it clean went largely unappreciated during the latter days of their public service.

Each of Bagshaw's several successors as district attorney has endeavored to carry on the "fearless, rough prosecutor" tradition which he established.

As our superior courts have become more numerous and their judges more varied in background and viewpoint, the "tough" judge image has almost completely disappeared.

NEARLY 100 YEARS AGO, a San Francisco businessman named Paul Rieger came to Marin for a week end of fishing on Lagunitas Creek at Tocoloma. He was last seen as he left the train station at Tocoloma on Saturday, April 19, 1879, to head for his favorite fishing spots.

Nearly a week later, his body was found on the bank of the creek, riddled with bullets and robbed of all valuables as well as some of his clothing.

It was nearly a month before the suspected murderer, an Indian known as "Salvador the Brave," was taken into custody at a rancheria near Sebastopol.

On May 26 he was taken before the justice of the peace in San Rafael and held to answer. He was indicted by the grand jury on June 2. He was arraigned July 23, pleaded not guilty the following day, and went on trial starting July 28. Seating of a jury took until 5 p.m. July 30. Salvador was found guilty and sentencing took place Aug. 4.

While awaiting execution, he confessed to a string of murders beginning 19 years earlier when he killed his brother during a quarrel at Nicasio.

A witness recorded Salvador's last words as he stood on the gallows in the county courthouse:

"I am thankful to you all and especially to Sheriff Tunstead for the kind treatment I have received. I know I have committed a terrible crime and am willing to give up my life for it."

As a contemporary account described it, ". . .precisely at 20 minutes past one in the afternoon of Oct. 2, 1879, the heavy trap shot down, leaving the murderer of Paul Rieger suspended in mid-air."

TODAY A MURDERER is not likely to face trial at all in the year in which the offense is committed. In the case of a death sentence, it is unlikely ever to be executed.

Drug crimes and crimes of violence have grown at a frightening rate. We still have a Marin prosecutor of the fearless, tough image. Our law enforcement officers go about their business in a much more professional manner than they did a generation ago (or even a decade ago).

But high court decisions and their interpretation and application at the local level seemingly have stacked the cards in favor of the offender. Too many who are obviously guilty escape punishment on one technicality or another.

One of these days the pendulum will swing again. It will be a welcome change.

And whatever happened to the old idea that it was admirable and manly to admit your offenses and "take your medicine."?

—Jack Craemer

Fuchsia Weather

The typically cool midsummer Marin weather which we enjoyed (or suffered through, depending on how one feels about it) during most of July is really great for fuchsias. So much so, the lady of our house calls it fuchsia weather.

These lovely bell-like flowers don't care much for really hot weather. They are at their best when the temperatures are in the 60s and there is lots of moisture in the air. They prefer life in the semi-shade.

Fuchsias seem to be especially well adapted to Pacific Coast summer. Color our summer climate fuchsia.

Bouquets — And No Brickbat

BOUQUETS to San Anselmo's Mayor James F. Reed and City Councilmen Kenneth L. Anderson, Warren R. Perry, Woodrow V. Capurro and Lewis W. Stewart for giving up their city council salaries for one month to make possible a tot lot in their city.

BOUQUET to the Marin County Board of Education for abandoning the committee system under which much of the deliberation leading to its decisions had not been held during its regular meetings — with an added flower in the bouquet for board member Marilyn Crowell, who proposed the change.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

Near the end of World War II, food conservationists plastered placards all through army installations reminding wasteful GI's, "Food Will Win the War." Underneath one of the placards a mischievous private penciled, "Agreed — but how can we get the Japs over here to eat it?"

The Village pest met Joe Klingenstein returning from Rankeley Lake with a fine mess of fish, and observed admiringly, "That's a good day's catch! What'd ye use fer bait?" "Chewing tobacco," joshed Joe. "Never heard of nothin like that bein' used for bait,;; wondered the pest. "How'd ye use it?"

"Simple," explained Joe.

"You just put it on the hook. The fish snaps it and retreats. Then when he comes to the surface to spit, you conk him over the head with your pole."

Why Carry It Around?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Kappas Houseboats Not New Project

July 21, the I-J published a correction of a story which had appeared the day before concerning County Planning Commission action on Mr. (George) Kappas' Gate 6½ houseboat community in Richardson Bay. That correction was much appreciated, but still left some confusion as to the facts. (By the way, the photograph was of Gate 6, not Gate 6½).

The planning commission did not vote to permit establishment of a new houseboat community. It was stuck with a pre-existing, legal, nonconforming use. We could and did impose numerous conditions requiring public access, 50 per cent open water, adequate parking, sewer connections, and so on.The fact that this particular development sits smack in the middle of the "public marina" proposed in the Richardson Bay plan is a hell of a note, but we saw no recourse to the county except to condemn and purchase it, and have so notified our board of supervisors.

The supervisors are not trying to get rid of houseboats in Richardson Bay, as implied in the I-J story. On the contrary, they have recognized them as a legitimate style of living, so long as they conform to minimum standards of sanitation, safety, and amenity.

Some of us, including me, even like them, and feel sad that the cost of these essential improvements will probably force out some of the present, perhaps some of the most interesting, houseboats and houseboat dwellers. I'd be willing to subsidize them as low-cost housing (if in fact they are), but then you'd be into even more stringent regulation, a condition I don't think is compatible with the style of living in question.

Turn On Lights To Cut Accidents

If you would like to help reduce the accident rate on Sears Point Road, State Highway 37, it is suggested that you turn on your vehicle's low beam headlights when traveling this highway during the daylight

A sign requesting this action, posted at both ends of this roadway, might be in order at this time.

LINES ON LIVING

To Have Real Friend, Show Him The Real You

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

"Let me live in my house by the side of the road and be a friend to man," said Sam Walter Foss. Wise counsel. But not at all cost, for we know from stinging personal experience how often friends can be disappointing and friendships mocked and betrayed.

To have real friends one must be a real person — honest in friendship. This is to say that if one is obliged to hide his true self through the self-effacement of character so as to please a friend, appease a friendship, he is better off without such a cumbersome relationship and entanglement.

Friendship, a real and rewarding kinship of human interaction and association, must be exercised free and freely.

PERICLES, who was once asked to compromise his conscience by doing the unjust thing, insisted upon his freedom not to surrender, saying, "I am a friend only as far as the altar."

People who ask us to sacrifice our self-integrity upon the altar of friendship do not want friends, they want chattels, slaves. Any friendship which demands untruth — one's untruth to himself, in self-denial — is a monopoly, not a trust. "A friend," says Emerson, "is a person with whom I may be sincere."

I can be sincere with myself only when I am myself. I can be sincere with my friend only when I am friend to myself. Friendship in its ultimate realization means human self-extension without chains, human self-expression without fear. Reduce it to anything else and it becomes a dirty business, subjugating humans to shrinkage as mere wards. As you cannot buy yourself friendship, you must not attempt to sell yourself in friendship; as you cannot have religion without God, you cannot have friendship without truth, without the human decency of being honest with your friends as you're honest with yourself.

AN UNKNOWN author once asked: "What is a friend?" And he was quick to reply, stating the obvious and yet the most sublime truth of friendship: "It is a person with whom you dare to be yourself. Your soul can go naked with him. He seems to ask you to put on nothing, only to be what you really are."

Then he goes on to say that with a friend "you don't have to be on your guard."

With a real friend you vent off frustrations, anxieties and sincere anger — uncorking little vanities, idiosyncrasies and absurdities. And as you open yourself up — your genuine you — to your friend, you find your human frailties "dissolved on the whole ocean" of friendly loyalty and human compassion. He not only forgives and forgets, he also overlooks and ever-loves.

To have a real friend you have to be a friend by gaining understanding and human comprehension. "You can weep with him, laugh with him, pray with him. . ." You have to understand him and his varied moods, avoid nagging him in time of weakness, and dare not neglect him in time of trouble. You weep with him and laugh with him — not at him, not because of him. And when you're real in yourself and friend to yourself, you can be friend to others, real and true.

COUNTRY PARSON

"Great men are ordinary men who have done great things."

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

If the public is willing to give up their present services to maintain a "state of nature," then so be it. But I, personally, don't see very many of them giving up anything. What I do see is that the ones who shout the loudest are the ones who have the most — and intend to keep it. — William R. Gianelli, director of California Department of Water Resources.

German Politics Damage Chance To Reduce U.S. Troop Strength

WASHINGTON — After 1945 the United States put at least $4 billion into German recovery and helped to evolve a union of western forces in which German arms would be incorporated as one element.

Twenty-five years later 250,000 American troops are still stationed in Germany With the demand, which has grown rapidly in the past 18 months, that this number be drastically reduced, the Germans react with a case of the jitters. But at the same time, while they shelter under the American umbrella, powerful forces in Germany seem determined to frustrate the hope of easing tensions between East and West and thereby reduce the military pressures.

CHANCELLOR Willy Brandt emerged upon taking office last October as perhaps the most dynamic leader in the West. He proposed a series of negotiations with the Soviet Union and the East European nations — an opening to the East — that would lessen the threat of conflict and begin to end the uncertainties along borders still unresolved 25 years after the fighting stopped. It was one more chance — some observers saw it as perhaps a last chance — for a sensible approach to the problem of a divided world.

Brandt, with his skillful negotiators, had begun to make progress. An agreement with Poland on the long-disputed border is in the works. Foreign Minister Walter Scheel is going to Moscow on Monday to negotiate a nonaggression pact with the Soviet Union. In Washington last week Schell's overture to Moscow was approved with the reservation that, whatever the outcome, it should not interfere with the four-power trusteeship over Berlin.

But now, whether out of neurotic fears, an upsurge of chauvinism, a crude political maneuver to bring Brandt down, or a combination of all three of these motives, the Christian Democrats are out to defeat the opening to the East. Under the leadership of the former chancellor, Kurt Georg Kiesinger, who was content to preside over a Germany resting on American strength, the Christian Democrats have severed bipartisanship, refusing to send an observer to the Moscow talks. They are savagely attacking Brandt with the intimation of treason to Germany's national interest.

THIS IS THE OLD Germany, the Germany of the Junkers. At least an echo can be heard of the Nazi past and the resort to fear and distrust as a political weapon.

One thing is quite clear. If the Brandt policy fails and his government is brought down, as may well happen, the drive in the United States to scale down the troop commitment in Germany will grow by leaps and bounds. If the Europeans cannot begin to set their own house in order, it will be past time for America to stop playing policeman.

SEN. CHARLES Percy of Illinois has done a detailed study of the cost of the American troop commitment in Europe. It costs the American taxpayer $14 billion to support our troops in NATO. This means a $1.5 billion balance-of-payments deficit tied to the military commitment, and of this $1 billion is Germany alone. To help tide the United States over, Germany made loans over a two-year period but those loans must be repaid and repaid with interest.

At a recent meeting of the economic committee of the NATO Assembly, a parliamentary group, Percy proposed a series of reforms.

Percy called it scandalous that the American government continues to pay millions of dollars to its NATO partners in taxes at every level. Certainly, if this country can Vietnamize the war in Southeast Asia, he said recently, it should not be impossible to Europeanize the defense of Europe.

Kiesinger and the Christain Democrats will, of course, try to transpose their suspicion of the Brandt policy into anti-communism for American public opinion. It is doubtful that this ploy will stem the drive to cut back the burden America has carried for 23 years. If this is isolationism, it is a match for the Kiesinger brand of withdrawal.

ART BUCHWALD

Helpful Hints For Executives Caught In Economy Squeeze

WASHINGTON — As the earnings statements of large companies get gloomier, there is more and more pressure on corporation executives to make economies in their firms.

Most companies do this by first firing the office boy, then retrenching in the mail room department, and finally by cutting the budget on the softball team.

But as time goes on and stockholders get unhappier and unhappier, management may have to start making cuts in the upper levels of the company and even executives are in danger of losing their jobs.

HOW DOES SOMEONE in a large company save his job when all about him are losing theirs? Perhaps I can be of help.

The first bit of advice is DO NOT TAKE A VACATION this year. No matter how badly you need one, hang in there or else this is what could happen.

"Maxwell, what are you doing sitting at my desk?"

"Oh, Herndon, how was the Cape?"

"Fine. Now what are you doing in my office?"

"WELL, FINANCE decided to merge sales with packaging and they asked me to take over. I naturally fought the move but they were adamant. We tried to reach you on the Cape but they said you were racing in the Hyannis-Nantucket sailboat trials. How did you do?"

"I came in third. Now where have I been moved to?"

"Thats what they were trying to reach you about. They've had to cut across the board. I spoke up for you but. . ."

THE SECOND BIT of advice is to institute an economy committee, before one is constituted without you. Go into the president and say: "B.J., I'd like to organize a cost-cutting program so we don't get caught like Penn Central with our pants down. What I suggest we do is form a team and go into every department and see how we can eliminate waste. We could report to you within a month, so you'll have something to show the board."

If your idea is accepted, you must use great tact in suggesting the elimination of somebody else's job, on the off chance that he might survive and do you in.

You could say, "Gentlemen, I think we'd make a mistake if we let Fowler go. It's true his advertising campaign for 'Fluff' was a complete disaster, but we must remember there has been great consumer resistance in toiletries for dogs this year. Fowler is a genius when it comes to advertising even though he has a tendency to antagonize everyone in the company."

If Fowler loses his job you have the minutes of the meeting to prove that you've defended him.

To show that you have the company's interest at heart before your own, announce some economies you're making in your own department. "I'm happy to announce, gentlemen, that I've furloughed two telephone operators and laid off four watchmen in our Wichita warehouse, thus saving the company $33,000. This cuts my department to the bone, but I believe we can manage with what we've got."

THE BIGGEST danger during an economy drive is that the company may hire an outside consulting firm to make a private report on which people should be let go.

If one comes in the plant, stop all the work you are doing and spend every waking moment with him. Most consultants know little or nothing about the businesses they are investigating, and if you can make them look good they may believe you are necessary to the firm.

You can also get even with some old enemies.

"Tell me, Herndon, where is Mr. Maxwell?"

"Maxwell? I believe he's playing golf. He always plays golf on Wednesday afternoon with his doctor."

REV. BARRET LAMPP

Baptists In San Rafael Call Pastor

Rev. Barrett M. Lampp has been called by the First Baptist Church of San Rafael as its new pastor.

A former official with the U.S. Forest Service, Lampp has just completed his resident requirements for a master of theology degree from Golden Gate Baptist Seminary at Strawberry. He received his bachelor of arts degree from California Baptist College at Riverside.

From 1961 to 1963 he served as assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church at Lemoore. Since then he has served churches in Chester, Plumas County; Half Moon Bay and in Pacheco, Contra Costa County.

Lampp delivered his first sermon at the church, located at 1411 Lincoln, last Sunday.

He is married and the father of two children.

World Relief Headquarters Are Shifted

ST. LOUIS (LC) — After 17 years of operating out of Royal Oak, Mich., the world relief office of the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod is transferring here to synodical headquarters.

Coinciding with the move is the retirement of Dr. Werner H. Kunt, full-time director of the program since its inception. A successor to Dr. Kuntz is presently being called.

"This is a time of unparalleled challenge and opportunity for us Lutherans and our church body to demonstrate the love which is the earmark of the Christian faith," Dr. Kuntz stated in his parting comments.

"We need, like the Christians of old, to demonstrate what sort of people we are," he added.

"It may well be that the compassion of Christian people for the forgotten, the exiled and the downtrodden will, in the economy of God, prove mightier than the flexing muscle and the arrogance of those who would topple Him from His throne and foolishly think they can inherit the earth," Dr. Kuntz concluded.

Although accurate figures on how many people were ministered to during 17 years of operation cannot be determined, world relief contributions last year reached $714,000, almost seven times more than its first year income.

Until a new director is secured, relief operations will be carried out by the Board of Social Ministry and World Relief of the LC-MS under the leadership of Dr. Leslie F. Weber, executive secretary.

Dr. Weber indicated that the move to the church's headquarters will provide an opportunity for the various departments of the church to become more involved in world relief concerns.

Week's Vacation Bible School Set

With the "Wordless Book" as its theme, the Valley Baptist Church, 3 North San Pedro Road in San Rafael, will launch a week's vacation Bible school on Monday.

An innovation this year will be the use of homes of members for various programs during the week.

On Aug. 3, a special service will be held at the church to display various projects of the session.

The Anatomy Of Grief And How It Can Be Withstood

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Sooner or later, you'll come to grief.

That's not a Cassandra prophecy. It's a simple statement of the human condition. Life eventually brings to each of us some kind of shattering loss—the death of a loved one, the defection of a friend, the estrangement of a child, the collapse of a career—to which we respond in grief.

It therefore behooves all of us to learn something about the anatomy of grief, so that when it comes we will be able to understand our own reactions and cope with them in a healthy way.

The Rev. Granger E. Westberg, a sensitive and empathetic man who teaches pastoral counseling at the Hamma School of Theology in Springfield, Ohio, has identified several different stages through which a grief-stricken person must work his way.

First, Westberg says, comes a "state of shock" in which the victim "just can't believe it's true." This is a protective reaction of great value, because it gives a person time to muster his inner resources to face "the full significance of his loss."

This may be followed by a period of acute depression and loneliness, in which he feels that "no one else has ever gone through what he is experiencing." Comforting words from others fall on deaf ears at this stage. He just wishes everyone would leave him alone."

Physical illness is a common accompaniment of these early stages of grief reaction. The sufferer won't eat, can't sleep, has headaches, and feels as though his stomach were tied in knots.

Next comes the phase of feeling guilty. "He feels he is somehow responsible for the loss, so he wrestles with his conscience about what he did that was right and what was wrong." Sympathetic counselors should not be too hasty about trying to banish these guilt feelings. For there may be "real guilt" as well as imagined guilt, and the former needs to be faced and repented, not repressed.

After guilt comes anger and resentment. He feels that his misfortune is unfair, and demands to know, "Why did this happen to ME?" There is a strong disposition in this stage to idealize the past and day dream about the "good old days" before the loss occurred.

Eventually, the victim of loss begins to struggle with new patterns of living. He discovers that "the clouds that seemed stationary actually are moving." With the passage of time, "there is a growing confidence that life can be good again even though it has changed so much."

The final phase of recovery comes when the victim of a great loss is able to see that in some ways his grief experiences have been good, because he has emerged from them "a stronger person, a deeper person, a person better able to help others go through their valleys."

Talking to a group of physicians at a recent meeting of the American Medical Association, Westberg said that a doctor, minister or friend who seeks to help a grieving person should bear three cardinal points in mind:

1. The grief-stricken person desperately needs to talk to someone he respects, and to know that the one he's talking to really is listening and really cares about his troubles.

2. He must be induced to face his situation and work through his problem realistically, not flee into some kind of escapism.

3. He should be told, not that he shouldn't grieve, but that "grief; is normal, it is healthy, it has healing qualities, it can actually be 'good grief.'"

COASTAL HOUSE OF WORSHIP

A recent addition near the entrance to the Point Reyes Seashore is the Sacred Heart Catholic Church of Olema. Finished last year, it offers residents of West Marin and visitors to the area a modern house of worship. Its simple lines blend into the natural beauty of the area.

Announcement of the shift came during the group's annual assembly meeting in Oakland last weekend.

Vatican Newspaper Denies Holy See's Immense Wealth

VATICAN CITY (UPI) -- The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano denied this week the Holy See possesses the immense wealth attributed to it in a recent book and in various newspaper articles.

L'Osservatore said the Vatican controls no banks, had nothing to do with revaluation of the Deutschmark, has no majority holdings in any Italian company and does not have even one one-hundredth of the $11.2 to $12.8 billion a Swiss newspaper said it possessed as productive capital.

The denial came in a lengthy reply to an article in the Swiss newspaper Tribune de Lausanne, which was based on Nino Lo Bello's book "The Gold of the Vatican," L'Osservatore said.

L'Osservatore said various newspapers in Italy and abroad "speak of Lo Bello's book as a reliable source" and attribute it to "a credibility worthy of a better cause."

The nearly two-column article in the Vatican newspaper was an item by item answer to statements it said appeared in the March 13 edition of Tribune de Lausanne. It said the answers were made specifically to that article because of questions about it which the Vatican had received from Switzerland.

L'Osservatore said the Vatican never sold 30 per cent of the stock in the Lancia auto firm to Fiat because the Vatican never owned one share of Lancia stock. It quoted the Tribune as saying the Holy See easily could have played with the revaluation of the Deutschmark, and replied: "The Holy See never possessed German marks."

Referring to majority holdings it was supposed to have in various Italian firms, particularly in the chemical and textile line, it said Vatican holdings in each case were less than one per cent. It said the Holy See never had majority holdings.

L'Osservatore said the Vatican has only normal deposits in foreign banks to finance its worldwide work and "it is untrue that the Holy See has control of seven of the most important Italian banks."

Pastor Finds Way To Visit Large Flock

VINELAND, N.J. UPI — With a 2,400-square-mile parish, Rev. William F. Collins needed a way to get around and solved it with a church on wheels — a house trailer.

Collins, 37 and a native of Atlantic City, ministers especially to the thousands of migrant farm workers of vegetable-growing southern New Jersey, many of them Spanish-speaking laborers from Puerto Rico or Cuba.

"Father Bill," as he is known, is spiritual leader, legal and medical adviser, slide projectionist and social director for his flock. He see himself as something of a catalyst "to make these workers aware of things."

The priest, who says mass daily in different parts of his far-flung parish, feels one of his most important contributions is "educating the workers on the world around them. . .housing laws, politics, medical facilities." With help, he thinks, the largely uneducated workers "can move a long way in preparing the future for their kids."

Collins has been on this job since the spring of 1969, ever since he talked the Camden Chancery into investing $10,000 in a motor home with special fittings.

Instead of the normal kitchen fittings it has book shelves. The bedroom was made into an office with desk, filing cabinet and a television set. A table next to the driver's seat — Collins does his own driving — holds a motion picture projector linked to a public address system.

Father Bill thinks it's a great way to bring church to the people.

Congo Missionary To Be Speaker

Rev. Elmer Pearson, pastor of the San Francisco Covenant Church, will be guest speaker at the 9:30 a.m. service tomorrow at the Marin Covenant Church. His topic will be "Who Is Jesus?"

A former missionary in the Congo where he was an associate of the late Dr. Paul Carlson, who was slain in 1964, he has been pastor of the San Francisco church for the past 18 months.

The Marin congregation holds its weekly meetings in the Marinwood Community Center, Lucas Valley and Mill Creek roads in San Rafael.

KENYA-STYLE

Missionaries Establish Boys' Town

GARISSA, Kenya (UPI)—An Italian Roman Catholic Priest and a former Hollywood bartender - turned - lay brother, have set up a Boys' Town in the northeast Kenya desert to offer Somali orphans a new life, hope —and plenty of water.

The Rev. John Bonzanino and Brother Mario Petrino, originally from Denver, Colo., arrived in this Moslem area less than two years ago.

They arrived after a fierce four-year border war in which Somali guerrillas tried to secede from Kenya to join the northern Somali Republic. In 1968, Kenyan president Jomo Kenyatta finally negotiated a settlement, but the battles had left an estimated 4,000 children fatherless.

The government granted some land for rehabilitation of the children and the two missionaries, after lengthy consultation with Moslem chiefs and misgivings on all sides, went to work.

They received moral —and some financial —support from the Vatican and encouragement from Pope Paul VI.

The murky Tana River flows by about two miles from what the missionaries christened the Garissa Boys' Town. For seven weeks, with the help of hired labor, they dug trenches to bring water closer. Then they recruited 150 homeless boys and began farming in the intense heat, growing watermelons that are now in demand all over Kenya and also are being exported.

"This is scrubville for real, man," Brother Mario, 47, said. "We're surrounded by wild animals, elephant, lion, rhino and hyena. One night we were invaded by 500 howling hyenas. You get so you want to pack your night bag and get the hell out of here forever.

"But we'll stick it out like good sports."

The missionaries get along well with the wiry nomadic tribesmen of the district who battle the parched desert. They wander unconcernedly past Moslems kneeling on mats pointed in homage toward Mecca.

"We're not here to convert. This is a humane exercise," they say.

Brother Mario added: "The other day they offered me a Somali bride. They said I must have a lady to look after me. But I told them I wouldn't be able to concentrate on my work and besides I had taken vows of chastity. They said she would be young and beautiful but I had to say no, thanks."

The orphans who are the beneficiaries of the missionary work lead a rigorous schedule — awake at 5:30 a.m., wash, something to eat, school, homework, lunch, exercise, work on the farm. The Brother Mario "runs" the boys. He believes he has potential Olympic material, as Somalis, like many of Kenya's famous athletes, have the long femur bone which makes for an effortless, loping stride.

"They're really happy, you know," the bearded lay brother said. But although he said he has "found my rainbow in this frontier region," he is not altogether satisfied. It isn't that he regrets the girl-friends, cars, air-conditioned apartments and swimming pools he enjoyed in his Hollywood days. Before he left on a recent fund-raising trip to the United States he said:

"There are still a few thousand orphans out there and it looks like we could do with some more cash."

Church Votes To Remain In Novato

The Presbytery of Northern California of the Orthodox Presbyterian Church has voted to continue its present work in Novato which was started in May.

The mission is under direction of Rev. Robert H. Graham, former minister of the Bayside Orthodox Presbyterian Church in Chula Vista.

The congregation meets twice each Sunday in the Seventh-Day Adventist building at San Marin Drive and Simmons Lane.

Guest Speaker

John Davis, lay member of the United Methodist Church of Novato will preach at both the 8:30 and 10:55 a.m. services tomorrow in the absence of Rev. Steven L. Darling who is on vacation. Mrs. Lee Davis will be the soloist at the second service.

Former Minister Bypasses Sundays

HIGH POINT, N.C. (UPI) — Dr. Tom Haggai, popular public speaker, makes about 750 speeches a year around the nation. A former Baptist minister, he never speaks on Sunday.

"I don't want to compete with the church," Dr. Haggai says.

A Documentary Award-Winner Spotlights The Hearst Castle

The fabulous Hearst Castle, a combination palace and museum located at San Simeon, is the subject of "The Enchanted Hill — The Story of San Simeon," to be telecast Wednesday at 8 p.m. on Channel 5.

The program is the fifth of 10 re-broadcasts of the "San Francisco Pageant," a series of Peabody Award-winning historical documentaries which examine the people, events and landmarks of Northern California. The series is hosted by Rolfe Peterson.

The film of the building of San Simeon is narrated by Steve Allen with personal reminiscences by silent screen star Francis X. Bushman, William Randolph Hearst Jr. and others.

RARE MOTION picture footage, unusual still photographs and KPIX film combine to provide an insight into San Simeon's builder William Randolph Hearst, and his spectacular home on the California coast.

Building of the Hearst Castle commenced in 1919 at an estimated cost of 30 million dollars. The art treasures within San Simeon's 146 rooms total more untold millions. For a quarter of a century Hearst enriched San Simeon with examples of ancient, medieval and Renaissance art objects that in number and quality are to be found nowhere else in this country. To house his constantly growing art collection, he continued to build on an even more grandiose scale, spending many more millions.

Built on a California hilltop, Hearst called San Simeon — "La Cuesta Encantada"...his Enchanted Hill.

IN 1958 THE Hearst family donated San Simeon to the State of California and it is now a state monument, visited by hundreds of thousands of persons yearly.

The Hearst San Simeon properties, extending at one time to well over 200,000 acres along 30 miles of Pacific Ocean waterfront (equal to nearly half the size of the state of Rhode Island) is located in the magnificent setting of the Santa Lucia Mountains, approximately five hours drive south from the Bay Area.

San Simeon once played host to the elite of world society. Once a home of great mystery, talked about and wondered about throughout the world, the real story of San Simeon, why and how it was created was never before told on film.

FRANCIS X. Bushman, silent film great, tells of the many glorious parties he attended at San Simeon. Bushman was one of the first great screen lovers. He made over 400 films before the age of 35, starring in such great epics as the original "Ben Hur" in 1926.

William Randolph Hearst Jr., son of the builder of San Simeon and editor-in-chief of the Hearst newspapers, recalls the history of San Simeon and the beginning of its construction.

Morgan North, nephew of San Simeon's architect, Julia Morgan, talks about the actual construction of San Simeon. Original sketches and drawings for San Simeon, made in 1920, by Miss Morgan and Hearst are seen from North's collection of his aunt's paper.

NORMAN ROTANZI, employed at San Simeon for over 30 years, recalls the million dollar landscaping project at San Simeon. He tells how he and his fellow gardeners, under the direction of Nigel Keep, planted over 125,000 trees on the grounds at San Simeon.

Mrs. Ann Rotanzi, his wife and head housekeeper, recalls the dinners at San Simeon with such guests as George Bernard Shaw, Calvin Coolidge, General Douglas MacArthur, Winston Churchill and many others.

Carey Baldwin reminisces about his days as director of the Hearst Zoo at San Simeon — the largest private animal collection in the United States and perhaps the world.

"The Enchanted Hill — The Story of San Simeon," was originally telecast in 1962. The program was produced and written by Lee Mendelson and photographed by Dick Williams. Executive producer is Ray Hubbard.

At Home, Daniel's Son Is Man-Of-The-House

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Darby Hinton, the little scamp of "Daniel Boone," has every reason to grow up and become a zoologist, but prefers an acting career or establishing a private school.

Master Hinton, now 12 years old, is the former owner of six Yorkshire terriers, two snakes, a gibbon, two wild boars, an African pygmy goat, three falcons, two racoons, two foxes and a mynah bird.

All, except the boars, ran and-or flew wild through the Hinton home.

It sounds ridiculous, but not once you've visited the Hintons. They live in what might be the most unusual house in Southern California.

THE LIVING room consists principally of a large swimming pool surrounded by lush tropical growth and palm trees that push right through the roof.

The home is perched high on a crag in Bel Air with an indoor-outdoor feeling that is enchanting, different and altogether delightful.

A recent fire destroyed part of the house and yard, reducing Darby's pet collection to the six dogs.

BUT REPAIRS have been made and the household almost returned to normal. Mrs. Hinton, widowed when her actor husband was killed in an airplane crash 11 years ago, has resisted Darby's desire to restock his wildlife preserve.

Darby is surrounded by females. In addition to his mother he shares the beautiful four-bedroom home with sisters Daryn, 15, and Darcy, 18, all the while insisting he is the man of the house.

Young Hinton began acting at age 6 months in television's old "Playhouse 90." Between that time and starting in "Daniel Boone" for NBC six years ago he appeared in 100 television shows and 17 movies.

DARBY THRIVES on work. He arises at 5 a.m. to arrive at 20th Century-Fox studios by 6. His early call is necessary for an hour-long ride to the studio ranch where most of the frontier shots are filmed.

Each day on the set three hours are devoted to tutoring in lieu of attending school.

DARBY HINTON
Will continue acting

Now that the show is under cancellation, Darby is going to a public school near his home. The transition came as something of a shock. He had spent all his school years studying alone.

"PUBLIC SCHOOL work is easier," young Hinton says. "I've made a lot of friends and the time passes much faster."

Darby is an unspoiled youngster filled with energy, wisecracks and the joy of teasing his elder sisters.

He loves hamburgers but will order escargot when dining out with his mother and siblings just to watch the girls squirm and giggle.

WHEN THE Hintons first moved into their unusual mansion, Darby could not contain the urge to push his sisters into the living room swimming pool. But everyone in the family — not to mention an occasional guest — has stepped into the pool accidentally.

Darby has no intention of retiring from show business now that "Daniel Boone" will be leaving the air. Prospects are good that he will land a top role in "Bless the Beasts and the Children."

"I'd like to act for the rest of my life," says Darby, "but that depends on people hiring me. If not I'd like to open my own school where kids could have a lot of fun."

Football Star Turns Actor On TV Series

When the NBC "Julia" series begins its third season this fall, Fred Williamson, who was a defensive back on four National Football League teams, will become a regular member of the cast. He will play Steve Bruce, primary romantic interest of Julia (Diahann Carroll).

He played the character in a one-shot episode telecast April 21.

A Musical Genius Is Illuminated By A Granddaughter

Mill Valley Kin Discusses Ernest Bloch And Work

By GIL PEARSON

When the truly great——cheek by jowl——speak well of a man's effort, then, he too rises to greatness. This has come about for a Marin lady's musician grandfather.

Albert Einstein wrote, "I esteem the works of Ernest Bloch above those of any great contemporary composers known to me."

Leopold Stokowski said, "I do not know of any musician in the world with a greater knowledge or more profound understanding of music in every phase than Ernest Bloch."

Louis Nizer noted, "Many keen musicians believe that he will be the fourth 'B'——Bach, Beethoven, Brahms and Bloch."

Other greats who voiced similar praise include Olin Downs, Alfredo Casella, Ernest Newman, Pablo Casals, Romain Rolland, and Yehudi Menuhin.

GRANDDAUGHTER Sita Dimitroff Milcev allowed us an interview in her Mill Valley home the other day, notwithstanding her nine months pregnancy. "We don't know just when the baby will arrive," she cautioned.

Brushing aside our suggestion for postponement, she scurried about with courageous agility producing photos, letters, and background material on her illustrious ancestor, the internationally renowned composer of music. And, in addition, she proved masterfully articulate in narrating his 80—year biography.

Ernest Bloch, a Jew, was born in Geneva, Switzerland, on July 24, 1880. Worldwide musicology has designated this racial and religious affiliation of Bloch a primary influence upon the style and speech of the majority of his compositions. The musician himself has done much to confirm and strengthen this.

HIS MOST POPULAR works are "Schelomo" (Hebrew for "King Solomon"), and "Nigun." The former is a Jewish rhapsody for cello and orchestra. The latter, for violin alone.

However, Bloch's major creation is the "Sacred Service" which is for the Sabbath which occurs in synagogues on Saturday morning. The traditional prayers may be spoken or sung, the whole corresponding in this respect to low masses and solemn masses of the Catholic Church.

These are the traditional Jewish prayers which Bloch has set to music for orchestras, mixed chorus and a solo voice, that of the celebrant, the cantor.

Commentators regard the "Sacred Service" as the crowning achievement of what they call Bloch's "Jewish cycle," which comprises such works as "Three Jewish Poems for Orchestra," "Three Psalms," and the "Israel Symphony."

AS FOR WHAT Bloch himself has said on the Jewish character of his music, grandaughter Sita produced remarks by the composer which admirably sharpen understanding of the style and writing of a work such as "Schelomo."

"It is neither my purpose nor desire to attempt a faithful reconstruction of Jewish music. . . . I am not an archeologist. I believe that the most important thing is to write good and sincere music.

"It is the Jewish soul that interests me, the complex, glowing, agitated soul that I feel stirring in the Bible; the vigor and naivete of the Patriarchs; the violence of the words in the Prophetic books; the innate love of justice; the despair of the preachers of Jerusalem; the grandeur of the Book of Job; and, the sensuality of the Song of Songs.

"All of this, slumbering within our deepest being, I wish to translate into music."

THAT STATEMENT, Sita explains, defines all of Bloch's compositions. . . expresses his music's total freedom, and its voice which climbs anew from the depths towards the sky, even with "Schelomo," in which, unlike the "Sacred Service," the heavens don't open and man remains closeted with his melancholy if not with his despair.

"But," she advises, "it is not so much this feeling of pessimism which has made 'Schelamo' popular; it is its glowing lyricism which becomes a source of consolation and beauty."

We learn from a synopsis by Antoine Golea that: "The exceptional place that Ernest Bloch occupies in Europe, in America, and in the 20th Century is shared with a certain number of other famous composers — some even more illustrious than he — such as Bela Bartok, Manuel de Falla and Georges Enesco, to name only these three."

THE INSTRUMENT that Bloch first learned to play was the violin. He began to study it at the age of 9 and composed, while still a child, some short pieces for this instrument. His desire to compose led him to supplement his violin studies with harmony and counterpoint, which he undertook under Emile Jacques Dalcroze, the celebrated eurhythmist and reformer of children's education through the learning of rhythms basic to the human body and to their application in group dancing.

Sita's aunt, Suzanne Bloch, notes in the 1969 spring bulletin of The Ernest Bloch Society that the composer was 24 years old when he began to sketch the music of his opera Macbeth. By then he had two symphonic works and four songs to his name. He worked on "Macbeth," the only opera he ever completed, for five years. Suzanne continues:

"My father's conception of the music was to express the inner ferments of the characters, more important to him than the actual drama. With little encouragement from his countrymen, with no financial subsidy he was stirred by an immense inner force. He exulted, he despaired, he slashed, he re wrote."

THE LATE ERNEST BLOCH was praised for his compositions and musicianship by some of the greatest figures of his age, including Albert Einstein, Leopold Stokowski and Pablo Casals. Today The Ernest Bloch Society, with headquarters in Mill Valley where Bloch once worked and relaxed, keeps alive interest in his music, more than a decade after the composer's death in 1959.

Ernest Bloch -- A Great Of Music

In 1907, when the music was almost all composed, Bloch had a chance to play it at a salon at the home of the son of George Bizet. Among the persons who heard it were the famous singer Lucienne Breval, and the critic Pierre Lalo.

BOTH ENTHUSED and they arranged an interview for Bloch, with Albert Carre, director of the Paris Opera Comique. Carre at once signed up for the rights of performance of "Macbeth" within two years, although it was an unheard-of-thing in Paris to bring out the work of unknowns who were not even French.

"Mon cher, Directeur," wrote Bloch in preparation for the first performance of his opera, "In regards to Macbeth, musically I have bound myself closely to the characters of the drama. I am enclosing some indications of the ranges of the voices to give you my very personal conception of the drama. . .

"Macbeth is a barbaric Celt with all the superstitions and terrors of a feudal soul. . . . He is a weakling, with the violence and brutality of the weak.

"Lady Macbeth is his opposite. He hesitates, she, never. . . . With a Lady Macbeth strong and perfidious, Macbeth's responsibility will seem to diminish. In spite of his horrendous acts the spectators should feel pity for him, should share his anguish, his fears and his despair.

". . .IN WRITING my music I have been constantly haunted by lighting. It must play a role, one of the most important. Just as the stage sets must be stark, crude and barbaric, so must the lighting be mobile, movemented, expressive.

"I have annotated the relationship of this with the music, notable in the sombre cavern of the Witches, barely visible, where on certain harmonies — slightly cabbalistic! — mysterious rays of light glow."

"Bloch's "Macbeth," first performed on Nov. 30, 1910, at the Opera-Comique in Paris, where it enjoyed more than a success d'estime, was repeated 43 years later at the Rome opera and again in 1957 when the Monnaie of Brussels staged a revival. The composer died in 1959 in Oregon.

It is Antoine Golea who notes that certainly some of Ernest Bloch's works can claim Jewish inspiration. He asks: "Is it a question of true Jewish music and true Jewish folklore?"

"the great wanderer," not only because he emigrated from Europe to America, but because he positively felt all his life to be without a country — a wandering Jew in an almost mystical sense of the term, yearning for a promised land of which he knew he would never see the borders. For him, the State of Israel whose birth and prosperity he witnessed was not and could not be this promised land.

He expressed all this in his music without having recourse to any authentic Jewish folklore.

It was in 1937 that a devoted group of international musicians and writers founded The Ernest Bloch Society in London and New York. Its revival today fills a growing need for review of this major, gifted composer's powerful contribution to the music of the 20th Century.

THIS SOCIETY'S aims are to develop among musicians and the music-loving public a fuller appreciation of the Bloch works by encouraging and arranging performances of his music and by making available commercial recordings of all his published compositions.

And to establish a library of Bloch's complete works for the use of members of the society and to serve as a center of information.

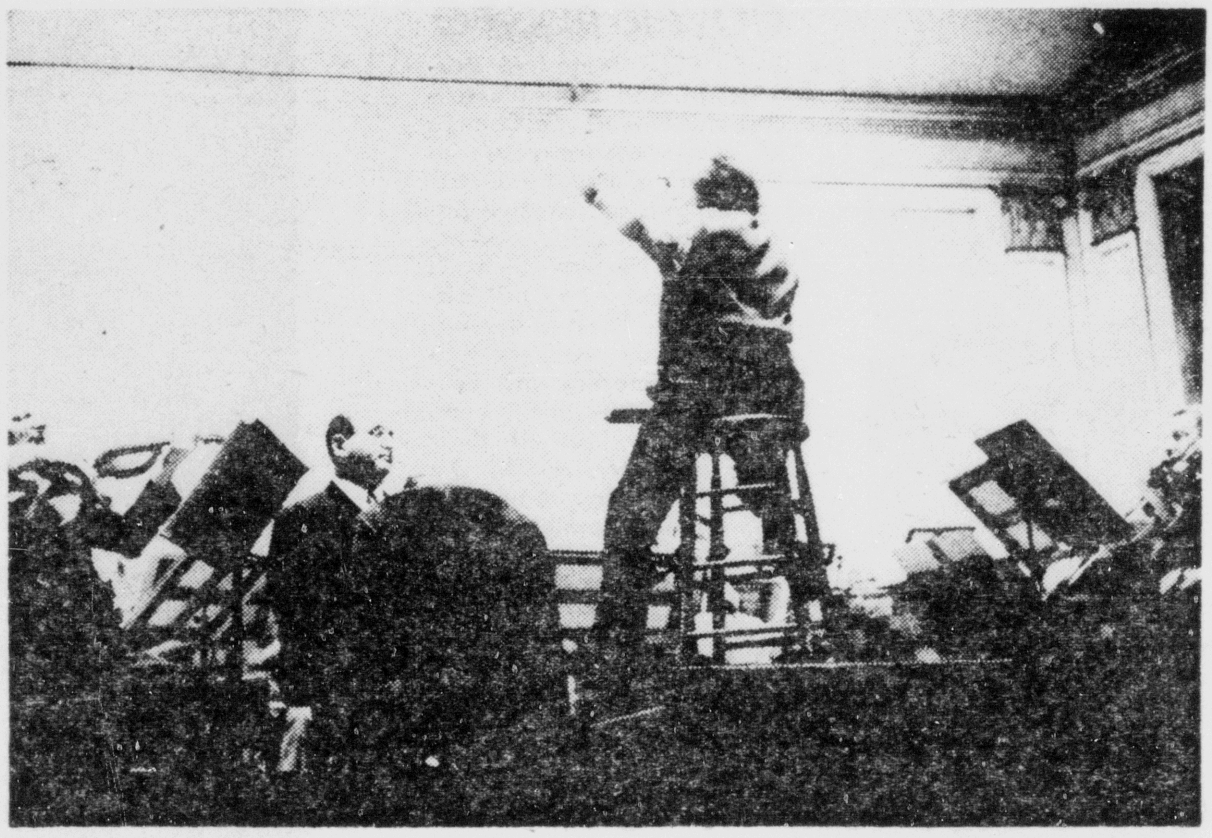
And, also, to bring out a bulletin informing members of performances and recordings.

Membership data is available by inquiry to The Ernest Bloch Society, 171 Marguerite Avenue, Mill Valley, Calif.

The headquartering of the society in Marin County, and particularly in Mill Valley, is appropriate. For it was in Mill Valley, in a small one-room cottage belonging to Lillian Hodghead, founder of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, that Bloch composed some of his most successful pieces.

AND IT WAS on the slopes of Mount Tamalpais that the musician enjoyed some of his most pleasant days, hiking, painting, camping, communing with the nature that he loved.

He died in 1959, having lived a full and a creative life.



IN CARNEGIE HALL, New York, the composer, Ernest Bloch, conducts the New York Philharmonic Orchestra for a performance with the Schola Cantorum of his "Sacred Service." The composition was regarded by many as Bloch's crowning achievement in a productive period known as his "Jewish cycle."

THE TEETH may look forbidding, but dental assisting students at the College of Marin assure you that "Caesar" is actually a most gentle and cooperative patient. The model is used often and effectively in both the classroom and the laboratory in various demonstrations by teachers and visiting lecturers and professionals. By the time they have finished their four semesters work, the dental-assistants-to-be are thoroughly familiar with every molar in Caesar's wide-open mouth.

There's No Waiting For Jobs By New Dental Assistants

College Of Marin Graduates Find Employment Readily

"We've learned skills that are in demand, and we are qualified for jobs that will pay us according to our abilities, anywhere in the world."

That is the satisfying feeling that Rosanne Chulla shares with 14 other College of Marin coeds who are graduating into the profession of dental assisting.

Behind them are two years or four semesters of study and laboratory work. Now they are highly trained professionals, capable of assuming many of the more simple procedures that the dentist might otherwise perform himself, thus releasing him for more exacting work.

THE 15 NEW dental assistants need not leave the confines of their own county to find employment, if they choose. Good jobs are readily available here in their field.

"There's never a delay in

placing our graduates," says Hazel O. Torres, director of the dental assisting program at the college.

Thirteen of the 15 new graduates have jobs waiting for them, 11 in Marin and one in nearby Richmond. Two have elected to postpone work in favor of travel. One is transferring to San Francisco State College to work for a Bachelor's Degree in Health Science.

CREDITS EARNED in the dental assisting program are transferable to state colleges and universities and applicable toward the health science degree.

In each of the seven years the college has been graduating dental assistants, the employment record has been high.

Mrs. Torres maintains a permanent job placement file on the graduates, and, she says, "any girl who is not working is unemployed by choice." Her records show the graduates scattered throughout Marin, across the country and around the world.

DOMINIQUE SFEIR, a 1969 graduate, is working in Lebanon; Patty Rohl accepted a job offer in Aspen, Colo., and is now considering the Peace Corps; Catali Oroz is in Carson City, Nev. — all working in the occupations for which they were trained at College of Marin.

Upon completion of the program, the students are eligible to take a National Board examination that is recognized in every state, and in many foreign countries. One-hundred percent of the Marin graduates have consistently scored very high to this examination, according to Mrs. Torres, and have thus become certified dental assistants.

What does a dental assisting student study that makes her so valuable to the profession?

"JUST ABOUT everything a dentist studies, including office procedures and dental techniques, with emphasis on the role of auxiliary," said Mrs. Torres. "The well-trained dental assistant can work efficiently at chairside, or in the laboratory, and is qualified to assume many of the tasks the dentist might do himself."

Special testing and a personal interview aid in determining whether the student is qualified and has the aptitudes and the interest to complete the course of study.

The first semester courses introduce the student to dental materials and their applications, a dental vocabulary, ethics, philosophy, and the sciences related to the dental profession. The student also begins laboratory work during the first semester.

SHE ALSO TAKES her first business courses and learns how to handle the office work from receptionist and appointment duties to patient relations, bookkeeping, charting, patient care, correspondence, patient financing, and the filling out of the endless flow of insurance forms.

At the end of the fourth semester, the course of study is taken the student through all aspects of dentistry. She is capable of manipulating dental-instruments, custom impression trays, constructing base plates, bit rims, tooth dies and orthodontic appliances. She also constructs temporary crowns and bridges.

Producing diagnostic x-rays is an important part of the training, and each student is closely supervised through at least 10 sets of full-mouth x-rays. College of Marin employees and members of the families of the students needing x-rays sit for this service. Each full-month x-ray survey is processed, mounted, recorded and sent on to the patient's dentist.

THE MEMBERS of the Marin County Dental Society serve as guest lecturers in areas of their specialties, providing a valuable professional community link with the college. Approximately 70 dentists are in the current files in the office of Mrs. Torres, each with a request for a trainee, some for the second or third year in a row.

"Although we don't have enough students to go around, we value the interest and cooperation of the dental profession," says Mrs. Torres. In placing trainees for practical experience, location and the type of experience needed are factors. Two girls who live in Novato have been training in dental offices there. Another is in San Rafael for the same reason.

The average age of the student entering the program is 18. However, there is no objection to the over-30 woman in the community applying for the program, and it is a satisfactory endeavor for the young housewife wishing to enter a health occupation, Mrs. Torres believes. In fact, she would be pleased to see more interest from the more mature women.

THE PROGRAM could be completed in half-day schedules with evening classes, according to the director.

Keeping the curriculum relevant to the needs of the profession is accomplished by the director working closely with a 12-member educational advisory committee composed of members of the Marin Dental Assistants' Society and the Marin County Dental Society. Every modern concept of dentistry and teaching methodology is thoroughly explored, and, if found worthwhile, is incorporated into the program.

The college's aims are to train the students in both the special and conventional techniques that prepare them to handle any and all situations. For example, dentistry in many areas is moving into a new cocept of four-handed, and even six-handed operations.

"THIS IS WHERE a coordinating assistant makes it possible for the dentist to treat two or three patients during one period of time," explains Mrs. Torres.

Not only must the students perform to the satisfaction of the instructors——Billie Craig and Ruth McCarthy——but they also demonstrate instrumentation and manipulative skills before an audience of dentists and future dental assisting students at an annual "Career Night" at the college. The students have also participated regularly in dental health programs in elementary schools in Marin City, San Rafael and Sausalito, and, in an effort to gain clinical experience, they spend two days a week throughout the second year working with the dental students at the University of the Pacific and the University of California dental schools in San Francisco.

The past two years the students have prepared a dental presentation of skills and techniques for the Marin County Dental Society, thus demonstrating what they have learned.

THE FUTURE holds even brighter prospects for the dental assisting program.

Mrs. Torres and the staff are pleased with the new facilities under construction for the department (Harlan Center, scheduled to be completed late this year), which will make possible a new pentagonal arrangement for the four operatories in a semi-circle arrangement with an observation space in the center. An instructor will be able to work with a student in one operatory, while observing what is happening in the other three.

Student activity may be conducted separately in the laboratory without interference of instruction in the operatory area.

THE FACILITIES are larger, and several items of equipment have been approved by the board of trustees for inclusion when the department moves into the new quarters.

The past eight years, the program has been located in temporary facilities a few blocks from the main campus on Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur. Hopefully, the program will be in the new Harlan Center at the beginning of the spring 1971 semester.

For the first time this fall, dental assistants who are already employed but wish to upgrade their technical skill, will have an opportunity to get back into the classroom. A certified dental assisting course has been approved by the board of trustees and will be offered in the non-credit adult education series. The class will meet two evenings a week, Tuesday and Thursday, and will be taught by Mrs. Torres.

REQUIREMENTS are that the enrollee must have been employed for not less than six months in active dental practice prior to beginning the program. The course will be 66 weeks in length, with a total materials and registration fee of $25 for each quarter.

LINDA RUNDELL gains practical experience in the dental assisting laboratory at College of Marin working with a model to fabricate an orthodontic appliance. It is a job she will be doing soon for a "real" patient in a dentist's professional office.

JACKIE COLTON displays a finished assignment — an x-ray the dentist can actually work from in diagnosing dental care needs for a patient. After the film is approved by the dental assisting instructor, it will be sent on to the patient's dentist.

Marin Males Exercise At Health Spas

One Answer For Out-Of-Condition

By DON KEOWN

The sedentary male may not be disappearing from the American scene, but he is definitely decreasing in number.

There's a new awakening to the importance of physical fitness. The women took it up first. But now their husbands, too, are exercising.

In Marin you see them jogging along the roadsides, bicycling on quieter city street, hiking on mountain trails and playing on the golf courses.

There's another group that looks to another kind of workout to keep them in the pink. They are the men who use the facilities of what was once called a gym, but is now referred to "in the trade" more often as a health spa.

IN MARIN COUNTY there are at least two such spas, open to men and offering the latest in muscle-building equipment.

At Bob Fuller's Conditioning Therapy, 1125 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield, there's the full layout of exercise equipment, sauna bath, steam room and whirlpools.

And at Town and Country Health Spa, 135 Third Street, San Rafael, there are also extensive and elaborate facilities.

Both places serve male members on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. On other days, the spas are for women only.

THE PICTURES ON this and the following two pages were taken by Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean at the Town and Country Health Spa, where Barbara Stafford is the franchiseholder, her brother Denny Stafford the new men's manager and Becky Lasiter the women's manager.

Something like $50,000 worth of special equipment, most of it developed by Eileen Powers Figure Salon with which the spa is affiliated, is available for the use of visitors to the carpeted premises.

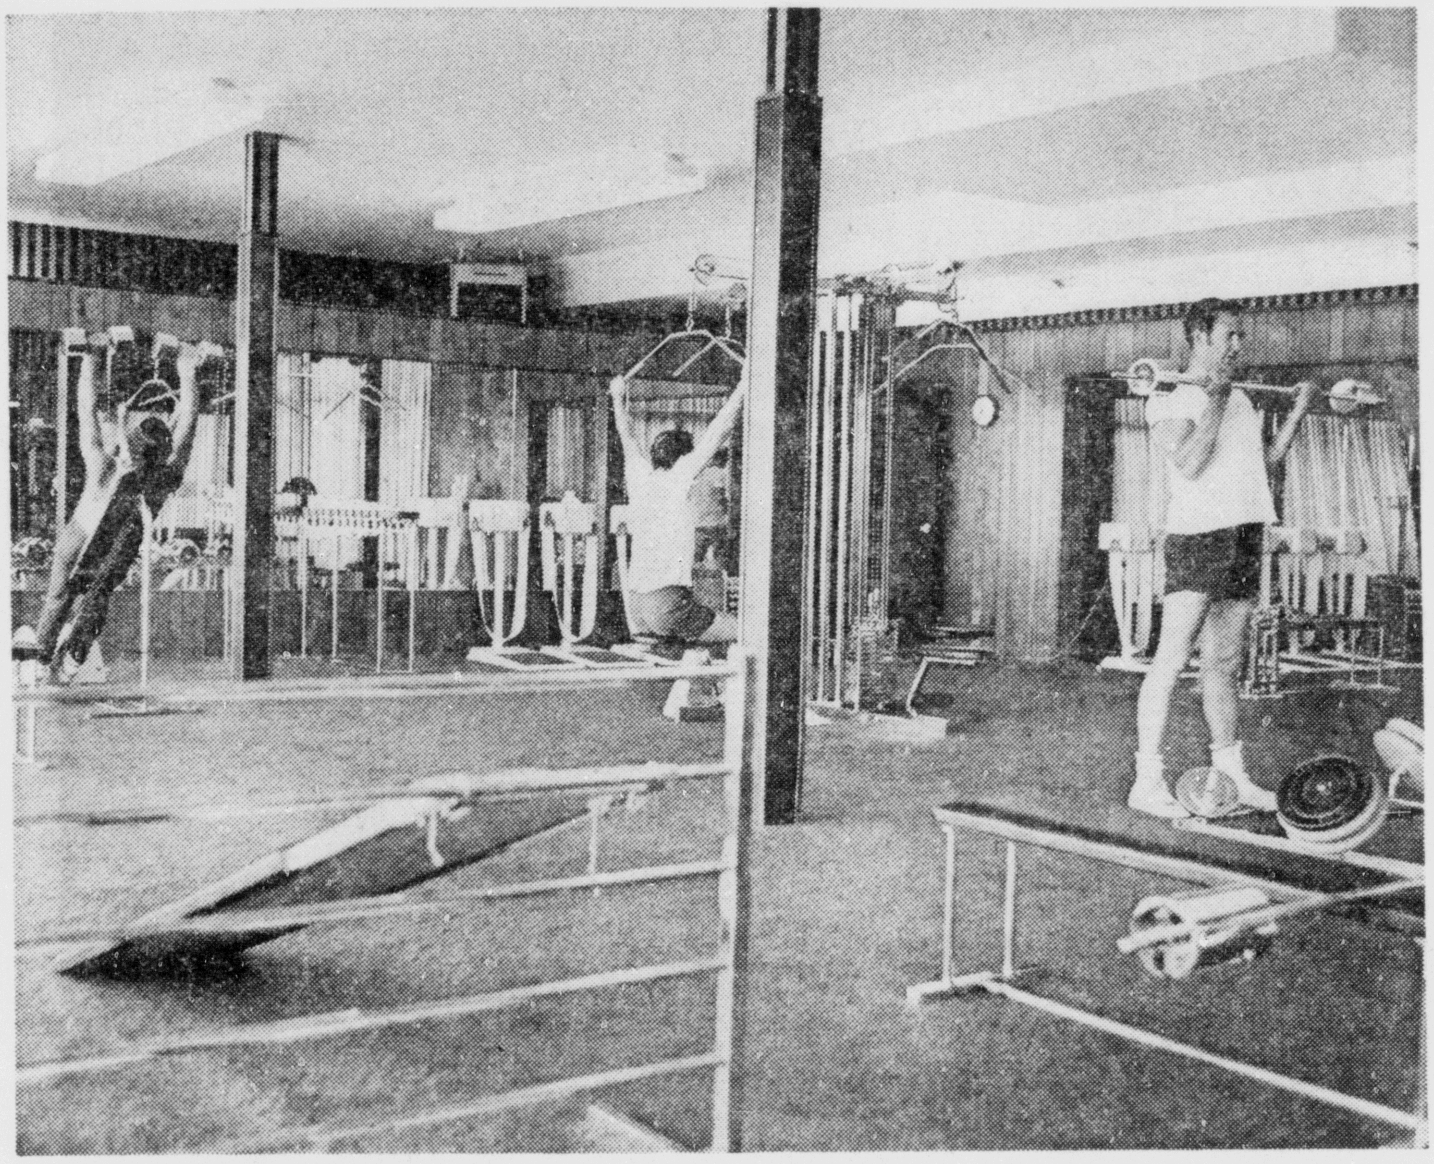
Why do men in increasing numbers sign up for courses at the spa?

Generally, says Stafford, because they have reached the sudden realization that they are woefully out of condition. They have been told by their doctor or by worried wives, or have come belatedly to recognize for themselves, that their sedentary habits have left them dangerously overweight or otherwise out of shape.

SHOCKED, SOMETIMES even scared, they begin the workouts that are a rigorous challenge for the unconditioned at the outset. But as the body hardens, from exercise and from new dietary habits, the workouts become easier. And what was once arduous toil becomes a pleasant outlet for increasing energies.

Who needs it the most?

Executives and other office-workers, says Stafford, who are confined to desks and chairs most of their working days. As for ages, one is never to young, or too old, to begin a conditioning program. Ages at the Town and Country spa this summer have ranged from a 12-year-old to men in their 70s.



ON THE CARPETED floors and using the gleaming chrome equipment of the Town and Country Health Spa, 135 Third Street, San Rafael, men go through conditioning exercises. Like Bob Fuller's Conditioning Therapy at Kentfield, the spa is open to males on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. And a growing number of Marin men are making use of such gymnasiums in this physical fitness-conscious era.

DON KINSELLA enjoys a workout on the "quadricep" machine at the Town and Country Health Spa. It's a device especially good at strengthening the muscles of the thighs and upper legs.

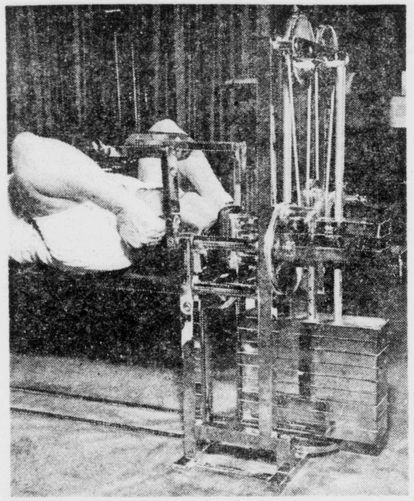
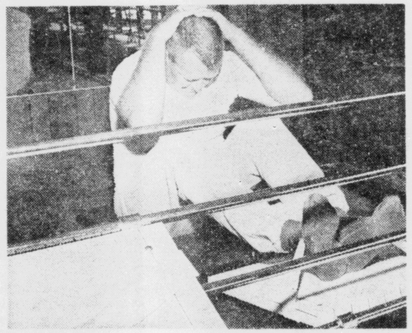
Fitness For The Men Of Marin—

Health Spas Well Equipped

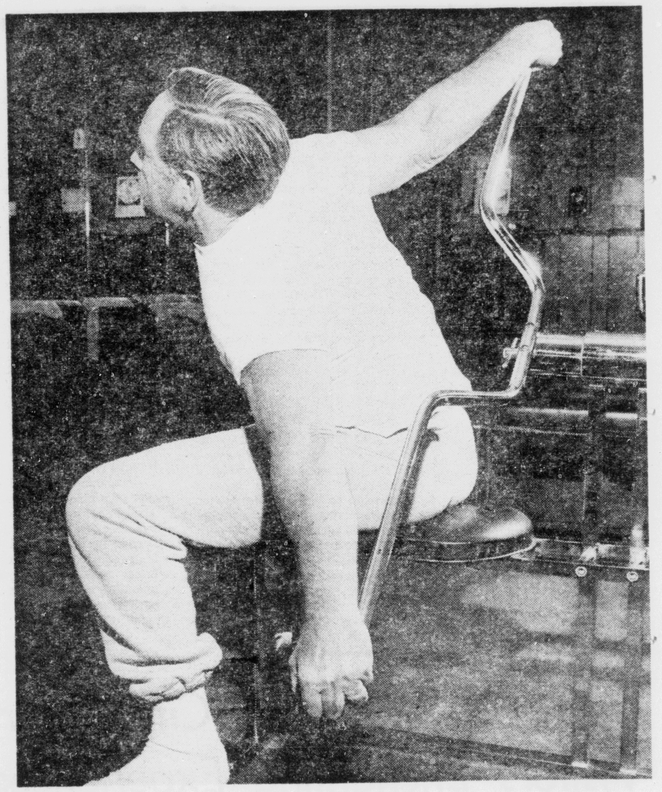
SELECTING FROM weights that range from 20 to 120 pounds, Jack Gaskill chooses his equipment for a session of performing "curls."



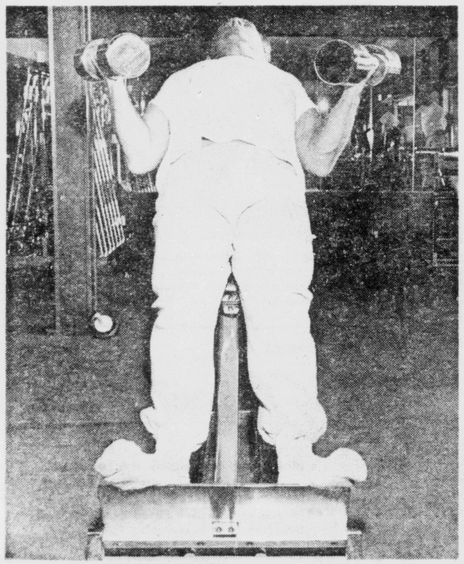
THE CHEST MACHINE being used by Jack Gaskill is designed especially to benefit the pectoral muscles. There is a different, lighter one for the women.



AT LEFT, an incline board is used by Don Kinsella as he performs sit-ups as part of his conditioning work-out. The level or incline of the board can be changed so that the exerciser can increase or decrease the difficulty of his sit-ups, push-ups, etc. And he can deal specifically with the section of his body that he feels is most in need of attention.



GREAT FOR taking surplus pounds from off the waistline is this side-bending machine at the Town and Country Health Spa that is being put to vigorous use by Jack Gaskill.



BY RECLINING on a press bench while he works out with the dumbbells, Jack Gaskill is able to put a particular set of muscles to work.

The Mystery Of The Missing Luggage

By MURRAY J. BROWN

NEW YORK (UPI)—It happens time and again every day in airport terminals around the world—some of the disembarking passengers turn out to be PAWOBs. No one calls for the police although the services of a private eye could prove helpful.

PAWOB is an airline acronym for a Passenger Arriving Without Baggage. And as unhappy as he or she may be, the airlines are even unhappier. It hurts their pride and pocketbook.

There are no over-all figures available on the total number of PAWOBs since the first one flew off in one direction and his bags went off in another. But last year alone the U.S. carriers paid out around 40 million dollars in claims arising from "misdirected" or "mishandled" luggage.

ONCE YOU HAVE checked in with the airlines—and hold on to your baggage claim tags—it is the responsibility of the carrier to deliver your bags to you on arrival at your destination. Actually, only a very small percentage of the millions of pieces handled (an estimated 225 million in 1969) is lost, strayed or stolen, and most eventually are found.

But that is small consolation for the PAWOB or the airlines. Airlines spokesmen admit that despite steady improvement, baggage handling is still one of their biggest headaches. It not only hurts financially but in customer relations.

"Consider, some of the things that can go wrong," said one source recently. "For instance, your bag could be misdirected; the destination tag torn off during handling; it could be taken off by mistake along the way or fail to be unloaded at the proper destination if the flight is continuing; or be picked up by error by another passenger in the baggage claim area."

AND THEN THERE are problems involved in inter-line transfer operations—that is when a passenger checks his luggage through to his final destination while flying on two or more different airlines.

"The passenger may make his connections even if his arriving flight may have been delayed," he said, "but his bags may not."

Nobody wants to be a PAWOB so here are some precautions to take:

—In addition to printing your name and address clearly on your personal luggage tag, put some easily-identifiable marks on the outside of the bag. A major cause for missing luggage is the passenger who grabs the first suitcase which looks like his and dashes off without anyone checking the claim tag. Tie a couple of bright ribbons to the handle, paste stickers or other markers on the top or sides, or daub the corners with paint.

—Tape a business or personal card or other identification marker with your telephone number inside each bag in case the luggage tag and destination tag are torn off or become illegible during handling. It will make it easier for the airlines to find you. Most airlines provide identification stickers free on request.

—Remove all the old destination tags before the next flight. They may impress some less-travelled fellow passengers and friends but they could confuse baggage handlers and your bags could be misdirected, unloaded at the wrong airport or left aboard the plane at the right one.

—If your flight plans include changes of planes and airlines, have your ticket written up to allow sufficient time between connections for checked-through luggage to be transferred.

The Travel Pages

GENERALLY, ABOUT one hour is enough if connections are at the same airport but you will need more leeway if it involves transferring to another, such as between Kennedy and Newark airports. There is no way of anticipating delays because of weather, mechanical trouble and other causes so many veteran travelers play safe by picking up their luggage between connecting flights.

I usually check through but always stow my toilet kit, a clean shirt, pair of socks and change of underwear in a small carry-on bag. My wife also packs her toilet articles and a change of clothing in her over-the-shoulder case.

If, in spite of all precautions taken by you and the airlines, your bags are missing when you arrive at your destination, contact the company representative at the airport immediately. He will start the back-checking which, hopefully, will locate them. Domestic airlines have a central "lost and found" headquarters with computers to help track down and recover "misdirected" and "mishandled" luggage. It's called the Airline Computerized Baggage Tracing System.

INCIDENTALLY, some airlines will compensate the traveler for "reasonable" necessary purchases to tide him over until his luggage is found. Ask, and you may receive.

Domestic and international airlines have fixed liability limits on lost baggage claims but you can buy extra insurance if you are carrying valuable belongings.

One more suggestion: don't leave your reclaimed luggage unguarded at the airport or allow anyone but a Skycap or someone you know to carry it out of the terminal. It may vanish and you will have no one but yourself to blame.

Mexico's Storybook City Offers Visitors Enchanting Experiences

GUANAJUATO, Mexico — This is a city of storybook fantasy. It is Mexico's finest example of Spanish colonial architecture, much of it unchanged since the early 1500s.

It is nestled in the converging arms of a mountain valley a short morning's drive (most of the distance over one of Mexico's few superhighways) from Mexico City.

GUANAJUATO once was Mexico's richest silver producing center. Not long ago, it was declared a national monument, which means that no modernistic buildings may be constructed within the city limits and that its surpassing Andalusian beauty will remain unspoiled.

The cobblestoned streets often dip into arched tunnels which weave beneath the city and then emerge every so often into splashes of sunlight.

Overhanging the streets are Moorish balconies covered with rainbow bougainvillea and exotic ferns and plants. Throughout the city are tiny squares built around exquisitely-manicured gardens or sculptured marble fountains.

MOTORISTS driving up the Centro ramp from the tunnels are surprised by one such plaza ringed with boxed trees. Yellow wrought-iron benches surround a matching gazebo where the local band in full marching regalia plays Sousa concerts two nights a week.

Guanajuato is a hiker's paradise. Many of the streets are too steep and narrow for automobiles. One passageway is so tiny that legendary lovers merely leaned over their balconies to kiss. Its name, naturally, is the Street of the Kiss.

Downtown, besides several massive churches built in the baroque Churrigueresque style, is the Juarez Theater. Concerts and operas are staged in this opulent colonnaded structure for the city's elite. The theater is open daily to the public.

SHOPS IN THE center of the city offer a fine hand-crafted silver jewelry and objects d'art. Aztec and Otami women sell beautifully-woven rebozas (shawls) in the market. Knick-knack collectors find a plethora of antique Spanish oddities in both the shops and the open-air market.

A glimpse of the soaring spires of the state college is well worth a short but bracing climb in the thin mountain air. Inside the college, there is a small museum whose unusual exhibits include rare stuffed birds.

An interesting, if macabre, sight in a cemetery located above the city is "las mommias" — corpses mummified by the hot dry air and lining a corridor of a catacomb.

SNAKING AROUND the hills above the town is a scenic drive leading to the massive stone block statue of Pipila, a revolutionary hero.

Many tourists drive three miles to the village of Valenciana where the awesome church of San Cayetana stands.

Built by an early owner of the now-abandoned silver mine (open to visitors), the church is the supreme example of Churrigueresque architecture and houses sweeping gilded altars. Legend has it that a fortune in silver dust was poured into the foundation.

FEW TOURISTS take the time (about half an hour) to drive to Cristo Rey, thinking it just another religious shrine.

It isn't. Cristo Rey is a soaring 150-foot statue of Jesus with outspread arms which dominates the highest peak in Guanjuato state. Though impressive at any time of day, the spot is magic at sunset. Filtering through the mountain air, the rays of the setting sun paint a panorama of color that is mind-boggling.

Guanajuato's weather is near perfect during the late spring and summer. Nights are cold and deliciously sleepable. The days burst with sunshine while the temperature meanders between 65 and 80. Humidity is near zero.

THE MEXICAN government has built three large ultra-modern motels on the outskirts of the city. They seem perpetually empty, so lodging is no problem. Dozens of smaller hotels and posadas are located in the town proper, offering clean rooms at rock bottom rates. One good bet is the gardeny Posada de la Pressa run by a pleasant lady who speaks excellent English.

Visitors wishing a taste of medieval splendor may book into the fabulous Castillo Santa Cecilia, a genuine castle refurbished with modern conveniences and now an elegant hotel. Room rates are strictly 20th Century, but an unguided tour is free.

One visitor who spent two weeks in Guanajuato in late spring when the jacarandas were exploding in purple blossoms described the town this way: "I'm not sure Guanajuato was real. It's like a picture town from a Spanish history book.

"But those gardens — they belong in Eden!"

Hong Kong Offers Many Attractions For The Westerner

Shopping Is Just One Rewarding Pastime In The British Colony

HONG KONG (UPI) — There's no doubt shopping is a major attraction for American visitors in Hong Kong.

But there are other equally rewarding times in this British Crown Colony in the shadow of Communist China.

There is swimming at beautiful Repulse Bay or unspoiled islets in the South China Sea as well as various other water and land sports. There are fine restaurants featuring the exotic cuisines of old China and the foods of other Eastern and Western nations.

And there are super clubs, cabarets and other swinging spots for exciting after-dark entertainment.

BUT CERTAINLY Americans — still barred from Red China — should find time for walking or driving tours through this Western outpost which has become a sanctuary for millions of refugees from communism.

They'll find it a fascinating blend of East and West and of the old and new.

Modern office, hotel and apartment buildings on Hong Kong Island and mainland Kowloon tower over enclaves of dingy old tenements with laundry fluttering from windows, and squatter slums of old tin and wood shanties.

THERE ARE broad tree-lined boulevards with multi-storied department stores and shops with the finest silks, perfumes and other merchandise from around the world. And there are narrow alleys, noisy and strange-smelling Chinese streets, markets and bazaars and open-sided shops where men, women and children, work, live and play.

Rickshaw pullers in shorts and undershirts and men and women in flapping black pajamas carrying heavy burdens on yokes or poles on their shoulders vie for road space with taxicabs, powerful trucks and other vehicles.

Most of the older Chinese still cling to the traditional garb but younger ones dress in miniskirts and other Western styles. The only girls I saw wearing the provocative slit-skirt cheongsam were the waitresses in the Hilton Hong Kong nightclub The Den.

ALMOST THREE-quarters of Hong Kong's nearly four million population — 98 per cent are Chinese — live on the island and Kowloon. There are an estimated two million jammed into Kowloon's three and three-fourth-square miles and another million on the 29-square-mile island.

About 10,000 "water people" live in junks and sampans at Aberdeen and other anchorages. But less than one million are spread out in the 365-square-mile New Territories, which Britain holds under a 99-year lease from China expiring in 1997.

Americans should find the New Territories particularly interesting for a look at a way of life that has changed little over the ages.

IT IS MAINLY agricultural, dotted with terraces cut like stepping stones in the hillsides, shimmering rice paddies and carefully-tended truck gardens.

Peasants wearing conical hats and black pajamas till their crops and raise pigs, fish and fowl much as their ancestors did. Placid water buffaloes still pull plows and carts and men and women trot back and forth along the furrows with water sprinkling cans slung from yokes.

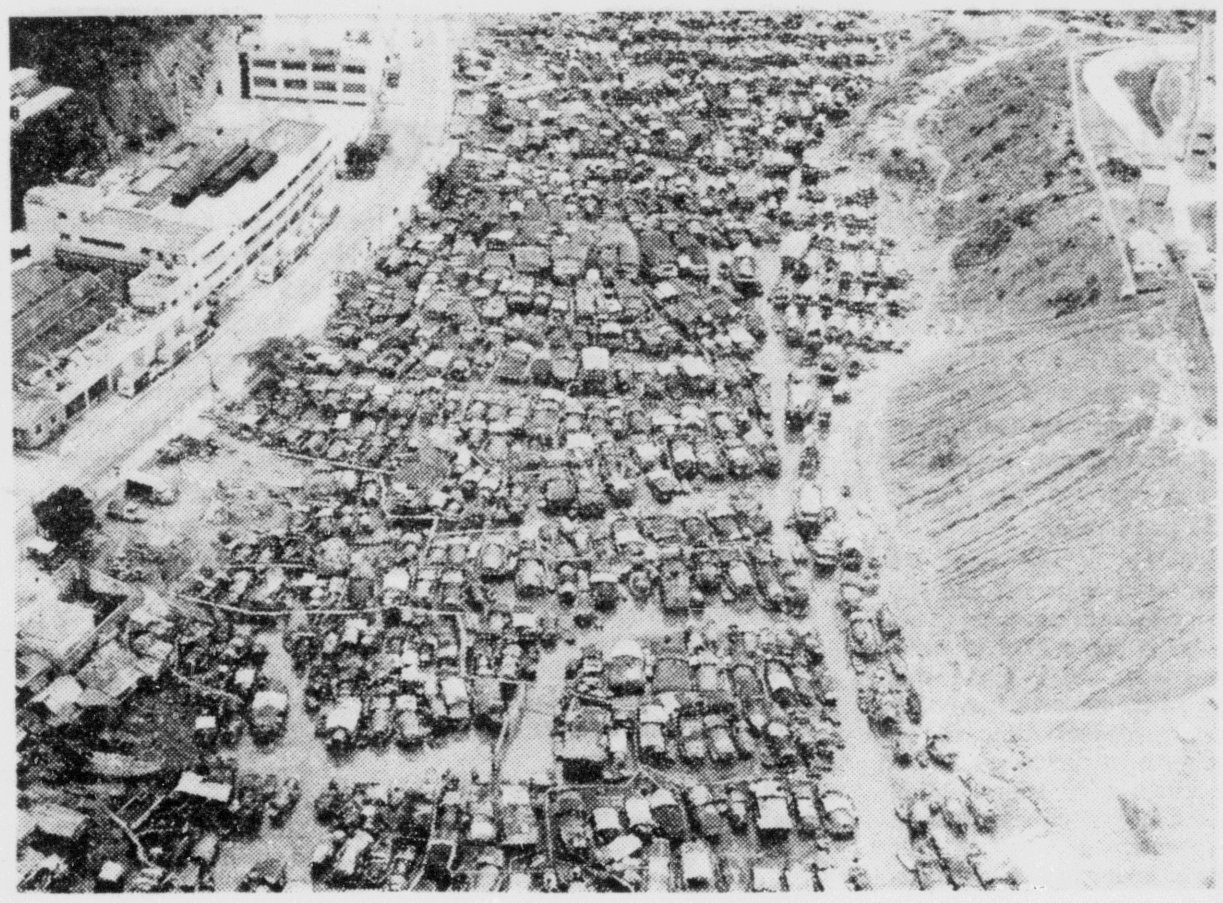
And it is like turning back the clock to step inside the old walled village of Kam Tin, built centuries ago by the Tang Clan. Their descendants still live inside the weatherbeaten stone walls in rows of attached brick houses, separated by narrow passageways.

THE CLOSEST foreign visitors are permitted to approach the border with Communist China is the Lok Ma Chau police post, about one-half mile away.

Even without binoculars, one can see for miles across the Bamboo Curtan from the observation platform. What one can't see with the naked eye, he is told, are the Red Chinese blockhouses and patrols along the Shum Chun River which marks the 17-mile-long boundary.

Americans need only a valid passport and International Certificate of vaccination against smallpox and inoculations against cholera and yellow fever if coming from an affected area for visits to Hong Kong for up to 30 days.

More than 20 international airlines serve Hong Kong and it also is a major port of call for cruise ships in the Far East.



THE UBIQUITOUS SAMPAN serves many purposes in Hong Kong including those of inshore fishing boat, floating shop and water taxi. For many, it is also home, a somewhat cramped abode while they wait for something better. Sampan dwellers anchor their craft in sheltered bays around the British crown colony's coasts. A favorite, shown here, is Aberdeen on the south coast of Hong Kong Island. An arched roof of bamboo converts a boat into a house, and it is not unusual for a half dozen or more people to live together on a 15-foot-long sampan. Many are the families of fishermen who go to sea in the larger junks while wives and children remain on the sampans.

Spy Pilot Francis Gary Powers Tells Story Of Ill-Fated Flight

OPERATION OVERFLIGHT by Francis Gary Powers; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 375 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Norm Howard.

Now, 10 years after the events it describes, Gary Powers' book surfaces, apparently with CIA approval, like a piece of cold war flotsam.

While he is not quite so gauche as to come out and say so, Gary Powers wants us to believe he is some kind of hero. Each reader must make this judgment for himself. But consider the evidence; After all, he did engage in dangerous espionage which very nearly killed him and ultimately resulted in his spending a very difficult couple of years in a Soviet prison.

Those who will recall that Powers was recruited for the U-2 program at a salary several times what most Americans can expect to earn at any time in there lives are simply being churlish.

Powers feels badly served by his government. Here, he does have a point. There were fair-weather patriots in the congress who said that he should have been ashamed to turn up alive after crash-landing his spy plane inside Russia. Powers also says not enough was made, upon his return to this country, of his wily evasion of some of his captors' questions. Well, the most fleeting of secrets are military one—sooner or later they turn up for sale in some capital or other.

All of this is not to pass judgment on the usefulness or necessity of the U-2 program. (Although, based on Powers' recollections, it is possible to make some unflattering observations on the management of it.) Nor is it in any way to criticize Powers' behavior during his captivity. To expect spies not to turn up embarassingly alive is sinister and glamorous in fiction, but it is hardly realistic or humane.

But for Powers — a living symbol of a foreign policy bungle of major proportions — to have expected any better treatment than he got from the sheepish bunglers was at least naive.

Up to this very day, Powers apparently doesn't understand the nature of the bargain he was making when he signed a contract with the CIA.

If you can possibly bear any more revelations about the way our affairs overseas are conducted, you'll find "Operation Overflight" worthwhile. Gary Powers writes like an Air Force pilot, despite the assistance of Curt Gentry, who last gave us "The Last Days of the Late Great State of California."

London's Police Minus The Myths

SCOTLAND YARD by Peter Laurie; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 297 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Usually anything but publicity-minded, the Metropolitan Police of London broke tradition to permit English journalist Peter Laurie access to many of its inner sanctums and to allow him to accompany bobbies and detectives on their rounds.

In this book, Laurie reports his experiences and his conclusions, and he peels away many of the romantic myths that have grown up around Scotland Yard, thanks to fiction writers and film makers.

What he reveals is a mammoth organization, somewhat unwieldy, but, considering the immensity of its tasks, more efficient than one has the right to expect.

Paperwork and red tape, the banes of all such systems, hamper the Yard as well. And not always has the Yard succeeded in shedding outdated procedures and equipment for more modern techniques and gear, sharing the general conservative English trait of a sometimes overwhelming preoccupation with and respect for the past.

Still, all in all, London's police stand as an example to the world in decent, restrained, effective law enforcement, using approaches the police of Chicago or New York (and the similarity is to these large city departments, not to our Federal Bureau of Investigation) might well copy. For instance, the handling of potential riots:

"In 150 years' co-existence," writes Laurie, "the Metropolitan Police and the London crowd have evolved an organic, non-violent relationship. That is not to say that there haven't been violent clashes, but they have been relatively few, and they are far less frequent now than in early days."

The policy is not to take "general action" against a crowd until disorder reaches spectacular proportions. Even then, gas, chemicals, water hoses, etc., are eschewed in favor of "men and horses close up" to disperse the threatening mob.

It may sound like mollycoddling, but the fact is that it has worked far better than quicker, less discerning, tougher reactions by the police of American cities and states.

In his discussion of detection and prosecution, Laurie notes that it remains the informant or "snout" who accounts for 90 per cent of the arrests. Hardly in keeping with the plots of those splendid British mystery novels where Scotland Yard detectives deduce from clues the identities of the criminals. But then fact is rarely closely akin to fiction.

Laurie describes, too, the operations of the traffic details on London's vast network of streets, the handling of drunks by uniformed personnel, the CID (Criminal Investigations Department) familiar to all mystery buffs, the Flying Squad, the laboratory and library facilities, the hierarchy of command, the system for "policing" the police, the training program.

Laurie's writing style is not especially appealing, and much of his book — organizational details, statistics, etc. — will be of interest only to those engaged or extremely interested in the police profession. But there is a considerable amount of material about the life and work of the London "copper" and the huge city with its teeming population that will interest the general reader. And there is more and more of this, as the book progresses.

Laurie also has some unusual and provocative ideas about police work.

". . . in crime, as well as in public order, the existence of the police is far more important than their efforts, " he writes. "If there were no law enforcement agency at all, few people would obey the laws. But if one exists, and is even only moderately efficient, then most people will not care to run the risk of getting into trouble. Given the fact of a police force, ready to prosecute if anyone asks them to, the level or criminality or good behaviour is then far more an organic characteristic of society. The mere existence of the police is their main contribution to whatever level of law-abidingness exists. The improvement that could be made by extra police effort is very small indeed."

"The flamboyant criminals, the murderers and armed robbers" must be arrested, Laurie agrees, "because these people create propaganda that will eventually nullify the deterrent." But aside from this, the role of the police is largely a symbolic one. "In their own persons they embody respect for the law. They persuade people to live honestly far more by their existence and example than because they physically remove wrong-doers from society."

Scotland Yard, if imperfect, is nevertheless much better than "moderately efficient, " Laurie's book makes clear. But it is in this symbolic role, with his conspicuous dignity and rock-like integrity, that the London bobby becomes a towering factor in making London with its millions of diverse peoples one of the most orderly and law-abiding great cities of the world. "His honesty, fairness and good sense are one supreme index of civilization," concludes Laurie.

SAN FRANCISCO SCENE

Musician's Novel About May-December Romance

THE ELECTRIC COTILLION by Don Asher; Doubleday, 215 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Francis Dozier Jr.

Musician Don Asher's "Electric Cotillion" is a commendable novel of a May-December romance set in the current San Francisco scene. The book, however, does contain certain flaws.

It is the story of Niles Davey, a 40-year-old, occasionally employed modern jazz pianist's brief affair with a girl-child of the NOW generation.

Several San Francisco reviewers have praised Asher for sucessfully bridging the generation gap, mainly, one can suppose, because the book's jacket blurb says that he has.

But he hasn't really; both man and girl end as they began: at separate poles.

Asher does, however, present what is undoubtedly an authentic insight into the slow death of that music genre that flourished in the forties and fifties. For example, a skillful aspect of this is done through Davey's vivid and sometimes flash remembrances of old friends, eastern jazz clubs and flash remembrances of old lyric phrases. When in one of these flashbacks, Davey and his wife to be, Noell, make love by blue candle light, he thinks: From this moment on you and I, babe, we'll be ridin' high, babe.

The book's main shortcoming, strangely, is the girl character, Poppy. From the opening chapter one suspects that she was not drawn from real life. She is too obviously fabricated.

Asher has her saying things like: "You mean to stand there looking at these sturdy legs and these knockers and call me 'man'?" And does anyone refer to teeth as "choppers" anymore?

A young black militant is thrown in for good measure and he, too, seems to be pure imagination, in contrast to a black woman singer in the past who appears perfectly believable.

In the main, though, Asher has woven a good book, sometimes fascinating and nostalgic. One only wishes that more credibility were given to the younger characters, since the book tries so hard to be "of today."

Listening To An Old-Style Liberal

By DON KEOWN

SO LONG AS YOU'RE HEALTHY by Harry Golden; Putnam's, 314 pages, $6.95.

Harry Golden, the Carolina Israelite, strikes us as the perfect example of the old-fashioned liberal.

We do not say that derogatorily, although it is fashionable to disparage liberalism these cynical days.

The old-style liberal, as exemplified by Golden, remains a decent, dedicated, sensitive, humane being. His social conscience continues to be one of humanity's redeeming features, an antidote to the selfishness of the more conservative society that surrounds him. His mellow, moderate approach sometimes seems an oasis of sanity in the turmoil created by the impatient demands and hard-line tactics of the more radical New Left.

Unfortunately, with all their virtues, these old-fashioned liberals at times appear hopelessly out of step with the new realities. Many have been utterly unable to adjust with the changed conditions of recent years.

They grew up largely in the era of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, although some trace their roots back to Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and the LaFollettes and Borah. They have been responsible for much of our social progress with their insistence upon, not great leaps forward, but consistent movement toward justice and equality.

They tolerated the interruption of their programs by war under Roosevelt, resumed their slow advances under Truman, fumed behind Stevenson's banner while the country marked time with Eisenhower, and embraced John F. Kennedy as a promising young leader after some initial misgivings.

With Kennedy lost too early, they rallied behind Lyndon B. Johnson for an uncharacteristic sudden surge forward. Then they found their aspirations bogged down again in war, this time a most costly and unpopular conflict that was shattering to their ideals. Caught in a pincers, between conflicting waves of arch-conservatism and leftist radicalism, they were thrown into confusion. The choice between a Hubert Humphrey, long one of their banner-carriers, and a Robert Kennedy or Eugene McCarthy, attempting to wed the old idealism to a new activism, tore them apart, individually and as a group.

The ultimate outcome was the installation in the White House of their arch-foe, the antithesis of all in which they believed, Richard M. Nixon.

Harry Golden, that wise old owl of Charlotte, N.C., adapted to change better than most. But even he has not been without his problems. His newest book, "So Long As You're Healthy," a collection of essays and commentary from his Israelite of the 1960s, reflects some basic misconceptions.

HARRY GOLDEN
The wise old owl of the Carolinas

For instance, his insistence that Negroes are combat soldiers in Vietnam "far out of proportion to their numbers in the population" because "Negroes are patriots. . .Negroes are combat soldiers because they love their country." There's no mention of the impact of an evil system that forces black young men to choose between the security of military life or the insecurity of a civilian existence fraught with unemployment and menial labor.

Unquestionably, many black men did enlist for the lofty reason Golden suggests. But it seems a simplistic explanation today in the face of reports that substantial numbers of young black men in uniform in Vietnam are more angry at the abuse and neglect of their own race in their homeland than they are concerned with Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

His description of Lyndon B. Johnson as a frustrated idealist will strike many as hopelessly naive.

He advocates a political coalition of the white American wage earner and the Negro as a means of achieving true equity — "The grandeur of America is that we are a politically-oriented society." He does agree that such a combination "appears to be a long way off." But worse than that, we have been losing ground, as the polarization has worsened.

Still, Golden is far more often wise than foolish, expressing truths and insights about our society with a warm sort of Will Rogers wit.

"What Americans worry about most: Calories, Communism, Body Odor."

On studies of television and its censorship: "I have a feeling that tenement rats do more to destroy family morals than the Noxzema girl who says: 'Take it off, take it all off!'. . .It is my contention that every television set has its own built-in censor: the knob."

About lynchings: "Despite all our piety, we are a violent country, ruthlessly brutal and ruthlessly materialistic; and we learn our lessons too slowly. As a nation we may venerate many things, but law is not one of them."

And: "Industry would just as soon do away with the middle class and have one vast buying class. Industrialists are lucky they have so far escaped detection. The middle class is mad, first at Christians, whether or not they wear a collar, and next at elective officials. The higher the office, the madder the middle class gets. Lastly, the middle class is mad at the native-born Negro citizens who either want their rights or expect hominy and grits for the next few days to keep the family alive."

Or: "Fannie Hurst wasn't what was wrong with the novel, or this world."

The electric toothbrush: "Was it for this Benjamin Franklin risked electrocution?"

On fountain pens: "Fifty years ago a boy got a fountain pen at his bar mitzvah, and 30 years later he still wrote his prescriptions with it as a doctor. I defy any pen to do the same today. I admit today's pens do some jobs far more easily than the old fountain pen. They are much better when it comes to writing on butter and much, much better when it comes to writing under water. But after all, how much butter do you want to waste to write a letter, and how long can you last under water?"

Thus Harry Golden pokes fun at our foibles, gently but effectively. One wishes that the essays were dated, particularly those that deal with matters that have changed greatly in recent years. And one regrets as he reads that the Carolina Israelite no longer publishes, to bring us its unique brand of commentary, pithy, amusing, provocative, individualistic.

But most of all, one is pleased that Harry Golden himself is still with us and still commenting. One readily forgives him those instances when his point-of-view seems frayed or antiquated, knowing that on the next page one will encounter something fresh and completely contemporary.

As, for example: "I believe that the first requirement for being humane is the recognition of humanity, and humanity is essentially the human story no matter how high we go into space or how many planets we eventually explore. The human story remains the same as it was a thousand years ago and as it will be a thousand years from now, the story of a man, a woman, and a home and the relationship of one to the other."

"INDIAN JOURNALS" (City Lights, $3) represents Allen Ginberg's experiences, observations and impressions recorded, sometimes poetically, always emotionally, of India as he found it in 1962 and 1963 while there absorbing the culture, mysticism and flavor of the ancient land. "Mostly tortured introspection," he calls it. And, indeed, there is as much examining of the inner Ginsberg as there is of the outer India. The poet reports with equal intensity, whether describing the taste of a banana, or the ritual of the cremations. Readers' verdicts will no doubt divide among already established lines. Ginsberg admirers will love it. Ginsberg detractors — or those bewildered by him — will reject it. It's the kind of twain that never meets.

Sleuths & Suspense

BLOOD MONEY by Thomas B. Reagan; Putnam's, 183 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

Earl Boulton's father never paid him any attention, and his mother showered him with gifts and very little else. So Earl learned early in life that he could find companionship through what was to him the thrilling channel of crime.

The one big one, the one that would put him and his wife, Anita, a former go-go dancer, in clover for years was a bank holdup. He, Anita and a young friend who needed money designed and executed a plan. It went like clockwork.

Then Earl's life blew up and innocent people were murdered. Earl found himself alone, really alone, for the first time in his life — and hunted. Fear drove him to disguise himself. The only people he knew were a gang of cruel motorcycle riders and hitchhikers, and even these foretold of doom.

Reagan's novel is expertly plotted, an exciting Red Mask mystery.

TO CATCH A SHADOW by Bradshaw Jones; Bobbs-Merrill, 184 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

Jones's new book is a little jewel about jewel thieves who have outwitted an elaborate electronic alarm system to steal $300,000 worth of jewelry from a leading London firm.

A refreshing addition to the mystery shelves, the book unfolds the story both of the master criminal behind this and other thefts as well as the hunt for him directed by a police superintendent.

The little people as well as the middle men in the plot come easily, but the big guy is finally caught only through a strange but believable foul-up. The book is a refreshing change from the usual "whodunnit," with some good descriptions of interesting characters including both cops and robbers.

New Albums Released By Columbia –

By JOHN SUNIER

Some new albums from old-reliable Columbia:

MORTON SUBOTNICK: "Touch" — Columbia MS 7316:

Another magnificent addition to the electronic literature from a former Bay Area composer now living in New York.

Subotnick, already acclaimed for his synthesized scores commissioned by Nonesuch Records, now is with Columbia and has reached new heights of non-verbal communication with this singular work. Using the Buchla synthesizer, which does some things the more famous Moog does not, Subotnick seems to bypass all barriers of communication through music and reach the listener in a gut-level manner that is amazingly objective. In other words, certain portions of the piece communicate the same emotions to nearly every person hearing them.

Try this one in the dark.

MOONDOG: "Theme;" "Stamping Ground;" Symphoniques Nos. 3 and 6; Mini-Symphony No. 1; "Lament;" "Witch of Endor;" Symphonique No. 1 — Columbia MS 7335:

Moondog is a unique New York phenomenon previously known to only a few cognoscenti of the off-beat in music.

He is a blind street musician who has done some fairly serious composing in a classical mode as well as improvising fascinating folktype music which seems to be an amalgam of influence from dozens of countries and cultures simultaneously. This is his first recording in many years, and the first of his large orchestral works, which are conservative in harmonies but not in rhythms or voice-leadings. There is a great deal of ostinato pattern work which may get on some listeners' nerves.

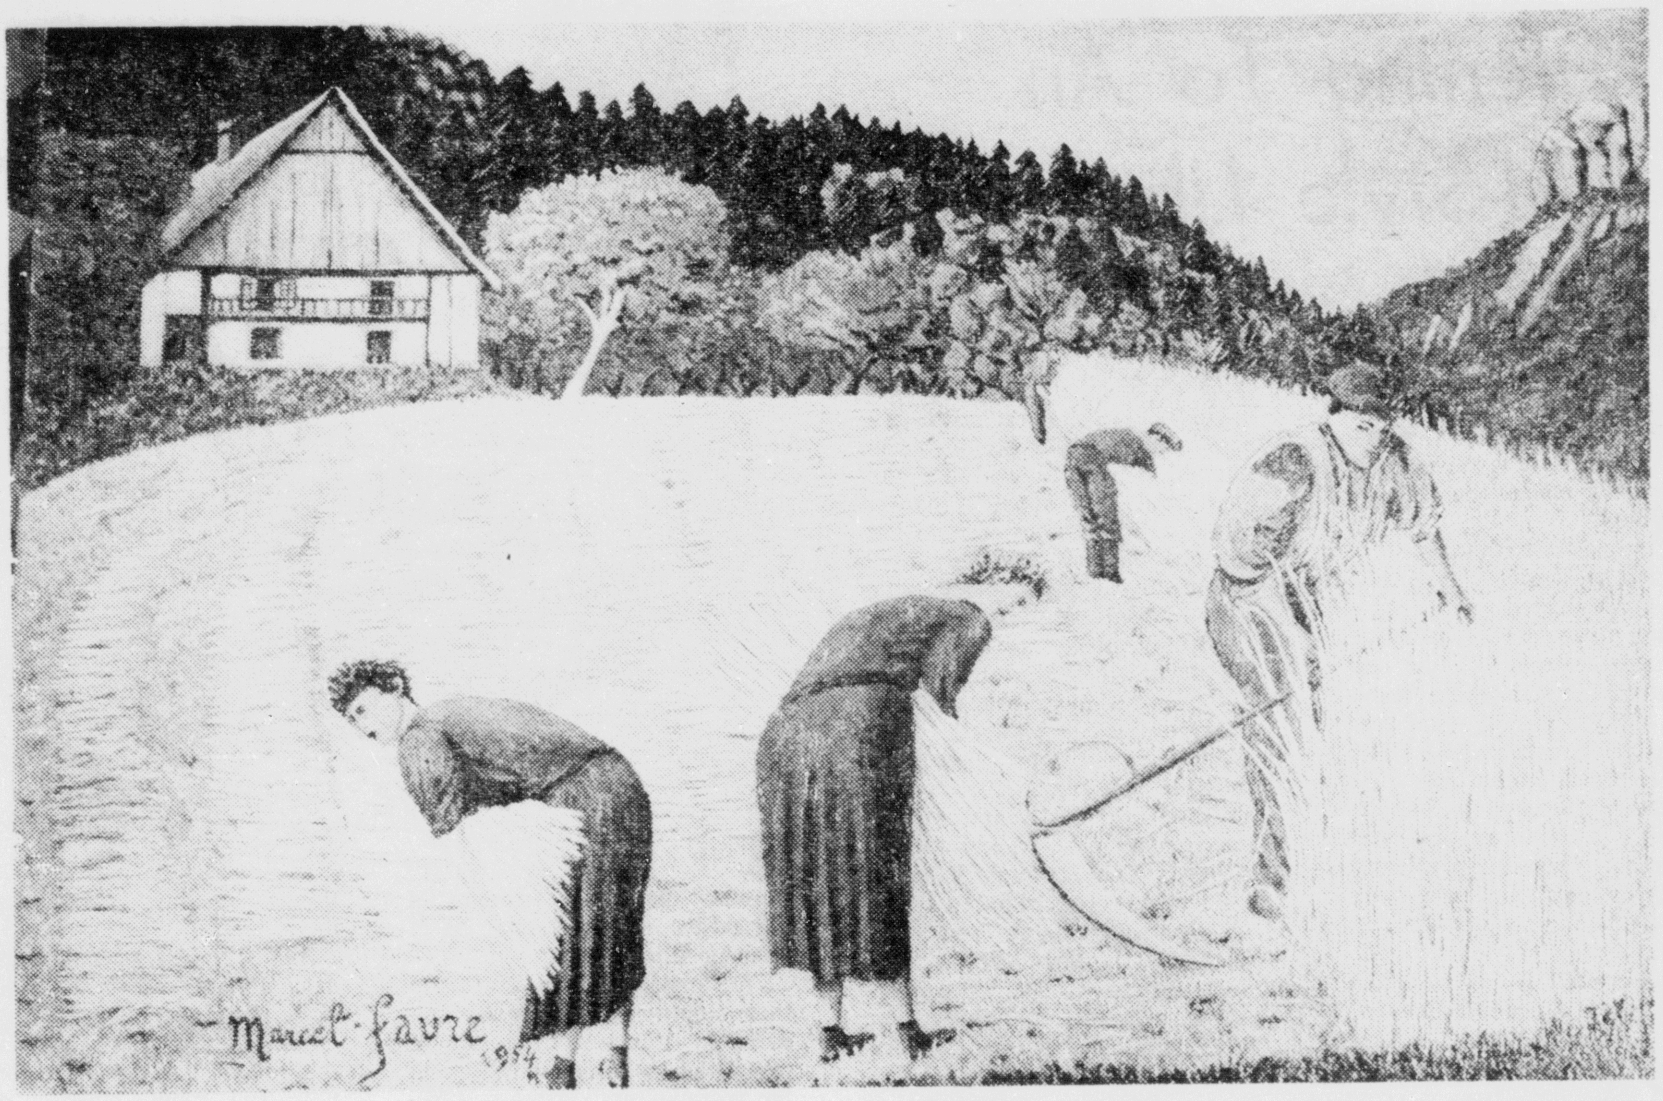
A large number of top New York musicians are present on this date, some of them playing some of the special percussion and stringed instruments which Moondog has invented.

Moondog cannot be well described, he must be experienced. If this record can be brought to the attention of the younger rock set, I think they would really dig it.

"SWITCHED-ON ROCK" — The Moog Machine — Columbia CS 9921:

This is one of the first of many Moog LPs to hit the shops lately that is almost 100 per cent Moog-generated. Only a drum set and one other live instrument which the listener is left to identify (I couldn't find it) are added to the electronic monster that speaks with its very own musical language of gwirps, pwees, moogoboes, sweetswoops, and other effects that never before existed in music.

Several people collaborated on this project, which features imaginative Moog arrangements of tunes such as "Spinning Wheel," "Get Back," and "The Weight." Bit of a bore to hear both sides in succession, but a real kick in shorter installments.



INCLUDED IN THE current exhibition of work by the "naif" painters of France at the Musee d'Art International, 507 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, is the above canvas by Marcel Favre, leader of the group. The "naif" painters are untrained artists engaged in other occupations — farming, sailoring, etc. — with painting as a secondary vocation. Favre was until recently employed by the French Finance Department. A collector of art, he himself began to point at the age of 40. An imaginative reality and a preoccupation with detail mark the naif work.

New Books For Juniors — Three From Sesame Street

Three more books stemming from the smash television hit, "Sesame Street," have joined the two reviewed here earlier.

The new additions are:

"The Sesame Street Book of Shapes" introducing the child to a variety of geometric shapes and relating them to familiar objects. The aim: to sharpen his sense of perception.

"The Sesame Street Book of Puzzlers" offering the youngster an opportunity to use his powers of reasoning in solving simple problems.

"The Sesame Street Book of People and Things" acquainting the pre-schooler with himself, the people and things he will meet in daily living, and some of the vital rules for living — patience, sharing, etc. — in today's society.

The books were developed for Time-Life Books by the Preschool Press of Weiner Communications System Inc. of New York City, working with the Children's Television Workshop and making extensive use of the TV show materials and techniques. Little, Brown and Co. is the distributor. The books are hardbound, each 64 pages, all profusely and effectively illustrated. They retail at $3.95 per book.

Some other new books for the juniors:

Veteran pleaser of children Paul Galdone has adapted and illustrated an ancient fable to produce in his "Androcles and the Lion" (McGraw-Hill, $4.95) a funny, yet moralistic, storybook. The artwork is typical Galdone — bold, warmly humorous, eye-catching. And the version of the story is filled with the kind of turnabout surprises that delight youngsters.

For smaller children, Gladys L. Adshead has written another of her charmers about the Brownies and their friends. In "Brownies — They're Moving!" (Walck, $3.75), the elves give Grandfather and Grandmother a helping hand in their move to a new labor-saving home, and create some problems for themselves in the process. It is a merry little book with a happy ending, with lively illustrations by Richard Lebenson.

Planting against a sunny wall needn't be a problem though reflected heat and oven-like exposures can play hob with some shrubs. Any nurseryman can show you a varied assortment of plants that like it hot.

One rule of thumb is to seek grayness in a shrub's foliage. Gray shrubs, as a trip through the desert would indicate, show great resistance to heat. The attractive foliages enhance the landscape, too, blending nicely with other plant materials.

The Cotoneaster family has many members that can take it. The selections range from groundcover types to large-growing shrubs.

THE GRAY LEAF Cotoneaster (C.glaucophylia) is a low grower, whose versatility in the landscape makes it a favorite for single or massed plantings.

Bush Morning Glory and Bush Germander (teucrium fruitcans) are silvery-gray shrubs to use where low-to-medium growers are required.

Rockroses thrive in hot spots and have plenty of green foliage plus pleasing flowers. Use them at the far reaches of the garden — and don't pamper them.

For a planting that absorbs the sun's hottest rays and reflects only freshness, rely on the vast family of Junipers. From carpet-like groundcovers to large, spreading varieties you'll find several to choose from.

IF YOU HAVEN'T shopped for Junipers lately, you'll be amazed at the colorations of green, gray, silver and blue available. The colors, shapes and textures of the different varieties make it possible to achieve distinctive effects. Check out what your nurseryman has to offer.

Bloom-wise, Oleanders and Crape Myrtles rate top consideration. Native Ceanothus — and Californians can select from several — offer carefree gardening and handsome planting. The lilac-like blooms in shades of soft blue to deep purple smother these natives.

In our coastal gardens, Bougainvillea and Lantana are excellent for color and both will take any heat. Inland gardeners will want to plant this pair in protected areas to prevent frost damage.

These, like so many shrubs your nurseryman can show you, thrive on neglect — not an unpleasant trait for today's hurried gardeners.

Syngonium: Foolproof Houseplant

Are you looking for a foolproof houseplant? One that's easy to grow and yet always looks attractive?

Then get a syngonium.

According to a Pennsylvania State University correspondence course on houseplants, syngoniums want semi-shade, average house temperature and humidity, and soil of equal parts garden loam, perlite and peatmoss kept evenly moist.

They tolerate abuse and irregular care.

The plants have arrowhead like leaves on long stalks. There are many varieties.

Trileaf Wonder has white-spotted leaves six inches long on petioles up to 20 inches. Emerald Gem has crinkled foliage and grows compactly. Mostly the plants you find offered for sale have glossy green leaves of solid color on petioles eight to 10 inches long.

Propagation is by single-node stem cuttings. A leaf with node and short section of stem inserted upright in moist peatmoss or perlite at 75 to 80 degrees soon takes root.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

The Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔ Fast-growing and colorful perennials such as Geraniums, Marguerites, Shasta Daisies and Agapanthus, and those annuals, Zinnias and Marigolds, can all be planted now and will soon be coloring your garden in brilliant tones.

✔ During warm summer days, your lawn and garden will need regular, deep watering. By watering deeply, penetrating through each plant's root zone, you will help the plant and conserve water at the same time. Watering deeply — at intervals — encourages the plant to develop a deep root system.

✔ Lacking shade in your garden? Container-grown shade trees can be easily transplanted from nursery containers now and your nurseryman's selection contains the varieties best for your area.

✔ Cut faded hydrangea blooms from those shrubs, but delay really tough pruning until early 1971.

Beware Of The Backyard Boobytraps

By VIVIAN BROWN

Your backyard boobytraps may be nearly as dangerous as those found on a battlefield.

Safety precautions will insure a healthful summer for the family.

For example, there are the swimming pool horror tales. A neighbor's completely guarded pool may be just as dangerous for inquisitive neighboring tots as an unfenced one. One person had a fence with a locked gate and a cover over a pool but a child drowned in water that had collected in the pool cover.

The person who had taken all these precautions obviously was safety-minded, yet an unsafe condition arose that should have been noted.

THE CHILD OF A well-known theatrical personality was outdoors with nurse, mother, father and teen-age sister. He managed to run barefoot in the sand over hot embers left from the previous night's luau. His badly burned feet gave him and the family an unhappy summer.

Broken glass is another bugaboo for children who enjoy running around barefoot and even for adults who attempt to remove it with bare hands. One gardener bent down to pick up a bottle that proved to be broken. She wound up in the hospital with a severe cut.

Another potential danger — particularly to children allergic to bees — are yellowjacket nests in the ground or among trees where children are likely to play. If you see yellowjackets, try to locate their nest and warn youngsters. Remove the nest when you can.

GLASS DOORS THAT lead to gardens and patios cause a great many accidents even to wary adults, especially in summer when doors are likely to be kept cleaner. A spiral motif in the center of each door or a little border of something or other at the bottom of the doors may provide warning.

Removable muntins can provide visual restraints.

Slippery surfaces around pools should be carpeted in non-skid materials and the pool should be inspected by the family scuba expert before it is used by unwary guests. Many accidents are caused because a person dives into a pool that is loaded with children's toys.

ONE PERSON DIVED into such a pool before his host had arisen, hitting his head on the raised ladder of a large metal fire engine.

It's a good idea to be cautious about inviting people to use your swimming pool when you are away from the house. You are liable for injuries and your best friend may not hesitate to sue if something goes awry.

Safety rules shouldn't be left at home when one goes off on a day trip. How often does one see in a small craft a big child wearing a little lifejacket that says "good for up to 50 pounds" — the same one he had when he was 4 years old.

ALL SORTS OF safety clothing is available in sporting goods shops but entire families will board a boat completely unprepared for emergencies.

Resort doctors and hospital clinics do a thriving summer business as the result of some of the strangest little accidents. Everyone should make a visit to such an emergency station before he begins his vacation in the area.

A person should think twice about letting a small child bait a fishhook or run barefoot on an unclean beach.

DOCTORS EXTRACT fishhooks from fingers, eyes, ears and other unlikely places of children and adults. One deep sea fisherman let a fish bite off the tip of his finger. Another cut his arm, eagerly trying to scale a small fish with a big butcher knife.

Outpatient departments of hospital clinics take on an atmosphere of comedy at times where inquisitive little boys may be seen sitting with an arm stuck in a bottle or thumb in the small hole of a flower pot.

One boy observed was wearing a birdcage over his head. No one at home had a tinsnips.

But it isn't only the lollipop set that has amusing freak accidents.

One man with teeth marks on his arm explained that he had reached in a zoo cage to retrieve his child's sweater and he had been bitten by a monkey.

Well — that's what he told the doctor.

Build Yourself A Storage Closet Lined With Cedar

Investing money wisely in your home not only adds to your pleasure in living in it, but it increases the value and resale worth of the home.

When it comes time to sell the house, any profit or loss — barring any major fluctuations in the cost of real estate — will depend largely on the general condition of the house and upon the improvements you have made.

A prospective home buyer isn't interested in impractical, expensive frills. He or she looks for useful additions which make a home more comfortable and more livable.

HIGH AMONG the things he looks for is storage — number of closets, size and location of the closets, and the kind of storage they provide. For this reason, and for your own convenience, it is wise to increase your storage facilities in connection with any remodeling or home improvement project.

One of the best ways to do this is to build a closet in the basement, attic or garage.

In ranch houses particularly, there is often ample basement space for the construction of a full-size closet.

And to make such a closet even more functional, it's a good idea to line the interior with aromatic red cedar closet lining.

BUILDING A cedar closet in the basement requires no great carpentry skill. It's a relatively simple matter of framing out the area earmarked for a closet with two-by-four studs and then nailing the cedar pieces directly to the studs. No other backing material is required.

If the closet is to be built on an outside wall, it is recommended that a vapor barrier of some sort — a polyethelene sheet, for example — be used for protection against dampness.

Apply the cedar lining horizontally, working from the floor up, one wall at a time.

Cedar lining is tongue-and-grooved along the sides and at each end for easy and more secure installation. The pieces hold together firmly even if they join between bearing points. Use small finishing nails and drive them into the face of the three-inch wide lumber.

FOR MAXIMUM moth repellency, it is best to apply the cedar lining to the ceiling of the closet and to the back of the door as well.

After the cedar lining has been completely installed you can nail up your shelves, hanger poles and other pieces of hardware to fit out the closet to your particular needs.

For a finished, professional-looking job, fit cedar quarter-round molding at all wall, ceiling and floor junctions.

THIS WALK-IN cedar closet can easily be a part of a family room addition. Studs for one wall of the closet already are in place, so it becomes a matter of framing out the other three walls, then nailing strips of aromatic red cedar directly to the vertical two-by-four studs. For greater moth-repellency, cedar lining should be mounted to the inside of the door. If a solid door is used, the lining can be nailed directly to the door surface. If it's a hollow-core door, you're better off mounting the cedar with a cartridge-type adhesive.

Hardboard Paneling: Easy To Work With, Nice To Look At

Simplicity Of Today's Products Is Suited To Amateur's Needs

Working with hardboard panels today can be learned quickly by either amateur or professional carpenters.

Much of the simplicity lies in the product, its availability for prompt delivery to the site and its workability with common tools.

Consider a room addition. Here, two basic types of hardboard are used: exterior siding and interior paneling.

A wide variety of hardboard siding is available, ranging from prefinished Colorlok to textured Ruf-X, Moonspot and Barkridge, plus smooth-surfaced and grooved boards.

SIDINGS COME in panels or lap styles. Some are completely prefinished in colors. Some are pre-stained. Most are factory primed, requiring only on-the-job finish coats. Prime-coated or prefinished hardboard sidings ease the decorating chores, of course.

Depending on the climate, the hardboard sidings are applied either directly over stud walls or nailed to studs first covered with sheathing and vapor barriers. Development of improved hardboard siding has made nailing easier than when the product was introduced 15 years ago.

Shiplapped joints eliminate need for battens. Butt joints require caulking ahead of nailing on battens.

PRIME PAINTED aluminum siding corners, designed specifically for Masonite brand siding products, require no face nailing.

Craftsmen may cut the siding with a fine-toothed hand saw or a power saw with a combination blade.

Interior hardboard panels come in a variety of finishes, ready for installation. Because of the prefinished feature and the easy, damp-wipe maintenance, thousands of installations today are made with this type of paneling.

DEVELOPMENT of a cartridge-type adhesive makes panel installation a breeze. Nailing is eliminated and the job speeded up markedly. Four-foot -wide panels cover a wall rapidly, and the joint treatment includes a vertical groove to simplify installation.

For those who insist on nails, a color matched product is available.

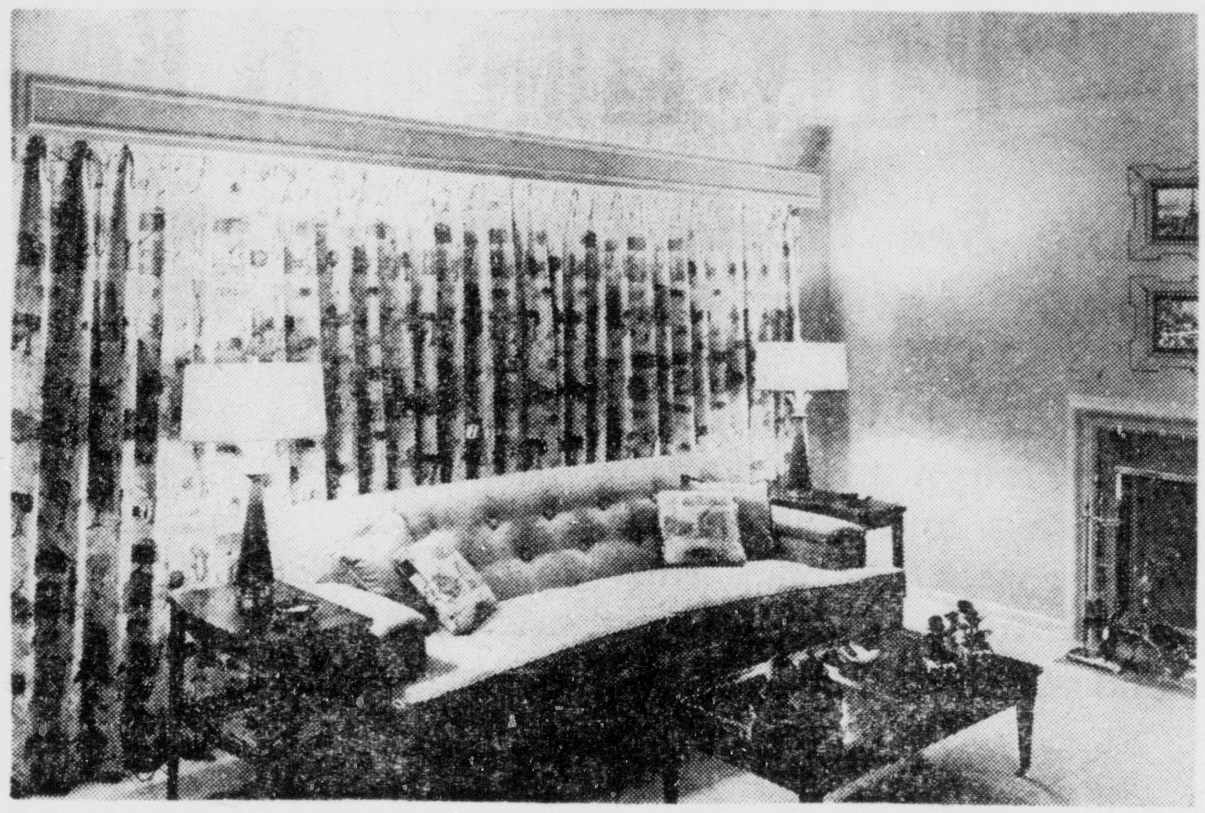
Also, color-matched or coordinated moldings may be obtained to give any installation a professionally-finished appearance.

"How-to" of paneling is relatively easy. In new construction, panels may be bonded directly to wall studs. In existing homes, they may go directly over old walls, if they're "true;" otherwise over furring strips.

PANELS MAY be sawn on the job to fit, as required.

Many colors, textures, patterns and moods are available in hardboard paneling. These range from three-dimensional textures to prefinished woodgrains to replicas of aged colonial paneling.

Prices are reasonable — in the neighborhood of 30 cents a square foot, retail.



ANYONE WHO has been confused and frustrated by a traverse rod will appreciate a new simplified guide that takes all the fear and mystery out of installing traverse track, making valances, cornice boards and hanging draperies. Directions tell how to measure, make and hang valance boards, and how to install track, make and hang draperies. All the hardware, right down to the last bolt and bracket, is illustrated and described to permit amateurs to make like "pros" on their very first attempt. Send $1 for Easi-Bild's Book No. 627, "How to install Traverse Track," to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510. Be sure to include your zip code number for prompt delivery.

RED CEDAR SHINGLES, long used for the exteriors of homes, are being used inside as well. "Why Did My Dress Bras Stiffen In Cleaning?"

The reason relates to an old situation. It used to be found in dress shields, then in bonded shoulder pads. Now that sewn-in bras are made a part of many dresses, we find the old complaint returning.

The rubber or "foam" which form the bras deteriorates in drycleaning fluid. Some of the materials react by stiffening. Others crumble and lose their shape. This is why dress shields and shoulder pads had to be removed before drycleaning. The same is true, now, of sewn-in bras. If the garment is cleaned, this trouble would not occur. But when drycleaned, the sewn-in bras should be removed first.
